$5 billion

Staggering loss of U.S. weapons to Hanoi bared

WASHINGTON (AP) — An estimated $5 billion in American-supplied weapons, including hundreds of planes, helicopters, tanks, artillery pieces and naval craft, were lost to the Communists in the collapse of South Vietnam, the Pentagon says.

The newly declassified report provides the first publicly detailed breakdown of the captured hardware since Hanoi's forces took over South Vietnam in spring of 1975. By itself, the list constitutes an entire army, air force and navy.

The gear includes 430 utility helicopters, 36 larger Ch47 Chinook helicopters, 73 F5 fighter planes, 113 A37 light bombers, 36 A1 bombers, 90 transport planes and 212 miscellaneous aircraft.

The Pentagon put the number of naval craft lost at 940, most of them patrol and river-warfare vessels.

The inventory also included 550 tanks, 1,200 armored personnel carriers, 1,330 howitzers and self-propelled guns, 63,000 antitank weapons, 47,000 grenade launchers and 12,000 mortars.

A total of 1.6 million rifles, including 791,000 M16s, were listed, along with 15,000 machine guns and 90,000 pistols.

The North Vietnamese also inherited a mountain of 130,000 tons of ammunition, 42,000 trucks and 48,000 radios.

The Pentagon said the captured equipment may have deteriorated from climate and weather conditions in South Vietnam. Nor does the list "take into account the degree of damage inflicted upon portions of the equipment left behind by retreating Republic of Vietnam forces during the final days," the report said.

Defense spokesmen told Congress some time ago they thought about $2 billion worth of the equipment was in serviceable shape when the North Vietnamese took over.

CMC conference takes dim view of Carter's economic policies

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Economists at Claremont Men's College Wednesday took a rather dim view of President-elect Jimmy Carter's projected economic policies.

At a special conference on the campus entitled "Economic Implications of the Election," John Rutledge, associate director of the center for Applied Financial Economics Center of CMC, predicted a bleak economic picture beyond 1979.

The economist said the next two years will bring lower unemployment, reduced inflation and a moderate rate of expansion to the U.S. economy.

But after that, Rutledge predicts higher government spending, rapid inflation, and possibly wage and price controls.

In discussing Carter, Rutledge said "If I had a major worry, it would be that Mr. Carter's economic advisers tend to be scientists, people who think experimentally about things.

"I think they could do a lot of harm."

The prediction of moderate growth during the next two years is based on what the center economists see as forces now at work in the economy, including a tight money supply that has inhibited inflation and the current expansion of the economy.

Rutledge added that the Federal Reserve has kept a close watch on money-supply growth.

"This has set the stage for a 3 to 4 per cent inflation rate for 1978 and 1979," he said. "In effect, inflation has already been cooled for Carter."

A. James Meigs, AFEC's director, told conference members that the nation's current economic expansion was firmly established despite the current slowdown, and that this would tend to reduce unemployment.

The economists are predicting a drop of unemployment from its current 7.9 per cent to about 6.5 per cent in 1978.

While the nation's gross national product declined by 1.7 per cent after inflation adjustment in 1975, the AFEC forecast predicts a rise by about 6.2 per cent this year.

The economists predict a further growth of the national product in both 1977 and 1978 of 4.4 per cent and 4.3 per cent respectively.

Rutledge said inflation, as it is measured by the consumer price index, will probably rise to 7 per cent or more in 1979 when the impact of Carter's expansionary policies begin to be felt.

Screaming children flee; husband held

DETROIT (AP) — Seven-year-old Laura Denornie and 35 other children had just started their English lesson in Betty McCaster's first-grade class. A man entered, exchanged a few words with the teacher, then pulled a gun.

"Miss McCaster was screaming," Laura recalled later. "(She) reached her hand out and tried to push the gun away but bullets hit her and she fell back against the table."

Miss McCaster, 46, was fatally shot in the head Wednesday in her classroom at Burt Elementary School on Detroit's northwest side.

"We were screaming, and we all ran out of the room," Laura told police. "He shot her three or four times from this far away," she said, indicating a distance of about five feet.

Hours later, police arrested Miss McCaster's estranged husband, Al J. Lewis, 46, on open charges. They said they would seek a first-degree murder warrant against him today.

Police said Lewis had a history of psychiatric problems.

Most classes were canceled for the rest of the day at the school, where Miss McCaster had transfered only three weeks ago because, police said, she was afraid of Lewis.

Her sobbing pupils fled the scene and clustered in a first-floor classroom. Their parents waited anxiously in the corridor while police tried to piece together the youngsters' confused stories of what happened.

As the youngsters were released one by one, their parents hurried them home.

Police and school officials said a man had come to the school, inquired where Miss McCaster's classroom was, and entered it just as she began an English lesson.

Pupils said the two exchanged a few words before the man pulled a gun. When Miss McCaster told one child to go to the principal's office for help, the children said, the gunman became infuriated.

The Detroit Free Press reported in today's editions that Lewis had for the past two months been trying to get public school officials to fire his ex-wife. Lewis called the newspaper several times, claiming he could prove Miss McCaster had stolen school equipment.

The newspaper said Lewis called a reporter Monday and said he had signed himself into Doctors Hospital and expected to be there three weeks. A hospital spokesman refused to say what kind of treatment Lewis had. He signed himself out Tuesday night.

School principal Wilbur Klein said Miss McCaster's husband, whom he knew slightly, had come to the school a few days ago and demanded to see his wife. The principal said he told Miss McCaster, but she refused to see Lewis.

A fellow teacher, Mrs. Ollie Trotter, said Miss McCaster told her a week ago she was going to the courts to seek protection from her husband.

Carter ends his vacation

ST. SIMONS ISLAND, GA. (AP) — Jimmy Carter, after naming the staff that will help plan his transition to the presidency, is ending his five-day vacation at a secluded wooded retreat here.

Carter and his entourage planned to return to Plains, Ga., today aboard a chartered commercial jetliner, not the presidential jet that brought the Carter family here last Saturday. Carter felt that it would be a waste to use two planes when one would do, press secretary Jody Powell said.

Carter told reporters Wednesday the vacation gave him a chance to rest and do his homework for the four-year job that lies ahead. He said it also afforded him an opportunity to "get reacquainted with my family" after the long campaign.

Powell announced the names of the top members of the transition staff, most of whom worked on Carter's campaign.

Still heading the staff is Jack Watson Jr., an Atlanta lawyer who has been laying the groundwork for the transition since last summer.

The staff director under Watson will be Barbara Blum, an Atlanta businesswoman who was Carter's deputy campaign director.

Starting Wednesday, the staff will work out of a fifth floor suite of offices in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare at the foot of Capitol Hill.

Powell also announced that President Ford has offered Carter pre-inauguration office and living space in a restored brownstone home on Lafayette Square across from the White House. The house has been designated by Congress for the use of former presidents. Ford himself is expected to use it when he leaves office Jan. 20.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Signal Corps is installing a sophisticated global communications center in Plains for Carter's use as President.

Postal service urging earlier Yule mailing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fearing that a United Parcel Service strike may eventually cause a letter jam, the Postal Service is asking the public to mail Christmas packages and cards earlier than usual this year.

The Postal Service on Wednesday moved up by one week the mailing deadlines it previously had suggested for Christmas mail. The new recommended mailings are Dec. 3 for domestic parcels and Dec. 10 for Christmas letters and cards.

The Postal Service said it "is compelled to ask the public to mail even earlier than normal" because its mail volume has been increased vastly by the UPS strike in 15 eastern and southern states.

The mail agency said in a statement that its parcel volume has more than doubled in the area from Maine to South Carolina during the eight-week-old strike. If the strike continues into the normally heavy Christmas mailing season, which begins after Thanksgiving, the Postal Service would face an unprecedented burden.

Parcels now take several more days than usual to be delivered in the strike area, Kenneth Lynn, Postal Service director of distribution systems, said in an interview. First class letters are experiencing very slight delays, he said.

The Postal Service has added 6,200 temporary workers.

Ford may reside in Palm Springs

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — President Ford has not decided where he will reside after leaving office on Jan. 20, a White House spokesman says.

With Ford spending the entire week here in the warm desert sun on a post-election vacation, reporters speculated that the President might be considering Palm Springs as a future residence.

But White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Wednesday, "He's not going to make any decision" on his future for now.

Rising illegitimacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time since records have been kept, more children were born out of wedlock last year in the nation's capital than were born to married women, the city's human resources department reported Wednesday.

The National Center for Health Statistics here said Washington is the first major American city where that has occurred.

City officials reported that 4,988 children were born to unmarried women in the District of Columbia in 1975, compared with 4,758 born to married women.

Officials said 57 per cent of all children born to blacks in Washington last year were born out of wedlock, while 12.9 per cent of white babies were illegitimate.

Panel cites other side of pay issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — "In many small towns, $44,600 (the current congressional salary) sounds like a good deal of money," Peter G. Peterson said.

That provincial perspective on the value of a year's work in Washington is the big reason why Peterson thinks it is unlikely that congressmen, judges and federal executives are going to get hefty pay raises next year.

Peterson, chairman of the Commission on Executive, Legislative and Judicial Salaries, said Wednesday that "we should not underestimate the fallout effects" in the last two years of the Wayne Hays and other congressional scandals, Watergate and reports of illegal contributions from corporations.

"There is no doubt that the anti-Washington attitude the Carter campaign ran on is very powerful," Peterson said during the final day of the panel's two-day hearing on pay raises for the top executive, judicial and legislative personnel.

Wednesday's testimony presented the other side of the pay-raise question. Tuesday, the commssion heard several witnesses recommend hefty raises of about 50 per cent for top government executives, congressmen and federal judges.

The top personnel levels have had just one 5 per cent raise since 1969, they noted, and it is becoming difficult to attract able people because private sector salaries are much higher.

Peterson's commission will recommend pay raises to President Ford. He will include the amounts he deems appropriate in the fiscal 1978 budget he will submit to Congress in January.

Mom gets hostile calls after turning son in

NEW IBERIA, La. (AP) — "I did what I had to do," says a mother whose son was sentenced to 99 years in prison for armed bank robbery after she helped authorities catch him.

"(I did) what I thought was best, and it's nobody else's business," Rosemary Francis said Wednesday.

Her son, Jerry Paul Francis, 18, and an accomplice, Preston George Demouchet, 24, were sentenced in District Court on Wednesday for a bank robbery last May in which a teller was shot.

The teller, Beverly Shauffe, was alone when the bandits arrived at the St. Martin Bank & Trust Bank in rural Parks. They forced her to lie on the floor, police said, and before leaving, one of the men shot her in the head with a .38-caliber pistol. She lies now in a nursing home, unable to move or speak.

"If he did that, I had to turn him in," Mrs. Francis said. "If he did that, he was liable to do something else worse, and I'd rather turn him in than have him lying dead in the streets."

Police got on the trail of the bandits quickly. A photograph of them, taken by an automatic camera at the bank, was published in the newspaper here and Mrs. Francis recognized one as her son and went to police.

Since then, she said she has gotten hostile telephone calls from people in this town near the Gulf Coast west of New Orleans.

"People have been calling me all hours of the night, sometimes 2 o'clock in the morning, and calling me dirty for turning him in," said Mrs. Francis. "I'm the one that's got to live with what I did, and I don't see why it's bothering them."

More funds for experimental child care program approved by Brown

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has approved $3 million more in federal funds for a state experimental child care program next year, a state health official says.

Deputy director Gary Macomber of the state Department of Health revealed the decision Wednesday at a joint state Senate-Assembly legislative hearing on the state's child care program.

Brown okayed the additional expenditure at a weekend meeting in a move "to prevent a cutback" in a $30 million experimental child care program approved in the 1975-76 session, Macomber said.

The funds will funnel into the existing experimental program which emphasizes "smaller home-type care as an alternative to children's center-based programs, hopefully at a lower cost," Macomber said.

The Democratic governor has said he won't consider big new amounts of money for child care without first gaining a better grasp on what makes the program so expensive and what kind of care would be best.

Asked whether women's rights and child care enthusiasts' pressure sparked Brown to agree to the extra money, Macomber said:

"He didn't state that outright. But obviously he is aware of that as we all are."

The source of the funds is a federal social service bill approved by Congress this year, releasing $23.7 million in funds for California.

To skirt federal staffing requirements, the $3 million in federal dollars will be "put into one pot," freeing $3 million in state money for child care, Macomber said.

Had Brown failed to okay the extra $3 million, state officials would have needed to spread $10 million over a 12-month period in fiscal year 1977-78, which begins next July 1.

The law authorizing the experimental program provided $10 million a year for three years. But child care backers contended more than $10 million was needed in 1977-78 to avoid program cutbacks.

Child care programs in California now cost $74 million a year in federal, state and local money, not counting the $10-million-a-year experimental program, state officials say.

Department of Education officials say there are 60,000 children in child care programs in California and about another half million children who need state-subsidized child care.

Patty Siegal, director of a San Francisco child care facility, hailed the news of the $3 million as a "positive move."

Brown's adviser on child care issues, J. Anthony Kline, said he realized some wouldn't think the additional funds were sufficient but said at least "it's something."

Word of the $3 million in funding came after testimony at the hearing from John Mockler, spokesman for the Department of Education.

Mockler said there appeared to be some feeling in the governor's office that child care possibly could be provided at less cost.

"Our view is that it is not possible unless you're willing to exploit the children or workers in the child care centers," Mockler testified.

A SQUARE EGG?

Man has devised the square egg. It works this way: a warm, peeled, hard-boiled egg is placed in a small, square, plastic compression box. After a few minutes in the refrigerator, it has been pressed square. It won't roll off a plate, and it goes well with contemporary furniture. Its inventor, Stan Pargman, points out it's a square meal.

Pomonan's trial date set: Dec. 3

A Pomona woman charged with manslaughter in the slaying of a man described as her boyfriend the night of Aug. 13 faces trial Dec. 3 in Pomona Superior Court.

She is Letitia Jones, 26, of 419 E. Fourth St., who is charged with voluntary manslaughter. She is free on $3,500 bail.

The victim, Leroy Powell, 29, was found stabbed five times in the back, lying in the backseat of a car parked in the middle of 11th Street between Main and Thomas streets in Pomona that Friday night. Powell was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital, but was dead.

The suspect was found standing beside the car when police arrived. They quoted her as saying she and Powell had been arguing over money. The weapon was believed to have been the 4-inch steak knife officers said they found inside the car.

Continental's flights resume

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Continental Airlines jetliners, grounded since a pilots' strike began Oct. 23, are expected to be flying again Monday now that the strike has been settled.

Two more hospital deaths are probed

VENTURA (AP) — The nighttime deaths of two patients at Camarillo State Hospital came under strange circumstances that testimony before a grand jury has failed to explain, and a third patient starved to death under the eyes of the doctors.

Indications in testimony Wednesday were that failure to follow hospital policies about checking patients at night and banning smoking materials in sleeping areas may have contributed to at least two deaths.

The grand jury looking at least a dozen questionable deaths at the hospital over the past four years was in recess today after three days of public hearings because of the Veterans Day holiday.

In one case, in the death of Steven Miller, 33, from starvation, dehydration, and pulmonary edema, testimony indicated that patients were assumed to be free of medical problems when they came to Camarillo — an assumption that proved fatally wrong.

Another victim whose case was discussed Wednesday was Artemy Cross, who died during a fire in an isolation room under circumstances that Deputy Dist. Atty. William Maxwell called "just weird."

L.P. man to face murder charge

A La Puente man accused of forcing his son-in-law off a Rapid Transit District bus and shooting him to death the morning of June 28 is scheduled for trial on a murder charge Nov. 17 in Pomona Superior Court.

He is Paul Martinez Rodriguez, 52, who pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity when he was arraigned. He was not admitted to bail.

The victim, Sam J. Bellina, 26, of West Covina, was shot five times after being forced to lie on the sidewalk at Valley Boulevard and Azusa Avenue. Rodriguez was arrested by sheriff's deputies arriving at the scene.

Deputies said Rodriguez boarded the bus, strode to the seat where the victim sat and shouted, "I told you I was going to get you." Several passengers tried to intervene but shrank back when Rodriguez allegedly fired a shot into the ceiling of the bus. The victim then was taken outside and killed.

Investigators blamed the incident on a family dispute.

Anti-truancy program now in operation

"Operation Increased Attendance" was launched for the second year in the Pomona School District Wednesday by the Pomona Valley Juvenile Diversion Project.

A total of 16 youths was picked up during the first day of the anti-truancy program by Pomona police and returned to their schools.

The program, in which personnel from the school district, police and diversion project participate, will be in operation daily this year whenever schools are in session.

Major goal of the program is to halt daylight juvenile crime and protect youngsters from getting into trouble.

Youngsters without proper authorization will be picked up on the streets by police and returned to their school for counseling and classes. After a third truancy incident, the youth's parents will be called in for a special conference.

The coordinator of the program for juvenile diversion is Robert Little.

Walnut council discusses city's site of utilities

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Correspondent

The future of undergrounding utilities in the city occupied the Walnut City Council at its regular meeting Wednesday at City Hall.

At present the city maintains a policy of undergrounding utility lines whenever and wherever it is feasible, said City Manager Vern Lawson. Lawson reported to the council on the possibilities of undergrounding lines adjacent to subdivisions. Discussions with representatives of the Edison Co. and other cities where undergrounding has taken place, said Lawson, has shown some possible troubles an undergrounding program could encounter.

While undergrounding lines within tracts presents no major problem, the city manager said problems could be encountered with utility users on the same line, but not in the tract. Lawson said that a line underground next to the high school, for example, would have to be paid for by the high school

"Right now our recommendation on undergrounding adjacent lines is yes, whenever possible. I realize that's nebulous, but in this case it has to be," said Lawson. He told the council undergrounding adjacent lines could be a policy of the city only if enforced on a reasonable basis.

Councilman Richard Laughter asked Lawson for cost estimates on undergrounding lines and was told that costs vary greatly depending upon the type of line, the number of junction boxes and other variables. Laughter said he felt the establishment of assessment districts to underground adjacent lines might be one answer to the situation because costs could be spread out over a long period.

Lawson told the councilman that assessment districts were feasible but that the city then encountered the problem of having the line placed underground, assessments made on adjacent property owners, and then another party coming along to hook up on the already underground line without bearing any of the costs.

"It's certainly as important as our maintenance districts," said Laughter. "The lines are certainly unsightly."

Councilman Joe Hahn said that undergrounding adjacent lines could only be done case by case. "We're talking about the peripheral lines at the edge of a tract. Will residents in a tract want to underground peripheral lines when all the lines in the tract are already underground?"

Mayor William Cotten noted that further undergrounding will also result in problems of right of way that could be very costly to developers.

The last execution

LUIS JOSE MONGE

CANON CITY, Colo. (AP) — Luis Jose Monge, the last man executed in the United States, died in a gas chamber at the Colorado State Penitentiary on June 2, 1967, after telling a Benedictine priest he was ready for death.

Like Gary Mark Gilmore, a convicted murderer who convinced the Utah Supreme Court on Wednesday to let him face a firing squad next Monday, Monge wanted his sentence carried out quickly.

"The crime I committed I know I am guilty of," he told a judge in 1963. "That is all there is to it. I want to get it over with as soon as I can."

After Monge's death, further executions were held up while the U.S. Supreme Court reviewed the constitutionality of the death penalty. The court ruled that it constituted cruel and unusual punishment as it was being applied, but last summer it declared that new state laws requiring death for specific crimes could be constitutional.

Monge, a 48-year-old insurance salesman, confessed to bludgeoning his wife and three of their 10 children to death on June 28, 1963. He said he would have killed the other children, but was stopped when his last victim, a 6-year-old son, startled him by crying out, "Daddy, daddy."

Monge first voiced his wish for quick execution in the Denver courtroom where he was tried. When mention was made of his repeated assaults on one of his daughters, Monge jumped to his feet demanding immediate execution.

But four years passed between the trial and his death.

Gets wish from court— death by firing squad

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gary Mark Gilmore, a convicted murderer who asked the Utah Supreme Court to let him "die like a man," will face a firing squad Monday barring appeals for a second stay of execution.

The execution, scheduled for 8 a.m. on the Utah State Prison grounds 20 miles south of here, would be the first in the United States since Luis Jose Monge died in a Colorado gas chamber on June 2, 1967. There are more than 400 men and women awaiting possible execution on Death Rows across the nation.

Retiring Gov. Calvin L. Rampton, a supporter of capital punishment, said he would study Gilmore's case and issue a statement today.

The governor can stay an execution until the next meeting of the State Board of Pardons. That would not be until two days after Gilmore is scheduled to die.

Gilmore, wearing handcuffs, white prison garb and red-white-and-blue tennis shoes, told the five Supreme Court justices Wednesday:

"I believe I was given a fair trial, and I think the sentence was proper, and I'm willing to accept it like a man and wish it to be carried out without delay."

The justices, in a 4-1 ruling, then vacated a stay they had granted Monday by a 3-2 vote and agreed to let Gilmore be shot on schedule.

"The stay of execution heretofore granted is withdrawn and vacated and any appeal filed on behalf of Gary Gilmore is dismissed forthwith," the court said.

Gilmore's role in the case left groups opposed to capital punishment in an awkward position. But Shirley Pedler, director of the Utah chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, said her group was considering at least two possible lines of last-minute appeal.

She said one was to appeal the constitutionality of the Utah law to the U.S. Supreme Court, which ruled earlier this year that capital punishment was not inherently unconstitutional.

The other possibility, she said, was to ask the courts to forbid use of tax money to pay for an unconstitutional execution.

Each of five volunteer members of the firing squad would earn $175.

Michael Esplin, a court-appointed lawyer who filed an earlier appeal with the Supreme Court and was fired by Gilmore, warned that the justices may not accept a new appeal against Gilmore's wishes.

But he said that lawyers for other Death Row inmates might still seek a stay in federal courts if the justices decline to accept the Gilmore case in its present state.

The possibility of still other litigation leading to a stay was raised by David Kendall, an expert on capital punishment for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Kendall said there were reports that Denis Boaz, Gilmore's new California lawyer, was a writer as well as a lawyer and might have a contract to write about the case. This, he said, might represent a conflict of interest.

If the courts refuse to reconsider the case, a stay would then be up to the Board of Pardons.

Wednesday's hearing was on a motion by Deputy Atty. Gen. Robert B. Hansen, who had asked for a reversal of the stay of execution order.

Hansen said the issue was "whether the law with respect to this appeal is to be made by the legislature or this court" since Utah law does not provide an automatic appeal for capital crimes.

"My client understands his absolute right to an appeal, but he does not wish to take it," replied Boaz. "This is not a suicide pact or perverse death wish.

"Mr. Gilmore has been adjudged responsible for his act and has made peace with himself. He wishes to die like a man."

But Esplin in a telephone interview after Wednesday's decision said he thinks a suicide motive "is a very real possibility" for Gilmore's recent behavior.

Esplin said the convict once told him, "If they don't do it, I'm going to do it myself. I'm not going to spend the rest of my life in prison."

Gilmore, who would be 36 on Dec. 4, was convicted of first degree murder for fatally shooting Bennie Bushnell, 25, last summer during the robbery of a Provo motel. Gilmore said he ordered Bushnell to lie on the floor, put a pistol to his head and pulled the trigger.

Gilmore, who had been on parole since April 9 from an Illinois prison, has spent 18 years in prisons for robbery, car theft and assault.

He also is charged with the fatal shooting the night before Bushnell's death of a Brigham Young University law student who worked as a part-time gas station attendant.

Utah State Prison Warden Samuel W. Smith said he has had no shortage of volunteers for the firing squad, which was last used in 1960 to execute James W. Rodgers for the murder of a fellow miner.

Utah gives condemned prisoners a choice between hanging and the firing squad, the latter a survival from territorial days and Mormon adherence to the biblical tenet of blood atonement. Gilmore has said he prefers to be shot.

Gilmore's execution would be the 39th in Utah by firing squad.

At one point during Wednesday's hearing, Gilmore's lawyer asked his client if he was prepared to die.

"Not at this very moment, but I'm ready to accept it next Monday morning at 8 a.m.," Gilmore replied.

Ontario woman shot; estranged husband jailed

A 47-year-old Ontario woman was shot and seriously wounded Wednesday, and her husband has been booked for attempted murder at West End Jail, police reported today.

Johnnie Lois Baker, of 301 E. Nevada St., Ontario, was listed in fair condition at San Bernardino County Hospital with shotgun wounds in the right hand and upper left leg.

Her husband, Glen Jordan, 40, of 331 E. Acacia St., Ontario, was arrested shortly after the 10 a.m. incident at the Nevada Street address.

Mrs Baker said that she is legally married to Jordan, but did not take his last name. The pair have been separated for some time, police said.

Officers said that Jordan went to his estranged wife's home and took with him a 12-guage shotgun about 10 a.m.

He knocked on her door, and was admitted. The pair began arguing and a struggle for the shotgun ensued, said police.

Police said the woman went into the bedroom and was followed by her husband. Jordan is accused of leveling the shotgun at Mrs. Baker who was sitting on the bed, and firing one shot.

On the officers' arrival at the house, they were met by Jordan who said the shooting was an "accident."

Mrs. Baker was rushed to Ontario Community Hospital for treatment, and transferred to San Bernardino County Hospital.

Jordan was booked into West End Jail on the attempted murder charge in lieu of $25,000 bail.

Court escapee arrested

A 22-year-old man who escaped from the Pomona Municipal Court Building late Wednesday afternoon was arrested later hiding in the attic of his home, police reported.

The man, Henry L. Hernandez, fled from the courthouse at 350 W. Mission Blvd. where he had been awaiting arraignment on charges of burglary and the illegal use of drugs, police reported.

An extensive search of the area failed to turn up the suspect but shortly after 8:30 p.m. he was found in the attic of the residence at 2031 Munhall St. He wswas booked on suspicion of escape.

Driver kidnaped, robbed

A 21-year-old Ontario man flagged down by two men near the Pomona Freeway in Chino was kidnaped, robbed, and forced out of his truck Wednesday night, Chino police reported.

David Holland told police that he stopped for two men who flagged him down on Ramona Avenue near the freeway about 7:20 p.m.

He said that the men walked over to his truck and opened the doors.

He said that one of the men pulled a revolver, and told him to drive onto the freeway.

While enroute, the men threatened to kill him if he didn't hand over his wallet. Holland complied and the men told him to drive off the freeway and stop near Walker Street in east Chino.

Holland was then pushed out of the pickup and the two attackers drove off towards Riverside.

Holland ran to the home of a Los Angeles County sheriff's deputy.

A woman, holding a shotgun, told him at the home to wait in the garage while she called the police. When police arrived, Holland told them of his kidnaping.

The two attackers were described as white, 17 to 19, 5 feet 9 inches tall, 120 to 135 pounds.

One of the men was wearing a red shirt, while the other wore a baseball cap, blue jacket, and blue jeans.

Chino police said today that two men matching the descriptions of Holland's assailants and riding in a pickup truck raped a woman in the Riverside area later Wednesday night.

Two teenagers shot

Two teenagers were shot and slightly wounded by two other youths riding a motorcycle on State Street near Lemon Avenue in Ontario about 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, police reported.

The two victims, Reynaldo Serrato, 15, and Rickey Vasquez, 14, of Ontario, told officers that they were walking home when two other youths on a motorcycle passed them several times.

The victims said that the motorcycle was stopped and the motorcycle passenger got off and fired five shots at them for no apparent reason.

One of the bullets struck Serrato in the right thigh and another ricochetted off the sidewalk, and grazed Vasquez, police said.

The two boys were taken to Ontario Community Hospital for treatment of their wounds.

Vasquez was released and Serrato was admitted and listed in satisfactory condition this morning.

Police are seeking two Latin juveniles, 16 to 18 years of age, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, in connection with the incident. One of the youths was wearing a white T-shirt and brown pants, while the other was wearing a blue Pendleton shirt, a blue beanie, and grey khaki pants.

Nixon's interviews with Frost delayed

NEW YORK (AP) — The broadcast of David Frost's impending interview with former President Richard M. Nixon has been postponed from February to May, a spokesman for Frost says.

No reason was given Wednesday for the postponements.

Kissinger job hunting; has offers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Situation wanted: well-travelled professor seeks challenging work outside of government. Available after Jan. 20.

Don't look for that message in the want ads, but Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has acknowledged that he is job hunting.

Recently State Department spokesman Robert L. Funseth said Kissinger felt it would be "improper" to discuss any job offers while he was still in government.

But on Wednesday Funseth told reporters that Kissinger plans to meet with "a few people" in the coming weeks to discuss his future as a private citizen. He did not identify them.

Associates say Kissinger faces no shortage of job offers.

The offers are coming to him and to his lawyer, Carlyle Maw, who also serves as a consultant to the State Department.

One friend said Kissinger may join corporate boards of directors, but has ruled out any government post.

Kissinger is expected to write his memoirs, and Maw has acknowledged that Kissinger already has received several book offers.

It is commonly felt in publishing circles that the inside story of Kissinger's diplomatic exploits would be a runaway best seller.

According to some accounts, a friend working on Kissinger's behalf has been investigating such journalistic prospects as writing a daily newspaper column or a monthly magazine column or being a foreign policy expert for a television network.

The former Harvard professor of international relations also could return to academic life.

But whatever Kissinger decides, he intends to keep it to himself until he leaves the government.

"He has indicated to me that he doesn't intend to comment on various reports which might speculate about his future," Funseth said Wednesday.

Funseth said Kissinger "plans to meet with a few people concerning his future in this interim period." But the spokesman added, "He is going to make no decisions until he has left office."

Kissinger and his wife, Nancy, recently moved into a rented house in Georgetown that has a one-year lease. That would indicate that he intends to remain here for a while.

CBS is one of Kissinger's rumored future employers. Richard Salant, president of CBS News, said Wednesday he did not think Kissinger would be hired to do documentaries. "Not so far as I understand," Salant said.

Billy Halop, Dead End Kid, dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Funeral serves were pending today for Billy Halop, one of the leaders of the Dead End Kids in 1930s movies.

Halop was 16 when he gained fame in 1936 playing Tommy in the motion picture, "Dead End." But in a 50-year entertainment career he performed on Broadway, on radio, in movies and on television.

Halop, who died Tuesday in his sleep at age 56, played the leader of the Hell's Kitchen youth gang in the 1934 Broadway production of "Dead End" when he was 14. Two years later, when the film version of the play came to the screen, he was teamed with such notable Dead End kids as Huntz Hall and Leo Gorcey.

Halop began his acting career at age 6 on a radio series called "Bobby Benson and his H Bar O Rangers."

After "Dead End" there followed movies including "Angels with Dirty Faces," "They Made Me a Criminal," "Little Tough Guy" and "You're Not So Tough." Halop's most recent role was in the television series "All In the Family."

He leaves his sister, actress Florence Halop, his mother, and a brother, Joel.

Among the original Dead End Kids still alive are actor Gabriel Dell, who portrayed T.B., and Bernard Punsley, who played Milty. He now is a doctor. Gorcey, who played Spit, and Bobby Jordan, who was Angel, died recently.

ELLEN CORBY

Granny Walton has stroke

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Ellen Corby, who plays "Granny" on "The Waltons" television series, was hospitalized Wednesday in critical condition after suffering a stroke, hospital officials said.

Cedars-Sinai Medical Center spokesman Tess Griffin said, "I can tell you she's had a stroke and is in critical condition."

She said the 63-year-old actress was admitted at 11:25 a.m.

Linda Fumia, production secretary of "The Waltons" show, said the producer, Andy White, went to Miss Corby's home in Hollywood after she failed to report for work.

When there was no answer at the door, an ambulance was called and paramedics broke down the door to the house.

"They found her unconscious on the second floor landing," said Miss Fumia.

Despite the critical status of her condition, Miss Fumia said, "The doctors told us that her vital signs are good. She was alert when she got to the hospital and she recognized everyone around her. We're hoping that she'll be all right."

Murder victims found

SAN BERNARDINO (AP)— The bodies of two men, victims of apparently unrelated murders, have been discovered in San Bernardino County.

Hunters in Cajon Pass discovered the body of an unidentified man in his 20s who had been shot and buried in a three-foot deep grave. Officials said his nude body had been wrapped in a sheet and buried in the grave.

The body of S. Sgt. Dennis Adams, 28, was found by high school students near California highway 58, about 15 miles west of Barstow.

Adams, stationed at the Twentynine Palms Marine base, was shot to death. His wallet and car were missing.

His wife said he left home Sunday and never appeared at the base.

Sniffing spray proves fatal

NORWALK (AP)—Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies say a 17-year-old Norwalk girl died because she sniffed a plastic bag full of a nonstick frying pan spray.

Ford's budget chief pursues '79 balance

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's budget director says Ford is pushing ahead with his program to achieve a balanced budget by 1979, even though that goal apparently is imperiled by Jimmy Carter's election victory.

"That was the plan given me by the President which he considers sound and which I believe is sound, so I'm operating under that guidance," Director James T. Lynn of the Office of Management and Budget said in an interview Wednesday.

Lynn said Ford also would propose to Congress his plan to cut income taxes by $10 billion next year. There would be a companion proposal for an increase in Social Security taxes, so the net tax reduction would be about $7 billion, Lynn said.

Lynn said these are the same tax-cuts Ford first proposed in October 1975 and which Congress rejected. "We believed them to be in the public interest over a year ago," Lynn said.

Ford's budget and tax proposals will be sent to Congress on Jan. 17, three days before Carter takes office. These will be the proposed budget for fiscal 1978, which begins next Oct. 1, and Ford's plan for achieving a balanced budget the following fiscal year.

Carter's aides have said the new president will urge changes in Ford's proposals, including the 1977 budget, after he takes office. Carter is expected to propose somewhat higher spending for job programs in 1977 and probably slightly less for defense than what Ford will urge.

Carter has pledged a balanced budget by 1981, two years later than Ford. The Democratic-led congressional budget committees have also set 1981 as their target for a balanced budget.

The recession led Ford and Congress to wrack up the largest deficit in the nation's history in fiscal 1976 — $65.6 billion. It exceeded the wartime budget deficit of $54.9 billion in 1943.

Government spending exceeded revenues by $12.7 billion during a transitional quarter that ended Sept. 30, and congressional budget-makers expect a deficit of $50.6 billion in fiscal 1977, which ends next Sept. 30.

Ford has proposed a $47.4-billion deficit for fiscal 1977, but he hoped to end the deficits by 1979.

Carter argued during the campaign that a balanced budget before 1981 would hold down economic growth and keep unemployment high.

Death ends pregnancy debate

DENVER (AP) — A pregnant woman, the subject of an unusual medical debate concerning the 15-week-old fetus she carried, is dead.

Doctors at Colorado General Hospital used life support machinery for more than 48 hours after 29-year-old Linda Culbertson was critically injured in an automobile accident on Monday.

While the machinery kept Mrs. Culbertson technically alive, doctors pondered the ethical, legal and medical questions of trying to keep her alive in the hope they could some day deliver her baby.

When they decided their effort had no chance for success, they made plans to terminate the extraordinary life support. Before they could do so, Mrs. Culbertson's heartbeat, and that of the fetus, stopped.

"It was the judgment of our medical staff that nothing could be done to preserve a viable fetus," hospital spokesman Eric Munson said after a team of surgeons, obstetricians and pediatricians had reached their decision.

The decision to terminate the life-saving effort was reached with the consent of the woman's husband, Vaughn.

LARRY ABLER

New planning commissioner in Montclair is sworn in

Larry Abler, a 12-year resident of Montclair, was sworn in this week as a new member of the Montclair Planning Commission.

Abler succeeds Robert Monteith who recently resigned from the commission because he will be moving out of the city.

Abler, 43, served as a member of the Community Action Committee for 4½ years and was chairman during 1974-75. The committee projects during that time included a community survey identifying the needs of residents; reviewing financing for community service projects and programs; coordinating the annual Cleanup, Fixup, Paintup Campaign and the Student Government Day activities between the city and Montclair High School; and developing the political sign ordinance in the city.

He also was among the members of the 20th Anniversary Celebration Committee which staged a parade, carnival, entertainment and a host of other activities in April this year in commemoration of the city's birthday and the nation's Bicentennial.

Abler and his wife, Shirley, have five daughters, Cathy, 20; Karen, 19; Diana, 18; Teri, 15 and Sharon, 11; and one son, Larry Jr., 16. He owns Thermo-Steam Boiler Co. in South El Monte, a firm that builds boilers for laundries and dry clearners. Mrs. Abler is employed at Harris Pine Mills in Ontario.

Five hurt in two-car accident

Five persons were injured Tuesday when two cars collided on the San Bernardino Freeway near San Antonio Avenue, Ontario. The accident blocked westbound lanes for nearly two hours.

Injured were Tina Barkley, 22, and her passengers, Richard McDowell, 32, Joseph Lawrence, 37, Clinton McDowell, 34, and Carole McGowen, 20, all of Los Angeles.

The second driver, Richard Daniels, 59, Mira Loma, wasn't hurt.

The injured were transported to San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland where they were treated and later released.

Highway patrolmen said the Los Angeles woman's car had a tire blowout, causing her to slow and pull off the freeway offramp. The second vehicle then struck the back of the disabled automobile, said officers.

Westminster man injured

A 34-year-old Westminster man was injured when he lost control of his car and went over an embankment on Brea Canyon Road north of Tonner Canyon Road in Brea Tuesday.

Danny MacBrown, 34, was treated for injuries at Brea Olinda Community Hospital and later released.

California Highway patrolmen said MacBrown failed to negotiate a curve and the car went over the embankment and rolled over several times.

Shooting victim is transferred

A Pomona man who was shot three times outside a tavern Aug. 27 and who was in Pomona Valley Community Hospital's intensive care unit since then, has been transferred to a general care ward and is now said to be in good condition.

He is John Aaron Smith, 24, who was beaten and shot in the chest on the parking lot of the Palms tavern at 903 E. Mission Blvd.

Witnesses said Smith was pulled from his car and attacked by two men. Police later arrested two suspects, but they were not prosecuted and were released. Investigation of the case was hindered because of Smith's long period of unconsciousness, police said.

Smith was in critical condition until the latter period of October when he began to improve.

The reading is sponsored by the English Club of the university. Refreshments will be served. Persons attending may ask for Roy Cunningham, president, or Gloria Caldwell, vice president, at the library. Faculty and students will read their poems.

Anne Elizabeth Young of Claremont and Dale Russell Rugge of Diamond Bar have been elected to Phi Beta Kappa, scholastic honor society, at UCLA.

Pomona council slates hearing for M.M. project

Pomona City Council has accepted reports from the city's Planning and Redevelopment Commissions concerning the proposed Mountain Meadows Redevelopment Project area, and has set a public hearing for Nov. 22 to decide whether to move forward with the project.

The hearing will be held in the council chambers at 8 p.m.

Reports accepted Monday consisted of a finding by the Planning Commission that the tentative plans for the project conform to the city's General Plan, and a finding by the Redevelopment Commission that the proposal conforms to redevelopment law requirements.

Plans for the area, which is generally the undeveloped portions of the Ganesha Hills east of Ganesha Boulevard, call for construction of homes in the $70,000-and-up category.

The procedure for forming the redevelopment district is speeding up, as city officials attempt to outrun new state laws that will effect redevelopment districts formed after Jan. 1.

Those laws would require that 20 per cent of all monies generated in new redevelopment projects be used to provide low cost housing in the city.

City Council members are dead set against such a move, contending that the city already suffers from a surplus of low cost housing.

In other business, the council approved the priorities for expenditure of some $335,000 in federal grant funds for beautification in the city.

Projects set for funding include landscaping and entryway signs at such locations as Garey Avenue and the Pomona Freeway; Mission Boulevard at General Dynamics; Indian Hill Boulevard and American Avenue; Garey Avenue at the San Bernardino Freeway and other locations depending on how far the money can be stretched.

Other projects include beautification along Holt Avenue and decoration of the railroad underpasses at White, Garey and Towne avenues.

State gets some breathing room on logging problem

By RON ROACH
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO (AP) — An agreement to suspend some logging near Redwood National Park will give the state time to seek congressional action on a possible solution to the logging problem, officials say.

"It gives us some breathing room," Taylor Miller, assistant secretary of the state Resources Agency, said Tuesday of the decision last week by Arcata Redwood Co. to suspend Redwood Creek logging through the winter.

Miller said Resources Secretary Claire Dedrick will seek congressional hearings next year on a three-part proposal.

"All three parts have to go together if she is to continue to support action by Congress" on the 58,000-acre park in Del Norte and Humboldt counties, Miller said.

The three points are:

—Expansion of the park to make it a manageable park unit. "Quite apart from the issue of logging, it is completely incompatible land use to have a supposedly tranquil park area with ... reverberating chain saws and trucks nearby," Miler said.

He said "no amount of regulation on on-going logging can fully satisfy the concerns of all the people" who find logging along Redwood Creek "an insult to the senses."

Hearings should determine whether enlarging the park is a viable solution, Miller said. "We want arguments for and against and have a decision. There has to be a final determination. Maybe we're just whistling in the wind, but we will do all we can to get it resolved."

He said it is "clear we can't resolve it" through the Forest Practices Act of California, which he said is "inadequate because it is hard to address the gut issue: should redwood be cut at all?"

—Employment and the economy of the region. "If Congress decides to add to the park (and the result would be more unemployed loggers and timber processors) there should be some federally funded economic program for the county, which already has high unemployment," Miller said.

—Protection of the "Tall Trees Grove," including the world's tallest known tree, which is 367 feet high. Erosion upstream from the park has caused sediment to raise the creek bed as much as 15 feet in some areas, and five feet near the tall tree grove in the last 10 or 15 years.

Loggers say above average rainfall has caused the erosion, but the state feels "significant" factors include logging, road building and the clearing of land for grazing.

"We want to cope with the risk to the tall trees, not establish who is at fault," Miller said.

Only six per cent of the land in the creek basin is left outside the park and logging it would "add small, marginal risk to the tall grove," he said. "We're not proposing to add it to the park just for the purpose of protecting the redwoods. That would not be justified.

"But in making sense, it's justified. Because (if logging were to continue) 50 years from now we'd have the same incompatible situation."

He said the state isn't leaving it all up to the federal government. State regulations will be used to ensure further logging won't endanger the park.

A conclusion is expected soon, Miller said, on negotiations that began last winter between the National Park Service, the U.S. Justice Department, the state attorney general's office and three companies.

The goal is a procedure to have the logging plans of Arcata Redwood, Louisana Pacific and Simpson Timber companies evaluated at least two years into the future.

"The Park Service would have an early look at the plans" and relieve the strain on the state regulatory process, he said.

Claremont principal named chairman of accreditation team

John E. Mann, principal of Claremont High School, has been named chairman for the Western Association of Schools and Colleges' accreditation team for La Quinta High School at Garden Grove.

Mann recently served on a state committee which reviewed an evaluation tool used by schools having undergone three evaluations.

The new approach to self-evaluation will be used by La Quinta in an effort to foster excellence secondary education, encourage school improvement through a process of continuous self-study and evaluation, and assure that the school has clearly defined and appropriate educational goals and objectives.

Mann will lead a team of six professionals and a student in the final phase of the accreditation.

INAUGURATION PREPARATIONS — A workman constructs a photo stand as the Statue of Freedom atop the U.S. Capitol dome overlooks the work in Washington Wednesday. The stand will be used by news photographers and television crews who will cover President-elect Jimmy Carter's inauguration.

Udall proposes Carter push for Ford-veto bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Morris Udall says Jimmy Carter could get off to a quick start in the presidency by pushing for passage of some of the bills that were never enacted or fell victim to President Ford's vetoes.

"If I were he," Udall said, "I would take the half-dozen most outrageous Ford vetoes of bills that have been debated and finely honed and say let's do these in February and March. Pick something that has been pawed over and is finely tuned and is ready to roll and put it on the road and move it.

"People like a winner and people like a mover and shaker and this more than anything else would put him in charge in Washington if he can find a quick agenda for that 100 days," Udall said in an interview.

Udall, who was runner-up to Carter in the race for the Democratic nomination, said Carter's relationship with Congress is not yet clear.

"Carter was not all that specific on the issues," the Arizona Democrat said. doubt, a disposition to help washington.

"I suspect that by the middle of next year there are going to be some loud yells and some complaints."

The consumer groups believe he is on their side and many business people supported him because they believed he would back their side, Udall said.

"One or the other of these groups may be disappointed as he has to define himself by making up budgets and by making tough decisions and you're going to see a reaction in the Congress," Udall said.

There will be trouble if, for instance, Carter recommends continuing the B1 bomber or if he recommends "another whopping increase for the Defense Department" in his first budget a year from now, Udall said.

But Carter starts off with a big advantage, he said.

"We've got a president of our party in the White House. There's a strong disposition to work with him, a disposition to give him the benefit of the doubt, a diposition to help him out wherever we can and make his presidency a success."

Korn dogs are a work of art

CHICAGO (AP) — Gustav Korn, who studied painting in his native Budapest, Hungary, and dreamed of perhaps becoming a great artist, now has hundreds of his paintings displayed — all of hot dogs.

Korn, 62, came to this country 20 years ago and went to work for a sausage company, curing corned beef. In his spare time he painted landscapes.

Two years ago one of his bosses noticed Korn's paintings at an art show.

"And the next day I had a new job with the company, a sign painter," said Korn. "I paint hot dogs with and without mustard; or with relish and mustard, or with onions, relish and mustard, most often in a bun.

"But sometimes I paint just the naked weiner or sausage. The colors can be just as exciting as those in a landscape."

He says no two hot dogs are alike. There are variations in their curve, shape and color. "Each one is a new challenge. I have as much fun painting hot dogs as I do painting landscapes," he said.

Korn said his weekly production may be as many as a dozen signs, 2-by-3 feet in size. "It's not a job I can rush or be pushed. For instance, Polish sausages are 20 inches long and are cut in half. My paintings show the cut and it takes time to get it right," he said.

The signs are distributed by the company in a seven-state area for use at hot dog stands, restaurants and delicatessens.

Korn said when he retires in another three years he will devote full time to his hobby of painting landscapes.

IT'S A DAY FOR REMEMBERING

EDITOR'S NOTE: For those who survive our nation's wars, Veterans Day is a time of remembering.

As civilians pause in tribute to the men who did not come back, and the many maimed on foreign battlefields, the veterans are orbiting in a separate world of tense emotion.

There is gratitude for having survived. There is deep sadness over the tragic price paid by others. And there is an almost prayerful thanksgiving that the country now is at peace.

Four valley servicemen, veterans of World War I, World War II, the Korean Conflict and the Vietnam War, share their memories today.

Hospital work in WWI

As an Army medic at Letterman Army Hospital in San Francisco for two and a half years during World War I, Edgar Adamson, 82, Pomona, carried bedpans, filed papers in an office and clerked in the hospital morgue.

A native of Pomona, Adamson volunteered for the Army June 17, 1917. His was one of the first groups inducted for the duration of the war, others having been taken in for two and a half years.

"Most of our work started in 1918 with the end of the war when they started shipping all the wounded home," said Adamson who was also on hand at the hospital for the flu epidemic in 1919.

"After three months basic training at the Presidio in San Francisco," he said, "they rated us nurses and sent us over to the hospital. We were put in the surgery first thing. The old doctor there didn't like us until he found out we weren't really nurses after all."

As a four-stripe sergeant, Adamson made $76 a month. He was discharged from Letterman in September of 1919.

Adamson is a past commander of the Charles C. Rowe Post 30 of the American Legion.

NICK HENDRIKS

Watched harbor attack

Nick Hendriks saw the start of World War II in the Pacific and saw the end of the war in Europe. Hendriks, 58, an employe of the Progress Bulletin for 29 years, enlisted in the Army in April, 1941 and was sent to Hawaii for basic training at Ft. Shafter. As a member of a coast artillery outfit, he watched the attack on Pearl Harbor from his gun emplacement at Red Hill a mile above the harbor.

"It was a normal Sunday morning," said Hendriks. "We had our breakfast as usual and about five minutes before eight we heard the first shot." Following the attack, said Hendriks, fuel and ammunition supplies burned through the night.

"It was like a big fireworks show," he said.

In February, 1943, Hendriks returned to the states where his group was retrained in field artillery while also training another group in coastal artillery. He was sent to Europe in time for some combat toward the end of the Battle of the Bulge. At war's end, his group, the 808th Field Artillery attached to the Ninth Army, was on the North Elbe River in Germany. He left the service in July, 1945 at Ft. MacArthur in San Pedro, the same place he had enlisted.

Hendriks and his wife, Wilma, reside in Pomona. The couple has three grown children, Phyllis, Donald and Janet.

Tank combat in Korea

Assignment as a swing man to the 223rd Regimental Combat Tank Crew during the Korean conflict gave Miguel Padilla, 47, Upland a chance to learn all five positions in the tank.

"I was young and that big tank made me feel strong," said Padilla who, as part of the National Guard's 40th Infantry Division in El Monte was called to active duty Sept. 30, 1950.

Padilla said his tank could travel up to 45 miles an hour but usually went in slower with the gunners firing.

"We'd be assigned certain tanks to cover, and others would be assigned to cover us," he said.

Padilla, who said the worst part of the whole experience for him was the ship ride home, spent four months in combat , always assigned to a different crew.

"The back of the tank was the weakest part, so sometimes, if the enemy fire was heavy, you'd back out. It was slower, but safer," he said. "We'd stop the tank and pick up our wounded. The blood would be smeared all over."

Padilla is commander of Post 2018 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

CHARLES R. SWEETEN

Landed at Chu Lai in '67

Charles R. Sweeten, 33, Pomona went ashore in an amphibious landing with the Marines on May 7, 1967 at Chu Lai, Vietnam.

Sweeten, who had enlisted in the Navy in Ontario in 1961, spent 66 days in Vietnam as a Class A builder with a Seabees mobile battalion. He helped build an airstrip, several hospitals and for 36 days was required to help provide camp "security." This meant learning to fire all the weapons used on guard duty.

"That was about the only time I got shot at," said Sweeten, "and it was rough trying to make a home out of a foxhole and eating C and B1 rations.

"A lot of men got killed or wounded. We could hear Charlie's radio telling us 'Big C will be eating with you tonight.' They could lie on their stomachs in the grass for a week living on a little bag of rice.

"We were on constant alert. Machine gunners around the camp perimeter checked in hourly."

When the day came for Sweeten to go home, he was one of the first to be flown out of the airstrip he had helped build. He and his wife Karla have three children, Jeff 12, John 11, and Lelila, 10. Sweeten is a member of Post 2018 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

More women are joining the army

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The voluntary army of the United States is meeting its enlistment objectives and attracting more and more women into its ranks, reports Sgt. I.C. Lloyd Larmore, who heads the army recruiting office at Ontario, as the nation today observes its traditional Veterans Day.

Larmore, assigned to recruiting duty in September after putting in five years as a drill instructor at Ft. Bliss and Ft. Knox, said that he feels women coming into the army are its biggest asset.

"The old-timers are still cranky about the idea," he said, "but women getting out of high school and college are deciding that they want to see a bit of the world before they get married and settle down."

Larmore explained that as of June 30 the army had enlisted 910 persons over quota, or objective is the word officials like to use.

He thinks that persons enlisting in the army today have goals they have set for themselves.

"There are at least 28 jobs in the army to which you can find a counterpart in civilian life," he said. "Here you go through the same type of training as you would through vocational school."

'Old-timers still cranky, but . . .'

He suggested that a man or woman could be trained as a truck driver, mechanic, heavy equipment operator, electrician, plumber or carpenter, and receive a journeyman's certificate.

Larmore said that the army welcomes doctors and nurses who have completed their training or may enlist after finishing college with the army paying for the last two years of college.

He explained that when a person enlists for three or four years, he knows before he is sworn in whether he will have the station of his choice and whether openings are available for a particular type of training he wants.

Larmore stressed that when a person enlists, "we make sure they are mentally, physically and morally qualified.

"The army wants educated people, preferably with a high school education," he explained. "We tell high school counselors that we would rather have a student finish his schooling than to drop out to enlist."

He stressed that the army is not a dumping ground for persons on parole or drug offenders.

He said that the army wants married men because they are more dependable, and more married couples are sought. The latter may be able to serve their enlistment at the same base after they have completed basic and advanced training.

'We don't need smart alecks'

"We don't get as many couples as we would like," he said. Larmore emphasized that there are many benefits in an army which became completely volunteer in January 1973 when the draft was terminated.

"A person is entitled to 30 days of leave a year and three and four-day passes," he explained. "There is no longer any bed check. It's a five-day, 40-hour work week."

He said that when a man is sworn in and is given his first army haircut, he may choose the style he wants.

"As long as it doesn't stick out over your ears or over the collar," he cautioned.

Larmore said that the KP of wartime is still a chore facing those in basic training, but after that civilians are paid.

"There are no longer mountains of potatoes to peel, because the army is automated," he said.

Larmore emphasized that discipline is "getting rather strict after several years of laxity."

"We don't need smart alecks in the service," he said. "Each person must pull his part of the load."

An incentive the army uses to attract volunteers is the enlistment bonus.

A person who signs up for combat arms receives a $2,500 bonus at the end of his specialized training.

A person who re-enlists gets a check for $6,500, and if he re-ups for six years in combat arms, he receives a whopping bonus of $12,500.

A raw recruit's monthly pay is $374, and it is increased to $417 when he is promoted.

"All of the army man's expenses are taken care of for him, except his cigarettes," Larmore concluded. "And as for women coming into the service, they're a great morale booster. Just their joining an outfit induces men to want to look sharper."

Phillips Ranch:

City council OKs specific area proposal

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

Development of the old Phillips Ranch property, which may bring Pomona close to 2,000 new homes in the next six years, moved a step closer to reality Wednesday night as the Pomona Planning Commission unanimously approved a specific area plan for the property.

Al Lesser, representing Westmor Development Co., which owns the property, told commissioners that up to half of the single family homes will be built in 1977-78.

Base selling price is expected to be no lower than $55,000 each, with a three-year average of $68,000, said Lesser.

The prices quoted by Lesser are a significant increase over the original figures given by the developer, which was $43,000 minimum.

The lower price had met with some resistance by the Pomona City Council, which urged the developer to build homes of higher quality.

That goal has apparently been achieved.

"I think we and the staff have worked out an excellent plan. Now we would like permission to proceed with it," said Lesser.

In addition to the increased price, the area plan approved by the commission significantly changes the character of the basic design of the development.

Whereas the original plan showed the intersection of Dudley and Philadelphia Streets dividing the ranch into four quadrants, the new plan substitutes a half-mile wide circular drive around the central bowl of the 950-acre site.

Dudley Street from the Pomona Freeway and Philadelphia Street from the Corona Expressway are shown as the main access points, and Dudley Street from the Corona Expressway and new roads on the back of the property into Diamond Bar as the secondary accesses.

Commissioners were told that children in the new development will probably initially attend Diamond Point Elementary and Lorbeer Junior High schools, which are both in Diamond Bar, although at least one school site will be designated for the development.

Rationale for use of Diamond Bar facilities is that small children would not be required to cross the Corona Expressway or Pomona Freeway.

About 800 children can be expected in the new development within about two years.

Statistics prepared by the city indicate the typical family income for families in the development will be $20,000 to $35,000 per year.

The next step in the process will be consideration of specific street and lot plans.

Claremont woman's neck is reinjured

A woman recovering from an earlier neck injury suffered reinjury of her neck Wednesday night when her car was hit from behind in a traffic accident in Claremont, police reported.

The victim, Geraldine J. Harmon, 45, of Mira Loma, was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where she was released after treatment.

The accident occurred shortly after 11 o'clock in Indian Hill Boulevard north of First Street. Police reported that Robert Villanuneva, 16, of Claremont, was southbound when his car struck the rear of the woman's auto after she stopped for a traffic signal.

The victim was wearing a neckbrace when the accident occurred.

Rowland Heights to get master plan of growth

The community of Rowland Heights is about to get a new master plan of growth from the Los Angeles County Regional Planning Commission.

County Supervisor Peter F. Schabarum issued a call for residents to serve on an advisory committee that would guide planners in drawing up the proposal.

The general plan will guide the future development of the area by establishing goals and objectives relating to the use of land, housing, traffic circulation, and community design and appearance he explained.

Other factors the volunteer group would consider include seismic and geologic safety, recreation and noise levels.

Regional Planner John Huttinger has been named to guide the plan through completion. He said persons interested in having a voice in the future profile of the community should contact him by telephone at (213) 974-6420.

He said he particularly needs guidance from the advisory committee about local problems and attributes, about goals and objectives that will determine how the area should grow, and about alternate proposals for achieving those objectives.

Rowland Heights already has a general plan drawn 10 years ago, but Huttinger says the community has grown so much that the plan is now obsolete.

He said the commission recently completed new general plans for La Habra Heights and Hacienda Heights.

Schabarum said he hoped to get a wide response from community leaders to the call to be on the committee.

"I'd like to see the advisory committee include homeowners, renters, and businessmen as well as educators who can reflect the social, economic and ethnic makeup of Rowland Heights," he explained.

The general plans are being devised under the Communities Studies Division of the planning commission.

All persons over 45 urged to get flu shots

State health officials now recommend that all persons over age 45 get shots to protect them against the A Victoria strain of influenza virus as well as the swine flu strain.

Persons between 45 and 60 who have already received the swine flu vaccine but not the A Victoria may go back to a clinic and get the second shot. Health officials recommend that they wait one week between shots, however.

This is a change in the program in which the bivalent vaccine was available only to those 60 and over or suffering from a chronic illness.

According to Dr. Martin Finn, deputy director of the Los Angeles Department of Health Services, all free clinics in the county will begin making the bivalent vaccine available to persons 45 years old and older starting today.

Aside from the possibility of an A Victoria outbreak this winter, another reason for recommending that more people get the bivalent vaccine is that the state has received more of this type of vaccine than earlier expected.

While only 2 million doses of the vaccine had been expected, California will receive 3.5 million doses of the bivalent vaccine this year.

The 3.5 million doses is enough to immunize slightly more than half the 6 million Californians who are either 45 and older or who have chronic illnesses.

To date, about 1 million Californians have been vaccinated and the figure in Los Angeles County is 132,826, Dr. Finn said.

La Verne buys maintenance yard

The current headquarters of Chinook International, Inc. will become the new maintenance yard of the City of La Verne shortly.

The La Verne City Council has authorized the purchase of the three-acre parcel of land and the buildings on it for a total of $250,000.

City Manager George Caswell says the new yard will give city crews three times as much yard space and 10 times the roofed area it now has at Sixth Street and White Avenue.

The Chinook land is located near the intersection of First Street and White Avenue. Caswell told the council Monday night that the property has 26,000 square feet of covered floor space which will enable the city to store equipment, maintain offices and set up an indoor shop.

He said the city could pay for the property out of revenue sharing funds, then could establish a one-acre park on the site of the present corporation yard.

Only public doesn't win

Both General Motors and Chrysler Corp. have announced record high profits for the third quarter of this year. The only reason Ford Motor Co. did not join the happy group is that it was the target of a 28-day strike by the United Auto Workers.

What it means to the first two companies, to use the words of their own spokesmen, is that there is "no reason" for a strike against them. Their record profits indicate they should be able to meet the same workers' demands as Ford did.

Plain common sense would seem to dictate that there was no reason for a strike against Ford in the first place. Its profits were also good, up to the strike. But that's water over the dam, and no doubt Ford will begin recouping its lost sales.

Now all this is fine and dandy for the auto companies and their workers. But the car-buying public will foot the bill for this new boost in the incomes of both.

Even though the public is already paying an average of $326 more for a 1977 model, Chrysler chairman John A. Riccardo, whose company has been selected by the UAW as its next target, does not rule out another price increase later in the model year.

One can't help wondering, though, what would have happened if the UAW and the companies had gotten together and announced that in view of the industry's healthy profit picture, the union had decided to renew the old contract and the companies in turn were voting a dividend to the public in the form of lower prices. Or almost as welcome, the same prices.

This would have immediately lowered everybody's cost of living, have spurred sales even more and eventually maybe have generated enough new profits to enable the companies to reward their workers with a bonus later on.

Back in the world of reality. of course, we know that workers and management, in the auto industry or any other, do not consider themselves to be members of the same team. They are antagonists. Nor are they exactly overwhelmed by any sense of responsibility toward the larger public.

As we said, this is fine, so long as the public is willing and able to pay ever higher prices for the product produced.

One can't help wondering, however, whether the automobile industry, and those who are employed by it, are not setting themselves up for a fall someday even worse than the one they experienced during the oil embargo and energy crisis.

System can be beat

The Social Security tax goes up again January 1. That is, the taxable wage base will be increased from the present $15,300 to $16,500.

Even though the tax rate itself will not change, everyone earning more than $15,300 will pay more in Social Security. The maximum tax for those whose earnings will be equal to or greater than the $16.500 base will be $926.25, or $70.20 more than in 1976.

But it's still possible to beat the system, so to speak, according to Washington Report, a publication of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The Chamber notes that as of the end of 1974, some 8,300 of the more than 30 million Americans collecting Social Security benefits were 100 years old or older. Presumably, most of these centenarians have been collecting benefits for 35 years or longer, far and above what they contributed to the system while they worked.

Thus the moral is that no matter how high the Social Security tax goes, you'll come out ahead if you live long enough.

We intend to try, anyway.

Think on these things

Sometimes life seems to be one continual alarm clock. Never a gentle gait — but always at a dog-trot to meet those deadlines. It seems that dawdling along or staring into space is a waste of time — but many great men have known the wisdom of taking time to allow their minds to amble, to drift from thought to thought. This is sitting idly on the sidelines and fishing quietly in the mind for solutions to problems.

Silence and deep thought have great creativity. The mind has time to lay aside the brittle aggressiveness that makes up the usual routine. Even physical weariness passes and the goal ahead isn't so far in the distance. William Mathews said: "Knowledge is acquired by study and observation, but wisdom comes by opportunity of leisure."

The issue of money

Dear Editor:

"It is true" that the Pomona Unified School District teachers have been offered a 7.2 per cent salary increase for the current school year. Since early this year when that offer was made, the per cent increase, the amount of the increase — in other words, money — has not been an issue in any part of the delay in negotiations, the parents boycott, or the teachers walkout.

Since that salary increase is the largest of any school district in the area, don't you wonder why the teachers found it necessary to overwhelmingly (90 per cent to 10 per cent) reject the contract offered by the school board?

Call any teacher, school board member, superintendent, or principal and you can verify that "it is true" that money has not been a factor in the long delay in arriving at a new contract for this school year. Yes, teachers believe there are other issues more important than the per cent salary increase and many, many parents are in full agreement with the teachers on these other issues.

"It is true" that the exorbitant salaries and the huge per cent salary increase of the administrators should be an issue with the community. Why do the administrators merit a larger dollar increase than teachers? The school board increased the superintendents' salaries by a larger percentage than the offer made to the teachers.

Why should the superintendents have an expense allowance in addition to their exorbitant salaries? After all, they are getting paid almost as much as the governor of California. Why has the board been spending extravagant sums of money on remodeling offices when students and teachers have insufficient books and materials and safe conditions are not maintained in the school buildings? "It is true" that it would be more accurate to direct indignation over the issue of money at the administrators.

Scales tipping against 'Tip'

WASHINGTON — Some awkward questions have been raised about the huge campaign chest that House Democratic leader Thomas "Tip" O'Neill has accumulated to fuel his drive to become the next Speaker.

In past columns, we have reported that the big-boned Bostonian has raised over a quarter of a million dollars ostensibly to help his Democratic colleagues with their election campaigns. But his real objective has been to boost his own campaign for the Speaker's chair.

He has spread the boodle around to key Democrats, whose support he sought. Some had no serious opposition and, therefore, no real need for campaign cash.

Now we have learned that generous sums were lavished on his associates not to help them win elections but to wine and dine them, repair their cars and buy them gifts.

What this amounts to is an old-fashioned, jackleg political campaign, one that might not go over so well with the newcomers to Congress who have been elected in this new age of political morality. The voters returned all but three of the 98 freshmen from the last Congress who sought reelection. They will be joined in January by 60 new House members.

They aren't likely to be as tolerant as the old-timers of O'Neill's loose use of cash to curry political support. Thus the money he has distributed to gain the Speakership may backfire and cause him to lose it.

O'Neill's own vouchers reveal that he has raised $267,870 since 1972. He has spent over $23,000 of that amount on car repairs, expensive meals, parties, gifts and unitemized air fares.

At least $11,549 was shelled out to wine and dine O'Neill's friends and associates in such fashionable eateries as the "1789," an exclusive French restaurant in Washington's Georgetown section; the Wayside Inn, a posh place in Chatham, Mass., and Duke Ziebert's, a Washington restaurant patronized by the capital's social elite.

One entry, for example, reads: "Duke Zeibert's, working dinner with U.S. Representatives, $264.70." A "party for Democratic Congressmen, delegates and friends at the Democratic National Convention" cost $3,543.36.

Over $6,400 was spent on unitemized air fares. Another $5,140 went for gasoline and repairs to automobiles owned by O'Neill's staff employees, payments to members of his staff, Christmas cards, Christmas greeting ads in newspapers, donations to Cardinal Cushing memorial dinners and party favors for friends, including 50 silver champagne buckets.

Footnote: A spokesman for O'Neill said only that "all expenses are perfectly in order. The money was spent for meetings of the (campaign) committee. Reciprocal gifts and greeting cards went to contributors."

EMBARRASSING BLUNDER — The embarrassed bosses of the Internal Revenue Service mistakenly gave confidential information on a major tax investigation earlier this year to the people who were under investigation.

The blunder may imperil a delicate investigation, the biggest of its kind in history, of tax evaders who conceal their money in secret Bahamian bank accounts. Here's how it happened:

A defendant in the case, Chicago attorney Burton Kanter, asked to see the files the IRS had on him. Under the Freedom of Information Act, American citizens are entitled to see their own federal files. But information about current investigations, of course, cannot be released.

Yet Kantor received 90 pages of secret documents, which set forth the strategy and progress the tax agents were making on the tax haven investigation. It was a dreadful mistake, a spokesman told us.

At least two House subcommittees got wind of the missent papers and demanded an explanation. IRS officials stewed for more than a month over how to answer the subcommittees. They decided to stonewall.

"We do not believe that our internal notes and memoranda should be furnished to the (subcommittees)" wrote assistant commisssoner S.B. Wolfe to commissioner Donald Alexander's right-hand man, Thomas Glynn.

Then the Los Angeles Times learned that the IRS was stalling the subcommittees. The newspaper's inquiries spurred the IRS into sudden action. Nervous IRS offficials rushed their delayed responses up to Capitol Hill.

Glynn acknowledged to us that the Los Angeles Times' inquiries caused the IRS to "scurry around" and gather the explanations that the subcommittees had requested. The intent was to deliver it to Congress, he admitted, before the story appeared.

But the IRS messenger found no one in the offices of the House Ways and Means Oversight Subcommittee. The staff was meeting in another room upstairs. So the messenger left the material next door in the office of Rep. James Haley, D.-Fla., who was unauthorized to receive it. The same material was delivered, however, to the House Commerce, Consumer and Monetary Affairs subcommittee.

Among all the explanations prepared for Congress was a confidential memo, which declared that the tax haven probe could be endangered by the IRS's blunder. This embarrassing memo was never supposed to have been sent to Capitol Hill. It was, the IRS concluded, another dreadful mistake.

What's next for GOP?

To those Southerners who protested that Jimmy Carter is "too liberal" — now he can point to the numbers and prove that he had to be.

Jimmy Carter owes his election to black Americans.

In the big cities and in the almost — solid South it was the blacks who elected Carter.

Gerald Ford got the most white votes in Dixie — but Carter got most all of the black ones.

Seventy percent of eligible blacks turned out. Ninty percent of them voted for Carter. In black precincts in Alabama, Carter won 20-to-one!

And Carter owes his political life to George Meany who mobilized the big city vote. Of course he has to consider Meany's wishes in making appointments and in the establishment of Administration policy.

But again, to those Southerners who have protested ever since Carter was governor of Georgia that he's "too liberal" — he now can point to the closeness of the numbers and prove that any less liberal and he'd never have made it.

And winning is the name of the game.

Now what about the loyal opposition? What about the future of the GOP? Must it become more liberal — or less?

Carter believed that he could not be any further to the right and win — and he won.

Mr. Ford believed that he could not be any further to the right and win — and he lost.

So the conservatives in the GOP are now insisting that President Ford was wrong; that Reagan would have made the difference between victory or defeat — in either the No. 1 or No. 2 position on the ticket.

Now if Carter — as President — is pulled further to the philosophical left by his ties to labor and to minorities, it would seem inevitable that the GOP must pull further to the right in order to justify the next congressional election two years from now.

But Carter could fool everybody. He has tried to reassure conservative friends that he is one of them — that his deference to liberalism was required by the realities of politics.

Presumably, once the highest office was his he could revert to being himself.

How he conducts his office — and the degree of success with which he administers our foreign and domestic affairs — will dictate the Republican response.

If Carter proves to be the moderate he has privately described himself to be — then the GOP in 1980 will react less vigorously — will be less likely to "go to extremes." And that would seem to favor the candidacy of a John Connally or a James Thompson.

But there is another distinct GOP possibility.

In 1980 — should the country by then want a tested and proved alternative to Carter — the country's best bet and the party's most likely might well be the man who served the Presidency with such dignity for the past two years.

Just in jest

A visitor, recently returned from Russia, reports: "At first I thought that the Russians had weaker kidneys than any other nationality in the world. But finally it dawned on me that since in Russia diners in restaurants are not allowed to smoke while eating, those who feel they just can't survive without a whiff of nicotine make a bee line for the rest room."

Threats to a free press

By EARL G. WATERS

Those who think that the cries of danger to freedom of the press are overstatements by alarmists would do well to note the increasing attention given the subject of regulation of the media by legal scholars. Only last week this column reported on a lengthy article in the Santa Clara Law Review dealing with the doctrine of "Right of Access to Newspapers."

Written by Civil Liberties Union lawyer Michael Gary Chatzky and William Eric Robinson, it held that government policy to foster commerce "must be reaffirmed as swiftly and promptly and decisively as possible if our society is to be as contemporary in its exchange of thoughts as it is in the exchange of products."

That article pointed to the growth of "one-newspaper cities" in the U.S. and discussed the "monopolistic influence" of "newspaper corporations."

In an earlier article by an editor of the Stanford Law Review, Abbott B. Lipsky Jr. compares the regulations of radio and TV by government with the lack of interference with the printed media.

He notes that the publishing business "is the only organized private business that is given explicit constitutional protection." He seems to infer that either the same protection should be extended to the electronic media or the regulations exercised over that should apply to the printed media. For he says "It is a short step from this view to the proposition that any organized business whose principal function is to convey expression, information and opinion, ought also to be accorded the same constitutionally protected status as the publishing industry."

Both Chatzky and Lipsky discuss the few cases which have come before the U.S. Supreme Court. The earliest was the 1943 challenge of FCC regulations by NBC in which the court upheld the licensing regulations on the grounds of limited access to broadcast channels. The next challenge, 25 years later, was that of Red Lion Broadcasting Co. In that case the court again upheld FCC regulations holding that the right to reply was not an unconstitutional interference with editorial discretion.

But in the Miami Herald case the Supreme Court struck down a Florida statute which required newspapers to afford the right of reply to individuals. Lipsky notes the conflict between the two decisions.

". . . it is disturbing that the court was willing to ignore the consequences of editorial regulation — the increase in cost and corresponding reductions in incentives to include material triggering the access or fairness obligation — in the broadcast field, while making these consequences one of the explicit grounds for decision in the print field," he writes.

While observing that the evolution of newspaper technology has led to one of the most important sources of news, the local newspaper, being distributed quite sparingly, he scotches somewhat the view that this creates a monopoly. "Newspapers face significant competition from radio and television, national-distribution weeklies and monthlies, and a wide variety of neighborhood newspapers, trade journals, and pamphlets and flyers addressing particular events and issues."

"Given current uncertainty over the degree of control which a local monopoly newspaper possesses in determining the views reaching its readership, the court is justified in preventing direct government interference in the editorial process," he states.

Nevertheless, Lipsky concludes that "the broader purposes of free expression have come into conflict with the express policy embodied in the first amendment . . . " He adds that "Since the goals of free expression would be as thoroughly frustrated by complete avoidance of government regulation of the media as they would be by complete government control, a sensible way of balancing the benefits and dangers must be found."

Ann Landers

Two front teeth her hang-up

Dear Ann Landers: I saw it again today and said to myself, "This is it! I've got to write to Ann Landers."

The problem is not mine but it has me baffled and I simply must find out from someone WHY they do it. I refer to aging males whose hair has thinned or largely departed. They let the few remaining strands grow long, then they drape them all over the head to create the illusion of hair.

Almost always the draped strands fall out of place, hang down over an ear or down the back of the neck and it looks ridiculous.

These men are not blind. Why don't they realize what they look like? — Pet Peeve From Puerto Rico

Dear Pet: Robert Burns said it best: "O wad some Pow'r the giftie gie us To see ousels as others see us!"

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to comment on the letter from the unhappy "liberated" woman whose 50-year-old husband encouraged her to "do her thing." Later she learned he was "libbing it up" with girls less than half his age. She went on to say he bragged about having sex in automobiles, on the beach and even in a haystack. You called him "a case of arrested development." Why?

My husband and I have been married for 30 years and our sex life is more exciting now than it was on our honeymoon. He taught me not to be a prude — to be willing to experiment and let myself go. We've made love in the car, in the woods, on the beach and in every room in the house. A change of scenery can do wonders!

Fours years ago we put in a swimming pool. We'd heard about skinny-dipping followed up by sex and decided to try it on a very dark night. It was so terrific we've made it a regular thing. Honestly, Ann, that pool has done more for our love-life than any vacation we ever took.

So please don't be so quick to call the guy bonkers. His problem is his wife. She needs to get with it. — All Woman And Glad Of It

Dear Woman: I'm for married people doing anything that pleases them — anyplace, anytime — so long as it's private.

The man you refer to was bragging to his wife about his sex-capades with girls half his age. You call that mature? I don't.

Dear Ann Landers: I may be only 11 years old but I have a problem that is just as horrible as some of the things older people write about.

I have a big space between my two front teeth. People are always asking me if I lost a tooth. It is easier to lie and say "Yes" than to explain things.

I hate this space. I wish I didn't have it. I'm sending my picture so you can see how ugly it is. Will I have the space forever? Please answer my letter even if it isn't about sex. — Just Me

Dear You: I'm glad you sent the picture so I could see your problem.

Don't lie. Tell people it's "just a space." But — you don't have to go through life with it. If your mom will take you to a dentist he (or she) will fix it so you will have a beautiful smile when you're older. No one should go through life with a defect he hates if something can be done to fix it. Good luck, Sweetie.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

More vitamins? Are you nuts?"

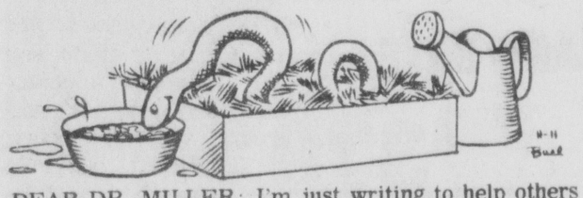
Pet earthworm likes his pablum



DEAR DR. MILLER: I'm just writing to help others who might have pet earthworms, too. I keep Wiggles in some of my Dad's straw and peat moss and don't let it get too dry. I feed him my baby brother's pablum, and he's crazy about it. He's a nice, clean pet and doesn't even like dirty old dirt any more. Thank you. — T.A.

DEAR T.A.: If Wiggles Worm is a Leumbricus terristris, the common earthworm, and were he on a standard diet of dead and decaying leaves, he would (like a robin) digest his food better with a certain amount of grit in his diet. Still, on his more highly refined baby food he's obviously doing well without it. Congratulations on doing so well with Wiggles, and thanks for the suggestions.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I was just wondering if mountain lions have territories anything like our old Tom Cat here does. — G.C.

DEAR G.C.: Male mountain lions make up territorial boundaries of sorts, if they're given the time to accomplish this. Where the males are subjected to heavy hunting pressure, specific territorial boundaries aren't established and/or maintained.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I understand this heartworm thing is really spreading and getting out of hand in dogs. I know mosquitoes carry it, but we don't have many of those around our place. What about fleas? We sure had plenty of those this year. — T.L.

DEAR T.L.: While they cause numerous canine and feline problems, fleas fortunately are an unlikely carrier of heartworms. Mosquitoes, over 60 different species of them, are the culprits who carry and transmit heartworms.

DEAR DR. MILLER: When a kitten has a big stomach, does that mean she's pregnant? — C.N.

DEAR C.N.: Depends on her condition (otherwise), age and opportunity. A kitten of three months of age who's actually a little thin in most parts of the body but more than ample around the abdomen is, more than likely attempting to cope with a gastro-intestinal problem. Parasites are often the basic culprit. A kitten twice that age could, in rare cases, have a pregnancy problem instead. A female cat of nine months who has access to the great outdoors — and all contained therein — and who assumes an ever-greater girth over a week or two but feels great otherwise, is more likely to be packing a pregnancy rather than a parasitic problem.

The day the roof fell in

Sonja Sellars came in breathless at a party the other night and made the most incredible announcement. It seems her husband, Russell, was walking around in the crawl space over their house when he fell through the ceiling.

Naturally, we were shocked.

"Was your ceiling damaged?" asked Bob.

She nodded. "Came all the way through it. There's a hole in it big enough to sling a camel. We're just sick about it."

"Don't I know," commiserated Lois. "One of the kids rammed into the wall with a tricycle and it took four weeks to get it fixed. You just can't get people to work anymore. Especially on small jobs."

"Someone get Sonja a drink," said Les. "She looks pretty shaken."

"You'd be shaken too if you were sitting there watching Alistair Cooke and all of a sudden your husband knocked the glass out of your hand with his body."

"I hope you can get the same paint," interrupted Lois. "We had a special mixed paint and you know when the lights are on, you can see the exact spot we had to patch. That just makes me ill."

"What was he doing up there in the first place?" asked Sally. "Your crawl space doesn't have a floor."

"I know," said Sonja, "but he's always been agile on the rafters before. He was after that cardboard turkey that we always use for a centerpiece for Thanksgiving."

"It takes one to know one," sniffed Sylvia, popping a canape in her mouth.

"So, were the kids upset?" asked Sally.

"They were at first, but then I explained to them that Daddy was just being silly and calling attention to himself. I gave them a cookie and they settled down."

"Hey, something I've always wanted to know," asked Ward. "Is the ceiling a composition? I've always suspected the builder got away with something cute. Another drink?"

"I don't think so," said Sonja. "Oh, I know I'm being hysterical, but do you know what I'm really worried about? It's sleeping in that house tonight and knowing that the mice have a freeway through to my bedroom. Oh well, I've got to go."

"Incidentally," yelled Les, "how's Russell?"

"He's in the car. He thinks he's broken a leg and a couple of ribs. We'll know as soon as I get him to the hospital."

"Tell him we asked about him," they yelled in unison.

President hanged murderers twice

Can you identify which of the U.S. presidents earlier had served as a hangman? Grover Cleveland was the fellow. As the onetime sheriff of Erie County, N.Y., he not once but twice officially executed murderers.

If you're still trying to make a dollar, why don't you patent your idea about how to keep deer off roads? Oddly, despite considerable research nobody yet has figured out a way to do that thing.

Another little known historical fact is that it was Rezin P. Bowie who honed and owned the original Bowie Knife before he gave it to his brother James. Credit James with making it famous, that's all.

LEWIS AND CLARK

Q. "Did Lewis and Clark leave any physical evidence of their famous expedition out west?"

A. Hardly any. Clark chipped his name and the date July 25, 1806, onto a big rock called Pompey's Pillar near Billings, Mont., and that's about it.

Certainly Janie Franey of Filer, Ida., merits membership in the "My Name Is a Poem" club, too.

Those scholars who make a study of such matters contend there lived long ago a 100-foot-long shark called the Cladoselache which was made up mostly of meanness.

Our Language man is adding to his collection of twisted adages. For instance, a Pennsylvanian offers: "Well, you can't have anything!" "Live and yearn" "Fast or famine." "You buttered you bed, now lie in it." And: "It's not whether you win or lose — it's how much!"

OVERHEAD FANS

Those big overhead fans of the sort used in years past to cool hotel lobbies and library rooms and old southern mansions in the summer make pretty good heaters, too. Understand they're being reinstalled in barns and factories and warehouses. They grab the warmer air that collects against the ceiling and dispatch it downward, that's why.

Penalties for drunken driving in South Africa can go up to 10 years in prison. In Turkey, as previously reported, said driver is taken 20 miles away and forced to walk home under armed escort. But San Salvador is where it really gets rough. The convicted drunken driver there can be executed by a firing squad.

Diabetes' effect on pregnancy

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a female, 23 years old, 5 feet 2 and weigh 110 pounds. I have diabetes which is now being controlled by diet.

I have been reading about diabetes and trying to learn all I can but I can't find anything concerning a diabetic pregnancy. I have two children and would like to have more. They were all right as they were born before this disease developed.

I am worried that the fetus might not recieve proper nourishment and am apprehensive about any complications that might occur during delivery. I don't know if it would be safe to nurse the new baby or not. Please give me some information on this subject.

DEAR READER — Your diabetes is mild or you would not be able to manage it with diet alone. That decreases the likelihood that you will have any problems with another pregnancy. In any case anyone with diabetes who is pregnant should have very careful monitoring during the pregnancy. The need for insulin is usually decreased during the first tri-mester of the pregnancy, and returns to about the same requirement during the last two tri-mesters. In your case that should mean that you can sail through the pregnancy without the problems that more severe diabetics have.

Your baby may be larger than usual as often happens in diabetic mothers. Sometimes that causes some difficulties in delivery.

The baby will not be malnourished if you do not develop complications during pregnancy. Remember that the baby will have its own insulin-forming glands. In fact these are sometimes enlarged at birth, producing an excess amount of insulin, if the mother is diabetic. This sometimes requires giving the newborn baby extra glucose by vein for a time until the insulin-forming glands regress to normal. The glucose prevents the newborn baby from having low blood sugar problems.

The complications from diabetes are increased in the mother as a result of pregnancy. It depends a lot on whether the diabetes is the "juvenile type" beginning in childhood or the "adult onset type." And it depends upon how severe it is.

Many diabetic women, particularly if the disease is of long standing, are especially prone to toxemia of pregnancy, with fluid retention, high blood pressure and other harmful consequences. That is one reason a diabetic mother needs to be monitored carefully throughout her pregnancy.

Obviously diabetic women can and do have normal children. You already had the underlying cause of your diabetes during your first two pregnancies even though the disease was not advanced to the point it could be diagnosed.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-10, Diabetes: The Sweet Sickness, the first of two issues on diabetes since you want information about the disease. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I must add that you are fortunate to have two uneventful pregnancies and in more advanced diabetics the advisability of having more pregnancies is often questioned by diabetic specialists, not just for the baby's sake but because of the risks the mother takes.

The power of great ideas

The greatest power in the world is the power of a creative idea. All success begins with a dream.

One of America's great teachers was Thomas S. Kelly. The secret of his effective life, according to Rufus Jones, began in Kelly's freshman year at college when in a moment of high inspiration he vowed: "I'm going to make my life a miracle!"

Someone said, "There are no great people only great ideas." Indeed, you can often measure the size of a person by the size of the dream that drives him.

Success begins with an act of imagining. "If you don't have a dream, how can dreams come true?" Begin now by using this God power within yourself to paint a picture of what you would like to accomplish.

Reject all impossibility thoughts, all "handicapped concepts," and all "disadvantage complexes." Imagine yourself as a friend of the mighty, a partner of the wealthy and a coworker of God.

Not a few people fail because they have neglected to visualize in detail what they were trying to achieve. If you have a confused and muddled picture of what you are going after, do not be surprised if you fail. Therefore, you must form a detailed mental picture of your dream.

After you know what you want, you must censor these desires. The moral questions must be raised at this point:

"Is this right?"

"Would it help people who are hurting?"

"Can I ask God to be my partner in this venture?"

When you get a "Yes" answer to these all-important questions, then you are on your way.

So, you can succeed if you begin with a dream, think positively, visualize a detailed picture of your dream, and ask the right questions. Success that brings fulfillment and happiness can become a reality for you.

Community keeping mouth shut about Caril Ann Fugate

ST. JOHNS, Mich. (AP) — This town of 7,000, located in fertile farmland about 20 miles north of Lansing, is very protective of its own — and it considers Caril Ann Fugate one of its own.

Miss Fugate spent 18 of her 32 years in a Nebraska prison for her part in a murderous rampage across Nebraska and Wyoming in 1958 that left 11 persons dead. Her companion, Charles Starkweather, was executed.

"She's paid her dues," said Vern, a bartender at Bruno's on the town's main street. "So we all hope she makes good. We keep this thing real closed around here.

"Why don't you boys just leave her alone?" Vern asked icily during an interview.

Miss Fugate always maintained her innocence, contending Starkweather forced her to accompany him on the eight-day killing spree when she was just 14 years old.

After her parole last spring, Miss Fugate came to live in St. Johns mainly because of Robert Mann and his wife, a couple from the nearby community of Bath, who took an intense interest in her after seeing "Growing Up in Prison," a 1972 television documentary about her.

Mann said he does not now, or ever, want to talk about Miss Fugate or his role in bringing her here.

"It just isn't anybody's business. Okay?" Man said.

Mann's attitude seemed to speak for this whole community.

"As long as she keeps her nose clean, it's okay with us," said a woman working in Lambert's Fabric Shop, across Clinton Avenue from Bruno's. The woman would not give her name. "Frankly, we're bored to death by all this fuss."

Last month, when a reporter from a national tabloid came asking about her, his presence was reported to police by citizens in every town he visted — towns like Eureka, Dewitt and Fowler.

Miss Fugate has been besieged by requests for interviews from many reporters and organizations, according to Robert Steinman, her parole officer.

"All I can say is that she's living with some people in Clinton County and doing clerical work in an office," Steinman said, noting that Miss Fugate is forbidden to give interviews without written permission from the Nebraska Parole Board.

"Any information other than that would be doing her an injustice," Steinman said. "I'm helping her make it in society and helping to make things go as smoothly as possible. So far, it's been fine. Real fine."

Miss Fugate is no recluse, but she does guard her privacy.

NEEDED LIKE A HOLE IN THE HEAD — Woman shows a copy of the so-called Tumi, left, an instrument of skull operations used about 1,200 years ago in Peru, and the skull at right which is said to be from an Inca who survived his skull operation. The items are part of an exhibition at Duesseldorf, West Germany, where remedies and doctors' instruments of the past 4,000 years are on display under the title, "Medicine Developments."

Man who killed eight with car spared prison

CELINA, Ohio (AP) — "We had nothing to gain because all our kids are dead," Irene Sommer said. "The poor guy has to live with it for the rest of his life."

Mrs. Sommer was responding to the punishment handed down Tuesday to John Kremer, driver of a car that plowed into a group of teen-agers last spring, killing eight of them. Her son, Kenneth, was one of the victims.

Kremer, a 21-year-old meat cutter, was spared a prison term by a judge who felt Kremer would be punished enough by having to "live with" the accident. He had pleaded no contest to one count of vehicular homicide during a half-hour trial in Municipal Court.

Judge James Myers suspended Kremer's driver's license for one year and fined him $300 for court costs. He'll be able to drive to and from work after 30 days

"I don't think anything can be gained from time in jail," Myers said. "You have created your own jail, one you will have to live with the rest of your life. I think that is an adequate penalty."

Mrs. Sommer said she agreed with the judge. "I felt sorry for the boy — that he had to be the victim of something like that," she said. "He made one mistake and he's paid dearly for it."

Kremer first pleaded innocent to eight counts of vehicular homicide, one count of failure to obey a stop sign and failure to stop at an assured clear distance ahead. But when all but one count of vehicular homicide were dismissed, he pleaded guilty.

Maximum penalty for the single charge — a first-degree misdemeanor — was a jail term of six months and fine of up to $1,000 or both.

The eight teen-agers were standing along the road at an intersection March 7 after getting out of their automobiles to decide where they would head next in their celebration of a basketball victory.

The highway patrol said Kremer's car came over a hill from the opposite direction and went through the intersection.

"There's no question left that Kremer failed to stop at the stop sign and failed to maintain clear distance," Judge Myers said.

"Very particularly I feel that the cars on the east side of the road and these teen-agers should not have been there. Nevertheless, he did do something he should not have done."

Amphetamines ban urged by doctors' panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amphetamines should be totally banned because their dangers far outstrip their ability to promote weight loss, several doctors told a federal panel.

The drugs, known by nicknames like "speed," and "uppers," were prescribed 25 million times in 1975 for weight loss, the doctors told a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.

Nelson has already let it be known that he favors banning the drugs.

"There is no question that there is far more harmfulness from the use of amphetamines than benefits," said Dr. Lester Grinspoon of the Harvard Medical School in testimony Tuesday.

Dr. James J. Nora said some potentially dangerous drugs like birth control pills filled a pressing social need and justified their use. There is no pressing need for amphetamines, he said.

Grinspoon said most studies showed that patients who take prescribed amphetamines generally show a quick initial weight loss. But he said that is usually the case with any weight loss program because the patient is enthusiastic and dedicated at the beginning.

He said amphetamine users, when they stop taking their pills, often feel depressed. They eat to make themselves feel better and often gain back more weight than they originally lost.

Prolonged use of the drugs can result in psychosis, panic and confusion, the doctors said. Some inconclusive studies have linked amphetamines to birth defects.

The doctors testifying said there was little likelihood that a legal ban on amphetamines would eliminate them from the scene. Underground chemists can easily produce them for sales to students and truckers and other users who want the pills to help stay awake.

IN BETTER DAYS — The Edmund Fitzgerald, shown as it sailed through Detroit, was known for its ore cargo record for the Great Lakes, carrying 30,000 tons of taconite pellets in 1968. The ship sank in a storm on Lake Superior on Nov. 10, 1975 taking its crew of 29 to a watery grave 530 feet below the surface.

Report on '75 ship's sinking near completion

DETROIT (AP) — A sudden storm with 90 mile per hour winds and 30 foot waves swept Lake Superior one year ago tonight, sending the ore carrier Edmund Fitzgerald and its 29 crew members to underwater graves. The precise cause is still unknown.

"I've never seen anything like it in my life..." were among the last words radioed by the Fitzgerald's master, Capt. E. M. McSorley.

A U.S. Coast Guard Marine Board of Inquiry was convened to investigate the cause of the sinking. Capt. James Wilson of the Coast Guard's Cleveland Station, a member of that board, said its report is near completion, but he would not say whether the report discounts rumors of unsafe overloading, faulty inspections or other unofficial explanations.

The Arthur M. Anderson was following the Fitzgerald during the storm. Its captain, Jesse Cooper, recalled that McSorley radioed he was taking on water and beginning to list to one side, but that the ship's pumps were working.

Soon after Cooper received that message, the Fitzgerald, carrying 26,000 tons of taconite ore pellets, sank. Pictures show its silent remnants: a bow section mired in mud, the stern resting upside down and segments of the midsection strewn about the lake's floor 530 feet below the surface.

The mystic fury of the Great Lakes is known to the Rev. Richard Ingalls of Mariner's church in Detroit. In the early hours following the Fitzgerald's loss, Father Ingalls did "what we always do" — opened the church's doors, read prayers and, later in the day, tolled his bell 29 times for the dead crewmen.

Peter Pulcer, a retired captain of the Fitzgerald, says: "I damn near fell over when I heard it went down. I knew quite a few of them (the crew). But there's nothing stronger than wind and water."

Pulcer served 45 years in eight boats but says the Fitzgerald was his favorite. "I liked the 'Fitz' — she was a good ship."

'Let me die,' is convicted killer's high court plea

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Convicted killer Gary Mark Gilmore urged the Utah Supreme Court in person Wednesday to let him die before a firing squad as scheduled at 8 a.m. Monday.

"I believe I was given a fair trial, and I think the sentence was proper, and I'm willing to accept it like a man and wish it to be carried out without delay," said Gilmore, who appeared before the high court in a white prison clothes and handcuffs.

The court made no immediate decision on Gilmore's request to reverse its stay of execution but accepted California attorney Dennis Boaz as counsel for the Gilmore, who says he doesn't want to spend the rest of his life in jail. That relieved the two court-appointed attorneys who had filed Gilmore's appeal over his protests, resulting him him seeking a new attorney.

Boaz joined Deputy Atty. Gen. Robert Hansen in a plea that the execution be conducted on schedule, even though the court had issued an indefinite stay Monday after receiving the appeal.

"It is unique and ironic that the attorney general's office and my client take the same position on this matter," Boaz said.

He said it is "not a case where my client has some kind of suicide pact with the state, or perverse death wish, or is in an irrational state of mind." He described Gilmore as a man ready to accept responsibility for his act.

One of the two attorneys who filed the appeal, Craig Snyder, told the court it should not rule on such substantial questions without first looking at the record. He said the decision Gilmore made "has placed tremendous emotional stress on him," adding anyone might act irrationally in such a case.

"What Mr. Gilmore is doing in this case is tantamount to suicide," Snyder said.

Justice Albert H. Ellett interrupted Snyder at one point, saying, "You're no longer in it. You've been relieved, supplanted. We've got to decide whether to set aside your appeal.

"Why don't you accept in good graces his firing you like he's accepted in good graces the responsibility of the court?" Ellett asked.

Boaz acknowledged to reporters after the hearing he came to Utah as a freelance writer and was only able to see Gilmore at the prison when he said he wanted to act as his attorney. Boaz, described to the court as a former county prosecutor in California, declined to say where he lived.

Kool-Aid school program hit by consumer groups

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Kool-Aid makers are exploiting children and encouraging them to consume too much sugar by offering money to schools for empty packages of the powdered beverage mix, two nonprofit groups say.

Consumers Union and the Committee on Children's Television asked the state Board of Education and the state schools superintendent Tuesday to ban the Kool-Aid campaign sponsored by General Foods Corp. from California classrooms.

The request was a supplement to a petition from the two groups last month criticizing Post Cereals, a subsidiary of General Foods, for an offer to trade sports equipment for cereal boxtops. The groups asked the board of education to keep the program out of public schools.

After receiving the Post Cereals petition, state schools Supt. Wilson Riles issued nonbinding guidelines including considerations such as benefits to a school, comparative expense, school objectives and school influence in favor of one company to the exclusion of others. The state school board is scheduled to consider the matter Thursday.

General Foods in a statement Tuesday called the criticism of Kool-Aid "nonsensical and distorted."

In its statement, General Foods asked rhetorically whether the groups' next target would be sales of cookies by Scouts — "Or possibly they will seek FCC (Federal Communication Commission) action to prevent the producers of 'Sesame Street' from using the Cookie Monster character."

The Kool-Aid program will be tested in Washington, D.C., Kansas City and St. Louis for six months beginning this Thursday, General Foods said. For each label or empty package turned in, a child's school will get five cents with the money to be used for class trips or other school programs.

The maximum reimbursement is $8 per child, representing the return on 160 envelopes or canister labels.

"They might as well send in four rotten teeth, too," said Sally Williams of the Committee on Children's Television, a nonprofit corporation that gives advice on television for children which filed the petition with Consumers Union, the nonprofit publisher of Consumer Reports.

The groups complained that the program lacks educational value, turns children into sales agents through peer pressure and encourages them to consume too much sugar. They said a child who drank enough Kool-Aid to get $8 for a school could ingest as much as 65 pounds of sugar in six months.

General Foods said Kool-Aid was fortified with Vitamin C and added that the two groups "should devote themselves to constructive actions rather than misguided accusations and media events which, if successful, would only penalize the very students and schools they supposedly want to help."

IRS to release rulings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service will soon be making public all the thousands of tax rulings it issues each year, although the IRS will not identify the corporations or individuals involved.

In the past, the IRS revealed most rulings only to its agents or to corporations and taxpayers who sought guidance on a specific tax issue.

The House Ways and Means Committee, which wrote the disclosure requirement into the new tax law, expressed concern that "the private ruling system has developed into a body of secret law known only to a few members of the tax profession."

"Additionally, the secrecy surrounding letter rulings has generated suspicion that the tax laws may be used by the 'influential' to their advantage, and that the tax laws are not being applied on an even-handed basis," the committee said.

The new disclosure policy is expected to begin by March.

The IRS handles about 30,000 rulings a year. Half involve routine changes in accounting periods and methods. The rest are substantive interpretations of tax laws made in response to queries from taxpayers and from IRS auditors or agents working on complicated cases.

Traditionally, where the IRS felt a ruling or piece of technical advice was of general interest, it made its position public in a formal ruling without identifying the parties involved. It did that 626 times in 1974. The rest of the rulings it kept secret.

One controversial letter ruling came in International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.'s 1969 merger with the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. The IRS ruled that Hartford's stockholders did not have to pay taxes on the appreciated value of their stock in exchanging it for shares of IT&T.

In 1974, following attention focused on the merger by opponents, the IRS changed its mind and ruled that the shareholders would have to pay taxes that IT&T estimated would cost them $30 million. The issue is still being disputed by the company.

Congress was also prodded into action by a suit brought by Tax Analysts and Advocates, a nonprofit research institution.

A federal court in Washington, D.C., ruled last year that the letter rulings were public information and ordered the IRS to make public all letter rulings, including the names of the parties involved, issued since passage of the Freedom of Information Act in 1967.

But the court ruling never took effect. The new law makes it moot.

The new law generally requires deletion of the names, but James S. Byrne of Tax Analysts said he feels that will not be a problem.

"On the big cases we figured we could piece together the names of the parties involved," said Byrne. "And in many ways we got more than the courts gave us."

Changing tastes put crimp in France's beret industry

PARIS (AP) — The beret, once worn by millions of Frenchmen, has gone out of style in France. A contemporary of accordion music, the Can Can, Inky-Dinky-Parlez-Voo and bicycle-riding gendarmes, the flat felt cap is the victim of changing tastes and, perhaps, umbrella wounds.

French production has dwindled to half in 18 years, and two-thirds of the nation's beret manufacturers have disappeared since the end of World War II, or have gone into ski hats and ear muffs.

The Prince of Wales once wore a beret and so did Marc Chagall, the painter. When modern jazz was called bebop every hipster had to have one to look like Dizzy Gillespie. And in this country they were everywhere: the recent French passion for documentary films about the forties shows a world peopled by beret wearers, from schoolchildren cheering Marshal Petain to the Resistance fighters pictured in Nazi wanted posters.

Now, even in the misery of daily November rains, a beret hunter could spend a day in the Paris Metro without finding more than a handful of them. Maybe a provincial in town for an agricultural show. Maybe a tourist, looking as if somebody should charcoal in a moustache to complete the Lucky Pierre picture.

The five remaining French beret manufacturers now make about 1.8 million berets a year, 60 per cent of them for men and about half the total for export. Exports to the United States have increased marginally.

J.V. de Boisseson, director of Laulhere, a manufacturer which accounts for half of the French production, said in an interview that without military orders the business would be in vastly worse shape. The U.S. Army's Special Forces units wear green berets and this part of their uniform has become their nickname.

"It's no secret that about half the market has disappeared in the last two decades. Things are stabilized now, but the people who wear berets are not exactly trend-setters — farmers, retired people. We've thought of ways of promoting sales; you know, weekends in the woods, making them in different colors. But the old, dark one is finished."

Cadets reject officer board, vote for own

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — West Point cadets have voted to abolish a review board of officers and instead try alleged violators of the honor code themselves.

The chairman of the cadet honor committee Wednesday called the change "a kind of new beginning" and said it puts the "real essence of the honor system into cadet hands."

The revised trial procedure — an outgrowth of the biggest cheating scandal in the academy's 174-year history — was approved in a referendum Tuesday night by 85 per cent of the 4,044-cadet corps, according to Michael Iv, chairman of the cadet honor committee.

The referendum, which the honor committee had been drafting since late August, takes effect immediately. It was presented to the corps for voting after the office of the Army's Judge Advocate General in Washington, D.C., approved its legality.

Being judged by the review board of officers had been a right of cadets accused by 12-cadet honor committees, which have had the power only to make formal allegations on a unanimous vote. The new system requires 10 votes to return an allegation.

FPC ruling blocks utility rate hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer group estimates that the typical American family will save $42 per year as the result of a Federal Power Commission ruling.

The FPC refused this week to make electric and gas customers pay the construction costs of new power plants and pipelines before those facilities start delivering service.

The FPC action does not reduce utility rates. Instead, it blocks an increase that would have resulted if the FPC had followed the industry's urging to let power companies include in their rates the cost of power plants still under construction.

The commission permitted electric utilities to charge consumers for the costs of facilities that are being built to reduce environmental pollution or to convert oil or natural gas-burning power plants to other fuels, primarily coal.

The commission estimated that this allowance would increase wholesale electric rates about 1 or 2 per cent in the next few years.

Consumers eventually pay for new facilities in their electric rates but only after the facilities are completed and in service.

A citizens group called Environmental Action Foundation estimated last March that the utilities' proposal would increase electric utility rates almost 15 per cent, at a cost of some $8 billion per year to consumers, or about $42 a year increase in the average residential electric bill through the 1970s.

The FPC did not estimate the potential costs of the utilities' proposal.

The Edison Electric Institute, an industry group, expressed disappointment at the FPC's decision.

The institute's president, Don Crawford, issued a statement noting that despite improvement in the finances of electric utilities, "much more progress is needed to restore their full financial health."

The FPC decision opened the door for individual utilities to secure permission to charge customers for major construction still in progress, but only if the company could prove that it is "in severe financial stress."

The FPC said it would consider such hardship situations on a case-by-case basis.

Social Register changes style

NEW YORK (AP) — So much for tradition, my dear. They've changed the Social Register, that compendium of high society in 13 of the nation's cities.

Time was each of the cities had its own volume, Town & Country magazine notes in its November issue. Next month, there'll be just one.

That's another blow for New Yorkers, whose members of high society long have classed themselves apart.

"We want to try something new," a woman at the Register explained. She declined to give her name, explaining, "We're not allowed to do that."

The volume, she continued, will cost $28.50, far cheaper than the $290 "subscribers" used to spend for all the Social Registers.

"We don't know how popular it'll be," the woman said, acknowledging for the first time that Malcolm Forbes, the successful publisher, was now the chief stockholder of the black-and-orange social book.

$6 billion welfare cut urged by group

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than $6 billion could be saved each year by simplifying and cutting down the forms used by welfare recipients, the Commission on Federal Paperwork estimated Friday.

The commission said much of the savings would occur through the reduction of fraud and by reducing overpayments. Reduced administrative costs also would account for a large chunk of the projected savings.

The commission made the projection as it announced it had reached an agreement with the New York State Department of Social Services to pursue such an approach. The agreement does not mean that New York will immediately adopt the proposed approach but only that it will work with the commission to reduce factors limiting implementation.

The commission proposal calls for the use of a simplified form that would be used by all state and federal agencies to determine whether an applicant is qualified for assistance. Currently, each agency uses a different form. Few will accept the form used by another agency for determining if an applicant is eligible for the benefits administered by the agency.

In fact, many agencies are precluded by regulations from accepting the form of another agency, a commission spokesman said.

Women agents

NEW YORK (AP) — The chances your life insurance agent will be a woman are growing, the Institute of Life Insurance reports.

The proportion of women agents had risen to nine per cent by the end of 1975, up from two per cent six years earlier.

Joyce Brothers

Women in the Army

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: We're an Army family and my son's girl friend is trying to get into West Point. My husband always liked this girl but now when she comes to dinner, the dining room becomes a battlefield. My husband feels women belong in the home and should stay out of the Armed Forces. He says they'll wreak havoc with the military and it's a waste of money since women couldn't possibly fight a war. Should I agree with him, take my son's and his girl friend's side, or just apply first aid and be a Florence Nightingale? — W.K.

Dear W.K.: Of course, you have to decide on your own position, but even after you do, you could apply bandages to both sides if the fighting gets that rough. Women serving in armies is nothing new. They've been doing an excellent job in Israel for some time and women have fought under various flags. If a woman can carry a baby, or a heavy bag of groceries, she probably can carry a rifle in combat, or toss a hand grenade.

I suspect, however, that women are somewhat more apt than men to resist killing and violence, if they can find another solution to a problem.

According to Dr. Leon Salzman, clinical professor of psychiatry at the Albert Einstein Medical School in N.Y., women by nature are not softer or more sentimental than men. If taught, they would be just as effective as men on the battlefield.

Seriously, it's healthy for each member of the dinner table squadron to be able to express his or her views. If armies could do this, if they could talk it out, there probably would be no need for damaging blows. Violence usually results from a breakdown in communications.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Our second eldest child has always been a problem about going to bed and will never obey the rules. It's a constant hassle with him so that each night my wife and I go to bed angry. We've always tried to treat our four children exactly the same, without favoritism. What can we do with one who simply won't comply? — H.R.

Dear H.R.: I believe parents make a big mistake in trying to treat their children "exactly the same." Each child is a separate individual. What is right and important for one child may be very wrong or unimportant for another. This doesn't mean that a parent is showing favoritism. He treats his children fairly and explains that just as they all wouldn't necessarily want exactly the same toy, or to attend the same college, neither would they all have the same needs all through life.

Each child needs different amounts of sleep, which may vary at different periods in his life. One sleep study revealed that those who need longer periods of sleep are usually more introverted and creative, but may be found wanting when it comes to sustained work. Short sleepers are more likely to be active, outgoing, flexible and sociable.

This son simply may not need as much sleep as the other. I'd suggest that, if possible, he have a separate place to sleep so that he can go to bed, or go to his room, at the set time but leave his light on longer. Eventually, he'll regulate his own sleep time. As long as he retires and is quiet during the "sleep hours" then he should be given a certain amount of freedom to meet his own physical requirements.

Faye Dunaway:

Hollywood's Sultry "Survivor"

How does a nice Southern gal manage to scale the heights of stardom, plummet to the depths of despair, yet come up a two-time Oscar nominee who refuses to be typecast?

There are a lot of beautiful young actresses — and then there is Faye Dunaway. Elegant and golden as a buttery iceberg, she's the kind of star who brings back memories of another Hollywood era. She's rumored to throw temper tantrums and have a past that reads like something out of The Perils of Pauline. Are all those blonde bombshell stories true? After all, how could a hard-working, compulsive perfectionist get herself into so much trouble? Read our in-depth interview with Faye Dunaway, a woman whose career is jumping — for the second time. Find out why she thinks her hot past will stand her in good stead as she scales the heights toward a cool future once again. She'll talk about her brand new marriage, her belief in the American dream, her experiences with producers, and her one-of-a-kind grapefruit and sandbags diet.

Truth told about researchers

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The State of Iowa paid an American Indian group $31,911 for alcoholism research that was available elsewhere for a 13-cent stamp, says the state auditor.

"The state has not benefited from this research project," said Jeff Voskans, head of the Iowa Health Department's Divison on Alcholism.

Auditor Lloyd Smith said his staff, in an attempt to evaluate the project, asked for information from the National Clearinghouse on Alcoholism.

"For the total investment of 13 cents for postage, we obtained more complete and detailed information than was provided by this grant," Smith said.

Voskans said he was "greatly concerned" about the situation and would work with the attorney general's office to get the money returned.

The group, Social Science Research Consultants, was set up by the Association of American Indian Social Workers, Inc., of Sioux City in September, 1975.

Officials of the association could not be reached for commnt.

The consultants were to compile and publish a summary of research and experiments on alcoholism in Iowa between 1970 and 1975.

An audit showed the state granted $31,911 and the Association of American Indian Social Workers, Inc. — for which the state has no record of incorporation — contributed $202.

The project was $566 in the red — for federal and state payroll taxes — when the state alcoholism division refused further funding last June.

The audit showed that $15,699 was paid out in salaries, including $4,290 to the project's financial officer. Postage and supplies amount to $5,348.

Rent of $1,350 was paid to the association, which said it was based at Morningside College in Sioux City. The college, however, listed its tenant as National American Indian Planning Project.

The project's director, Katie Danner, received $1,043 for travel "and it appears it was not related or necessary for the completion of materials as set forth in the grant," the audit said.

Auditors said consultant fees were paid to professional staff members of Morningside College — including $1,211 to persons listed as student analysts — but that there were "no contracts, time records or documentation" to support the payments.

The Iowa secretary of state said his office had no record of incoporation for the association and the audit said "it would appear this is a nonexisting corporation, operating illegally within the State of Iowa."

ANASTASIA'S REACTION — Mrs. John E. Manahan of Charlottesville, Va. calls a new book supporting her claim that she is Anastasia, Grand Duchess of Russia, a "mess." The book, "The File on the Tzar," by two BBC journalists, says that all the female members of the royal family survived the July 16, 1918 execution of the Czar's family.

High turkey production will cut holiday costs

CHICAGO (AP) — Main courses for Bicentennial Thanksgiving dinners will be the most plentiful ever and will cost less than in recent years, turkey and meat industry spokesmen say.

Turkey production is at an all-time high — 138 million gobblers raised for consumption in 1976. "We'll see a lot of 49 cents-a-pound features for Thanksgiving," says Roy Munson, executive secretary of the Minnesota Turkey Growers Association.

That price, he said, is down a dime a pound from last year and nearly 25 cents lower than in 1973.

If holiday chefs prefer a roast, the 1976 record cattle slaughter of an estimated 42.5 million head also has resulted in relatively low beef prices.

"The consumer's the one who benefits all the way around," Howard Madsen, director of economics and statistics for the American Meat Institute, said in an interview Monday.

He said the red meat industry normally loses some business during the holiday season, since more than 60 per cent of all turkeys are sold during that period.

But this fall, he said, "turkeys will be an exceptionally good buy because of their overproduction. That means they may hurt beef sales even more than usual."

"There won't be another year like this for low prices because we've got both poultry and beef setting records in production," Madsen said, adding that beef prices should begin edging up at the end of the year.

$138 million fire ravages Japan city

SAKATA, Japan (AP) — Damage from a weekend fire that destroyed 1,159 shops and houses, killed one person and injured 169 was estimated by the city government today at $138 million.

The blaze began in a movie theater in a shopping arcade in this northern coastal city. Whipped by 40-mile-an-hour winds, it spread over a 55-acre area before being brought under control 11 hours after it began.

Officials said 3,157 persons were left homeless.

The Japan Non-life Insurance Association said $22 million of the loss was covered by fire insurance. It said that will be the largest sum ever paid in Japan for a single fire.

The blaze was fought by 2,000 firemen, 50 fire engines and 400 military troops.

Police said they were investigating the cause.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Rev. John Witherspoon, the only active clergyman among the signers of the Declaration of Independence, achieved a greater reputation as a religious leader and educator than as a politician. Emigrating from Scotland to America in the midst of the controversy between the Colonies and the Crown, Witherspoon took part in the Revolution, and signed the Articles of Confederation as well as the Declaration.

He is better known, The World Almanac notes, for his distinguished presidency of the College of New Jersey (later Princeton University).

'Gone' tops TV ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — Twice as many television sets in New York and Los Angeles were tuned to "Gone with the Wind" Sunday night than to all other programs combined, the A.C. Nielsen Co. says.

Nielsen said Tuesday NBC got 65 per cent of Sunday night's TV audience in New York and 64 per cent in Los Angeles. National figures had not been compiled, the company said.

NBC scored a 48.6 rating for the three hours it showed the epic film in New York and a 46.7 rating in Los Angeles.

These compared with 16.5 for ABC and 8.6 for CBS in New York and 15.3 for ABC and 8.8 for CBS in Los Angeles, Nielsen said.

Figures for the second part shown Monday night were not available.

NBC estimated its audience at 90 million viewers Sunday, 110 million Monday night.

NBC said the previous record for a movie was 85,820,000 for "Ben Hur" in 1971.

Japan troupe at ICCC

Japan's Izumo Yo Dance Company, exponents of the jiuta-mai school, will perform at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the Inner City Cultural Center, Los Angeles.

On its first tour of the United States, the ensemble of dancers and musicians will offer a varied program of traditional and modern works.

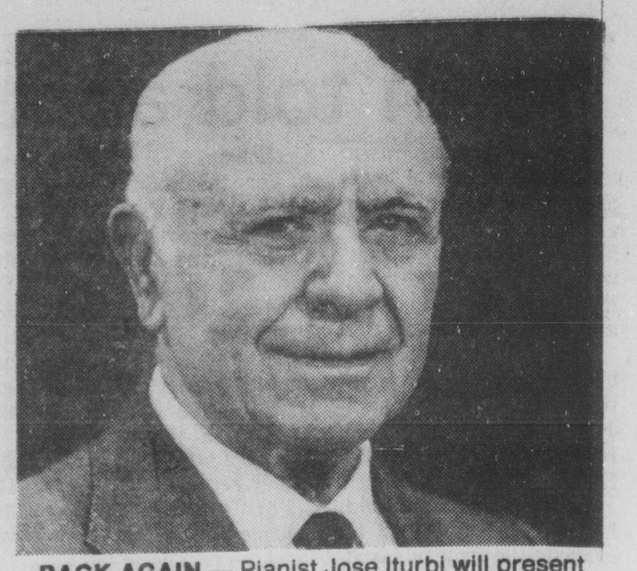
, Jiuta-mai originated in 17th and 18th century Japan as an after-dinner entertainment. Like kabuki, it was ultimately refined into an "art" form, losing much of its spontaneity and popular appeal.

A leading interpreter of the form, Izumo Yo has reintroduced elements of the original entertainment form, achieving popular and critical acclaim in Japan.

The performances will include an introductory demonstration and explanation of juita-mai. Also on the program are "En," an experimental work about woman's unhappiness after divorce, and "Salome," an adaptation of the Wilde story.

Helen Keller

Helen Keller, 87, the blind and deaf writer, died in Westport, Conn., June 1, 1968.



BACK AGAIN — Pianist Jose Iturbi will present a recital at the Ambassador Auditorium, Pasadena, at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday. This will be his first Southern California appearance in nearly a decade. The 80-year-old artist will play works by Beethoven, Mozart, Chopin, Granados, Poulenc and other composers.

Record reviews: Some cuts a cut above the rest

By STAN MIESES

Fall is the most active season for the recording industry, so we'll try to keep up with several capsule record reviews:

Rod Stewart (A Night on the Town): This is Rod Stewart's finest album, even though there may seem to be a number or two borrowed (listen to "The Killing of Georgie" and then Lou Reed's "Walk on the Wild Side"). Nevertheless, there is a cohesiveness of lyric and mood rarely achieved on a pop record, and Stewart's singular voice is an expressive vehicle. Standout cuts: "Tonight's The Night," and Cat Stevens' "The First Cut Is The Deepest."

Roxy Music (Viva): A final effort? Roxy's apparently broken up, at least temporarily, so this live set will have to do for now, and it does quite nicely. Though you might want to check out the original versions of a number of selections represented here, "Do The Strand" really rocks out, and "In Every Dream Home A Heartache" really spaces out. What more could you want?

Harold Melvin and the Bluenotes (Greatest Hits): You can't go wrong with this collection. Though their "To Be True" album is still the best, "Greatest Hits" is just that — everything you've heard on radio from this group during the last two years. Now that supershouter Teddy Pendergrass is off on his own, this might be the last chance to catch the original line-up on vinyl. It's a bargain.

Dr. Buzzard's Original Savannah Band: This is the best deco-disco record we've heard, light years funkier than Manhattan Transfer, and plenty smarter than most disco groups lumped together. Well produced, well arranged, well well.

George Gershwin Plays Rhapsody in Blue, Michael Tilson-Thomas and the Columbia Jazz Band: Gershwin plays with young Tilson-Thomas? You see, they ingeniously edited Gershwin's playing on an original 1925 piano roll with Tilson-Thomas' snappy modern arrangement of this American Classic-jazz piece. The result is a delight. Flip side; "An American in Paris." If you haven't discovered the great treasure that was George Gershwin, this is a good place to start.

Fania All Stars (Delicate and Jumpy): This too is a good place to start if you're not acquainted with the Salsa sound so popular now in many cities with a Hispanic population. But Salsa music is great listening for everybody, and terrific dance music too. Standout juts: "Desafio," and a hot "You've Lost That Lovin' Feeling."

Japan gave the United States 53 bonsai — dwarfed — trees as a Bicentennial gift.

29 fifth graders send Carter congratulations

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — "You are going to be the best president since Lincoln," Lynn James wrote to Jimmy Carter. "I would vote for you but I am only 10 years old."

Lynn's was one of 29 letters of congratulations to the president-elect from Janice Robichaud's fifth grade class at Central Riverside School here.

"My daddy bet $30 dollars that you would lose," wrote Kathleen Haire. "I told him not to vote on Ford because he would lose."

She promised to do her share to help Carter by telling people "not to litter because it is not a good thing to do."

Cheryl Range told Carter how she celebrated his victory: "I jumped all up and around. I said I knew that you was going to win."

Added Patricia Walker: "We had peanuts on Monday. I am glad you won on Tuesday."

Charlie Poindexter had a request: "I sure hope you lower the prices on candy and drinks. If you do, you will be the best president I ever had that I know of."

William Kosnow told Carter about a straw vote the class took.

Bridge by Jacobys

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

The bidding at table one in an IMP team match is that shown in the box.

West decided that South was prepared for a spade lead so he decided to lead some other suit. His choice was between clubs and hearts. When he finally settled for a heart, South gratefully ran off 10 tricks. This looked like a really good score, since a club lead would have set him four tricks.

It wasn't a good score. At the other table West elected to keep quiet about his spades and again South played in three notrump. This West opened a spade and somehow or other during the course of the play let go of a small heart so this declarer wound up by taking all 13 tricks.

For the benefit of those readers who are about to ask "What sort of second raters were playing here?", the match happened to be between the United States and Great Britain in a world's championship match.

Reid idea

NEW YORK (AP) — Chester Reid, a navy captain, suggested an American flag with 13 stripes and a star for each state.

Congress accepted the idea and on April 4, 1818, according to "World Book Encyclopedia," it set the number of stripes at 13 and ordered a new star be added on the 4th of July after a state joined the Union.

Ask the Jacobys

A Wisconsin reader belongs to a group that plays six hands at a time rather than rubbers. She wants to know if there is a new cut deal if one side wins a rubber before the six hands are over.

The answer is that when you are to play a specified number of hands there is a cut for deal before the first hand is played, but then the deal passes in rotation until the specified number of hands are completed.

Homemaker program hit

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Lawmakers looking into the state's beleaguered homemaker chore program have heard witnesses tell of county officials being wined and dined and low-paid workers being gouged.

They also heard Tuesday of state-paid housekeeping in a room of a $150,000 house and of a woman's suicide over loss of her worker.

Each account served to illustrate a speaker's point that better state management is needed for the rapidly growing, $116-million-a-year program, now in its third year.

The program puts a government-paid housekeeper into the homes of about 70,000 aged, blind or disabled Californians, most of whom would otherwise have to enter a nursing home or other institution.

The Assembly Human Resources Committee heard the program attacked from all sides — as too generous, too stingy, too centralized and too fragmented.

All sides, including the state Health Department itself, agreed that the department hadn't provided guidelines to counties for program costs, contracts, or quality of care.

The alleged generosity was described by Henri Habenicht, director of Homehelpers, a nonprofit homemaker firm in San Jose. He said some officials in the program exhibit "the feeling of Jehovah — the ability to distribute largesse."

His company found that 25 per cent of all the cases turned over to it didn't need any homemaker-chore help, and virtually all of them were getting more than they needed, he said.

In one case, Habenicht said, a disabled woman on Social Security was moved into a room in her daughter's $150,000 house, and was eligible for a homemaker to clean her room.

On the other side, Dorothy Lang of the Western Center on Law and Poverty said, "I've never seen a client who had that problem" of too many services.

Because the program was underfunded, she said, some employes of homemaker firms in Merced County were working for 60 or 70 cents an hour before her office filed suit.

"A woman committed suicide in Los Angeles County a few months ago when her homemaker chore worker was taken away," Ms. Lang said. "She left a note that said, 'I cannot bear the thought of going to an institution.' "

Deputy state Health Director Gary Macomber, in charge of the program, says about two-thirds of its clients would otherwise have to be institutionalized, at a price of $40 million more than the program costs.

Some of the day's most striking testimony came from Fred Keeley, former assistant to the president of Visiting Home Services, the San Francisco firm whose recent bankruptcy led to the hearings.

Keeley said at least five county welfare officials and about a dozen county supervisors were wined and dined by company president Peter Gottheiner this year while they were considering a contract with the company.

And he said the policy of the company, and many others under state-encouraged competitive bidding procedures, was to cut the wages and benefits of their employes — most of them minorities and women — to rock bottom in order to reduce their costs.

"This system, which provides riches to corporate owners, is at the same time gouging relatively helpless workers," Keeley said.

Committee members pressed Keeley for details of the wining and dining, which he said went on while he was with Gottheiner from February to September of this year.

In one case, he said, a county welfare director visiting Gottheiner's San Francisco operation was taken to dinner by Gottheiner and showed him bids of his competitors to ask his opinion of them.

Keeley wouldn't name the county, but said he'd told "authorities" about the case.

"I'm going to get sued anyway," he told committee members in asking not to be forced to name names.

The Health Department has called for a state and federal investigation of allegations that Gottheiner and others were profiteering off the company while it was going bankrupt.

The department also has called public hearings for early next year on proposed regulations it says will reform the program.

The regulations, announced Monday, include standards of cost and care and requirements of financial disclosure by firms applying for county contracts.

They drew a skeptical response from Gerald Hawes, manager of a critical state Auditor General's report on the program.

Macomber defended the competitive bidding policy, saying it had saved $5 million in excessive profits. He also said counties were encouraged only to favor "the lowest responsible bidder."

Q. "HOW CAN A FLY WALK ON THE CEILING?"

BRIAN HUGHES
CLINTON, PA

A. FLIES ARE ABLE TO CLING TO SMOOTH SURFACES AND WALK ACROSS CEILINGS BY MEANS OF TINY CLAWS AND STICKY PADS OF HAIR ON THEIR FEET.

DICK ROGERS
© 1976 by NEA, Inc. T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off. 11/11

The common housefly seems to defy gravity as it buzzes through the air and lands in almost any position.

It walks upside down across the ceiling as easily as it crosses the floor right side up.

If you were to look at the feet of a fly through a magnifying glass, you would see that each of its six feet are equipped with two tiny claws and sticky pads of hair.

These enable it to walk upside down on the ceiling, cling to the smooth surface of a windowpane, or walk anywhere else with equal ease.

When walking upside down, the fly picks up three of its feet at a time. It moves the front and rear leg on one side of its body at the same time it moves the middle leg on the other side.

The other feet hold the fly firmly to the ceiling until it is their turn to step forward.

Spiders, bees and many other insects are also able to cling to smooth surfaces by means of tiny claws and sticky pads on their feet.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

PUBLIC NOTICE PUBLIC NOTICE

ORDINANCE NO. 2002

AN ORDINANCE OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF POMONA, CALIFORNIA, AMENDING ORDINANCE NO. 1466, ALSO KNOWN AS THE COMPREHENSIVE ZONING ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF POMONA, BY AMENDING SECTION .5809-2 (DRIVE-IN, DRIVE-THROUGH AND FOOD-TO-GO BUSINESSES) THEREOF ESTABLISHING STANDARDS AND PROCEDURES PERMITTING THE INCLUSION OF GASOLINE SALES FROM A PUMP ISLAND AS AN ACCESSORY USE WITH A DRIVE-IN OR DRIVE-THROUGH BUSINESS, EXCEPT DRIVE-IN/DRIVE-THROUGH RESTAURANTS, UNDER SPECIFIC CONDITIONS AND RESTRICTIONS.

WHEREAS, all hearings before the Planning Commission and the Council of the City of Pomona, California, have been duly noticed and held;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED by the Council of the City of Pomona, California, as follows:

SECTION 1. That Section .5809-2 of Ordinance No. 1466, also known as the Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance of the City of Pomona, California, is hereby repealed.

SECTION 2. That Ordinance No. 1466, also known as the Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance of the City of Pomona, California, is hereby amended by adding a new Section .5809-2, to read as follows:

2. Drive-in, drive-through and food-to-go businesses.

a. Drive-in, drive-through and food-to-go businesses shall be allowed subject to a conditional use permit pursuant to the procedure set forth in Section .580 and that set forth in this article.

Requirements:

All applicants for a conditional use permit for a drive-in, drive-through, food-to-go business shall submit a complete detailed dimensioned plot plan, floor plan and elevations of the exterior of the building. Plans of all exterior signing shall be included.

When considering such conditional use permit, the commission and city council shall use the following standards and criteria on judging these permits:

1. The city city traffic engineer shall review and make recommendations regarding proper and safe circulation for the patrons and the traveling public which may include, but not be limited to: Number of automobile storage spaces in waiting line; limiting on street parking; visibility for safe sight distances for ingress and egress; design of parking lot, etc.

2. The amount of off-street parking on the site shall be adequate and well located so as not to cause problems on the site or to adjacent properties.

3. The division of the site from other uses shall be accomplished by wall, setback and planting areas as deemed necessary.

4. Fencing off or securing of on-site parking areas during business hours or when establishment is not open for business shall be provided by the applicant as deemed necessary.

5. Size, shape, dimensions and area of the site and the buildings shall be found to be conducive to accommodate the proposed business in a way that is harmonious with the surrounding development and traffic movement in the surrounding stores.

6. Architectural treatment of the "Precise Plan of Development" shall be approved by the planning commission subject to appeal to the city council. Building design shall be compatible with the neighborhood or surrounding area of the site and shall not be of such a nature to be detrimental to property values in the area. The design and site layout of the buildings shall be so as to discourage on-premise loitering. When the site is adjacent to a residential area, a building of residential character (such as a low-profile, ranch-type) shall be required. In a planned industrial or commercial area, the service station building shall conform to the exterior architectural design of other structures in the planned development. The "precise plan of development" to be submitted for review shall include the following:

(a) Plot plan and floor plan.

(b) Landscape and parking plan.

(c) Elevation plans of buildings, signs, walls, lighting and all other structures on the site.

7. Signing shall be designed so as to be compatible with adjacent residential and other developments. Signing for both uses on the site where a gasoline pump island is permitted as an accessory use (Sec. .5809-2a-10, and 2c-4) shall be integrated and incorporated into one signing system.

8. Curb Cuts and Driveways. No curb cut shall be closer than two feet from an interior property line or be closer than thirty-five feet from the projected intersection of the two curb lines along the street frontages, providing however no drive approach shall encroach in the curb return area. The curb distance around the corner between the two corner driveways shall be painted red by the City to prevent on-street parking in this area. Two-way driveways shall have a width of thirty feet at the sidewalk plus four foot transitions on each side.

9. Paving and Drainage. The entire ground area of the site, except for building and planting areas, shall be paved with asphaltic concrete and/or concrete to standards set by the engineering and building departments. Drainage flow lines shall be shown on the plot plan and if drainage is to street, water must be carried under sidewalks in a manner approved by the city engineer.

10. Gasoline Pump Island. One self-service gasoline pump island containing a maximum of three pump devices for the dispensing of motor fuels may be permitted, subject to the issuance of a conditional use permit, as an accessory use to drive-in or drive-through businesses, with the exception of prepared, ready-to-eat, food-to-go businesses (i.e., drive-in/drive-through restaurants). Such accessory use shall be subject to the provisions of Sec. .5809-2b and the following findings which the planning commission and city council shall make before granting a conditional use permit allowing the inclusion or addition of a gasoline pump island:

(a) That the dispensing of motor fuels from a self-service pump island is compatible with the specific drive-in or drive-through business proposed or existing on the site;

(b) That the size, location and accessibility of the site are adequate to accommodate this proposed combination of uses;

(c) That the placement and separation of the facilities on the site and the design of the circulation pattern serving both facilities is such that a minimum of traffic conflict will occur between the two uses;

(d) That the Los Angeles County Health Department and the City Fire Department have reviewed the proposal and have determined that the specific proposal will not be detrimental to public health or safety.

11. Trash Areas. All outside trash areas shall have a minimum area of seven feet by ten feet (inside dimensions) and shall be surrounded by a six foot high solid wall which is constructed of noncombustible materials compatible with the main building. All trash, debris, old parts, junk and similar material shall be stored within this designated area. The enclosure may be designed to accommodate metal refuse containers (dumpsters) on wheels and shall have an opening with a minimum width of five foot clearance. A solid, double swinging gate, such as a chain-link gate with metal strips woven to form an opaque screen, is required for the opening for the trash enclosure, and the opening shall not be visible to the usual pedestrian and vehicular traffic. The gate shall be the height of the wall and shall have a maximum clearance of two inches from ground level.

12. Utilities. All utilities, including electric and telephone, shall be placed underground.

13. Lighting. For business adjacent to residential areas, all lighting exterior of a building shall be of an indirect nature. It shall be so arranged and shielded that there shall be no glare or reflection onto adjacent properties or public right-of-way. For all other locations (other than when adjacent to residential area) the lighting shall be reviewed and approved by the planning commission to insure that such lighting is compatible with the surrounding area and does not create a nuisance.

14. Landscaping. A minimum of five percent of the site area shall be provided with landscaping which shall include trees, shrubs and ground cover. Planters of not less than four foot net inside dimension width shall be located along street frontages, except for driveway areas. For corner sites, a planter of not less than one hundred fifty square feet shall be located at the corner of the intersection of the street property lines. The remainder of the landscaping shall be provided in planters of not less than four foot net inside dimension in width to be placed along interior property lines and around perimeter of building.

When the site in question abuts a residential zone, a planting screen of trees and shrubs and ground cover shall be planted to serve as a buffer between the site and the abutting residential development. Planters shall be protected by a masonry curb not less than six inches in height, shall be equipped with a permanent irrigation system as specified by the city parks department and shall be maintained by the operator of the business.

Plants achieving considerable height shall be required along interior property lines, but shall be reduced in height where access is permitted to an abutting alley or shopping center area twenty feet on each side of such entrance.

If the landscaping is not maintained to the standards of normal gardening techniques, this shall be grounds for voiding the conditional use permit.

b. Before granting a conditional use permit for a drive-in, drive-through or food-to-go business, the planning commission and city council shall make the following findings:

1. That the proposed business is compatible with existing commercial development in the area.

2. That the proposed location is sufficiently removed from any existing or proposed residential development or zoning so as not to be detrimental to the residential area.

3. That the proposed building and site are adequate to accommodate the proposed use and that the design of the facility is such that a minimum of conflict will occur with adjoining uses.

c. Existing Non-Conforming Drive-In, Drive-Through, Food-to-Go Businesses.

Drive-in, drive-through and food-to-go businesses existing at the time of adoption of Section .5809-2. (2/17/71) that do not meet all of the standards and criteria required of such new uses may be allowed to make additions or alterations as follows:

1. When the addition or alteration is or exceeds fifty percent of the value of the existing improvements as based on the actual assessed valuation based on the latest county assessor's records, a conditional use permit shall be required and the entire development shall conform to the requirements for such new uses.

2. When the addition or alteration exceeds ten percent but not exceeding fifty percent of the value of the existing improvements as based on the actual assessed valuation based on the latest county assessor's records, a conditional use permit shall be required, but only new buildings or structures shall comply with the requirements for such new uses.

3. When the addition or alteration is or is less than ten percent of the value of the existing improvements, as based on the actual assessed valuation based on the latest county assessor's records, a conditional use permit shall not be required, but new buildings or structures shall comply with the requirements of such new uses.

4. Notwithstanding the provisions stated above (Sec. .5809-c-1,2 & 3), the proposed addition of a self-service pump island as a second use on the same site with a drive-in or drive-through business shall require a conditional use permit (Sec. .5809-2a-10); and such addition to all such businesses existing at the time of adoption of Section .5809-2 (2/17/71) shall require a conditional use permit and the entire development shall conform to current conditional use permit standards for such uses."

SECTION 3. The City Clerk shall certify to the passage and adoption of this ordinance, causing it to be published as required by law, and it shall thereafter be in full force and effect thirty (30) days after the date of its final reading.

SAL season comes to head

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

The San Antonio League football season comes to a head tonight when six of the league's eight varsity teams square off at 7:30 p.m.

Tonight's action may or may not determine the league championship in a season complicated by an earlier postponement of the game between Damien and Garey, the SAL's co-leaders.

Damien will host Claremont and Garey will entertain Pomona at Bonita High in games that have bearing on the title chase. Tonight's third game will find Montclair at Chino.

The Spartans and Vikings both took 3-0 league records into their meeting at Damien three weeks ago. But that contest, which was supposed to give one of the teams sole possession of first place, was halted when the lights went out under a driving rain early in the fourth quarter.

When darkness hit, the Vikings had a 12-10 lead and possession of the ball on the Damien 48-yard line with 11:48 left to play.

It was agreed afterwards by officials of the two schools that the game would be made up from that point only if necessary.

"If necessary" means if the outcome of the game would have a bearing on the league championship or on the order of finish of the top three teams, those eligible for CIF playoff berths.

Damien and Garey also agreed that, if they were tied for the league lead at the conclusion of the regular season, they would reign as co-champions rather than complete their postponed game to determine a lone titlist.

It was thought that there was no sense risking injury and physical or emotional exhaustion in a climactic quarter of football, since as co-champions both teams would receive home games in the opening round of the playoffs, according to the CIF office.

So, since the Spartans and Vikings still share the lead with 5-0 records, they will share the title if both win tonight. If one or both of them lose, however, things are more complicated.

If one loses and the other wins, the final 11:48 of their postponed game will be completed at Damien Saturday at 10 a.m. Admission will be free, since no one took the time to distribute or ask for rain checks in that torrential downpour three weeks ago.

The game will be made up in that case because the team that loses (hypothetically) tonight would have a chance for a co-championship with a win in the shortened contest Saturday morning.

If both teams lose tonight, they will have to wait for the results of Friday's Ganesha-Upland game to see whether Saturday's game will be necessary. If Ganesha loses too, the leaders would not have to play Saturday, since they would be co-champs with 5-1 league records and Ganesha (and possibly Montclair) would be two losses back at 4-3.

But if Damien and Garey both lose tonight and Ganesha wins Friday, the Damien-Garey game should be made up for Ganesha's benefit. That's because the Giants would finish in a second-place tie with the loser of Saturday's shortened game — and a tie for second is a much better guarantee of a playoff bid than a third-place finish.

The principals in the league will decide Friday morning what to do in that case, but there seems to be no choice but to make up the game.

At any rate, the Spartans and Vikings will try to end all the confusion by winning their games tonight.

Damien will be led by Dan Marconi, the valley's leading passer with 930 yards through the air, and fullback Leo Burke, who has rushed for 414 yards and scored nine touchdowns (not counting one he made in the Garey game, which was considered no contest) and Jason Wight, with 328 yards rushing.

Claremont, currently tied for fifth, sixth and seventh with a 2-4 league record, will counter with quarterback Chris Pruitt (676 yards passing), fullback Grant Warhurst (405 yards rushing) and tailback Kevin Britton (368 yards rushing).

The contest could well be an aerial affair, since Marconi is tops in the league in touchdowns by passing with nine and Pruitt is second with eight. Claremont's Dave Bosson has caught 13 passes for 249 yards and four touchdowns, Warhurst has 14 receptions for 147 yards and one TD and Damien's Tom Lopez has 21 catches for 232 yards and three scores.

Garey will use its speedy defense to try to beat Pomona for the first time. The Vikes have allowed just 25 points in their five league wins and have given up more no more than one touchdown in any game since their season opener against Royal.

Quarterback Al Clay (871 yards passing and eight touchdowns) has two favorite targets: Chris Davis (18 catches for 249 yards and three TDs) and David Forte (17 catches for 272 yards and three TDs). Ralph Dixon (410 yards) and Elijah Turner (309) lead Garey's rushers.

Pomona, trying to avoid a winless year, will rely on the passing of Kevin Johnson (716 yards), the receiving of Lewis Cole (21 catches, 232 yards) and the running of tailback John Bullock (212 yards). Fullback Ricky Fairman (485 yards rushing), who missed last week's game, is a doubtful starter tonight.

Montclair, looking for its first winning season in 10 years, is 3-3 in league play and 4-4 on the year. A Cavalier win coupled with a Ganesha loss Friday would leave the two teams tied for third place.

The Cavalier-Cowboy varsity clash at Chino will be preceded by the sophomore game between the two schools at 5 p.m. The winner of that contest will be the SAL sophomore champ, since both teams are 6-0 in league play going into the game.

Wayne Fetters retires as coach

Wayne Fetters, personable varsity football coach of the Charter Oak High Lancers for the past 10 years, has decided to end his 20-year coaching career after the current grid season.

"I think 20 years of coaching is enough," said Fetters, who will devote full-time attention to teaching U.S. history.

Fetters' most successful year as coach of the Lancers came in 1971, when his squad won the Montview League title with a perfect 7-0 record and finished the year with a 9-2 mark.

His defense, ranked first in the valley that year, posted five shutouts. Fetters was named Coach of the Year by the Progress Bulletin that year and was selected to coach the East in the San Gabriel Valley All-Star game the following summer.

Fetters' 13 years as a head football coach netted a 65-63-4 record, with one game yet to play. His final game as a coach will be played tonight at Nogales High, when the Lancers visit the Nobles at 7:30 p.m.

He coached two years at Pomona Catholic, now Damien High, before moving to Charter Oak, and coached in Oklahoma for five years before that.

Wayne Fetters

Fetters has coached over 50 all-leaguers in his seasons at Charter Oak and six All-CIF first-teamers. In 1972, Andy Mason of the Lancers was chosen Player of the Year by the L.A. Times.

While at Pomona Catholic, Fetters coached track as well as football. Jeoff VanderStock, whom Fetters coached at that time, went on to compete in the intermediate hurdles in the 1968 Olympics.

"My relationships with my principal (L.T. Armstrong) and athletic director (Dallas Ensman) have been as good as they could be," said Fetters, who can look back on his high school coaching career with pride and satisfaction.

"I've coached long enough," he said. "Now I want to play golf and get my handicap back down where it should be."

Playoffs begin

Playoff time is upon us in full force in the CIF Southern Section. The eight-man football playoff tournament begins Friday (with no local teams involved) with 11-man football, water polo, boys' and girls' cross country and girls' volleyball and tennis all reaching the playoff stage within the next two or three weeks.

The regular football season will end Saturday and the CIF Football Playoff Committee will determine pairings for the 4A, 3A, 2A and 1A divisions Sunday.

The upper three divisions will have 32-team playoff fields and 16 1A teams will be selected. Dates for 1A playoffs are Nov. 19 and 26 and Dec. 3 and 10; for the other three classifications the dates are Nov. 19 and 26 and Dec. 3, 10 and 17.

In the top three divisions, each league is guaranteed two representatives in the playoffs but no league will receive more than three berths. Since there are 11 4A leagues, every league but one will send three teams to the playoffs and the remaining league will send two.

The 3A and 2A divisions have 12 leagues each, meaning that eight leagues will get three berths and the remaining four will get two.

In the 1A classification, each of the eight leagues will be guaranteed one entry but it is not necessarily true that each league will get two berths. The Olympic League, for example, traditionally a tough 1A football loop, may send three teams to the playoffs as it did last year.

The CIF Football Playoff Committee has an established procedure for deciding which of the 4A, 3A and 2A leagues get a third team and which don't.

First, any league with tri-champions is extended three berths; second, any league with a second-place tie is given three berths; and finally, any remaining berths are given to third-place teams that the committee judges the strongest.

Morrow's dream comes true

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

For Ben Morrow, playing football at La Verne College helped make a dream come true.

Morrow, the Leopards' 220-pound running back is doing just what he set his sights on in high school. At Verbum Dei Morrow earned recognition as a prep All-America as a defensive interior lineman.

"I came here as a freshman defensive lineman," the powerfully built Morrow explained. "But I always wanted to be a running back."

At La Verne, the football players are given a chance to play the position of their choice. So Morrow made the switch from defense to offense and from the line to the backfield.

"The coaches helped me a lot," he recalled, "and I put a lot of work and effort into it. Last year I was a reserve, but this year Brad (Frick) and I have had a real good chance to follow Curtis (Frick) and Roy VanderKallen who were great last year."

Following in the steps of Curtis Frick and VanderKallen, Morrow and Brad Frick have done a fine job.

Frick has carried the ball 141 times and gained 760 yards in seven games. Morrow has netted 510 on 114 rushes.

Ben had one of his best games ever last Saturday as the Leos beat Pomona-Pitzer. He gained 127 yards and had a 56-yard touchdown run in 16 carries.

"Brad and I both had a real good game," Morrow said. "Of course we work behind a great offensive line which helps a lot. That game was one of my best although I think I had a pretty good game against CalLu (Lutheran) too."

Being a starter is just one of the reasons why big Ben is enjoying this season so much.

"I think we're a closer team this year," he said. That's because a lot of us are sophomores and juniors and underclassmen just naturally tend to stick together."

The only disappointment was the Leopards' failure to defeat Redlands, the team La Verne tied with for the conference title last year.

"We thought we could win it outright this year," he said. "But since Redlands beat us (21-17), we don't think anyone else has a chance. Of course, we have to maintain our position in second place.

"We don't want to end up third, so we've got to win our last two games (against Occidental and Claremont-Mudd). Last year we beat Oxy pretty good (41-19), but they're improved this year and we're looking forward to a good game and I think we can beat 'em."

Morrow is majoring in behavorial science and plans to pursue a career in counciling or probation when he graduates.

"I'll probably start in Watts and then work in other ghettos and help the underpriveleged," he said. "I want to work mostly with minority groups because that's where I stem from."

Ben found his way to La Verne the same way and for the same reasons a lot of La Verne athletes do.

"I had a couple of opportunities to go to big schools," he said. "But they are too crowded. Besides, I wanted to prepare for my career . . . not make football my career. But we're looking forward to an even better year in football next year."

Celtics don't miss Cowens

By The Associated Press

Dave Cowens made an unexpected disappearance—and so did the Boston Celtics' losing streak.

The Celtics, who learned shortly before their game against Los Angeles Wednesday night that their All-Star center suddenly had left the club "for personal reasons," then went out and broke a four-game National Basketball Association losing skein, beating the Lakers 117-112.

"The show must go on," said Jo Jo White, the Celtics' leading scorer with 28 points.

It went on, with journeyman center Jim Ard and forwards Sidney Wicks and Tom Boswell taking Cowens' place in guarding the Lakers' 7-foot-3½ Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. Wicks scored 21 points, Boswell had his finest game as a pro with 14 points and eight rebounds, and Ard collected six points before fouling out with four minutes remaining.

"We can't get upset," added White.

The Celtics didn't.

They stayed virtually even throughout with the Lakers until about two minutes remained, before a basket by Boswell put them ahead to stay 108-106, then Scott hit a decisive threepoint play with 1:24 to go.

"We'll miss him," continued White.

They didn't against the Lakers.

Shaw signs with Giants

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Giants signed veteran National Football league quarterback Dennis Shaw of Claremont Wednesday and placed defensive lineman John Bushong on waivers.

Shaw, who spent six seasons in the NFL with Buffalo and St. Louis, was released by the Cardinals after last season and then cut by the Green Bay Packers during the pre-season.

Shaw, 29, was Buffalo's second round selection in the 1970 NFL draft and was traded by the Bills in 1974 for receiver Ahmad Rashad.

The Giants signed him as a backup to Norm Snead with regular quarterback Craig Morton probably sidelined for Sunday's game against Washington because of an injured elbow.

Ross gets his big chance

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Sammy Ross will finally get his big chance to quarterback the Cal Poly Pomona Broncos Saturday night and it comes in the biggest game of the football season.

Ross, who has appeared in only three games in his three seasons at Poly, will be replacing injured starter Leo Costa for Saturday night's showdown against archrival Cal Poly San Luis Obispo at Kellogg Field.

Everything is on the line in this one. Pomona is looking for its first victory over its rival campus in the eight-game series and it will be for the California Collegiate Athletic Association title after much confusion whether the three-member league still crowns a champ.

Ross got the word he is the No. 1 quarterback Sunday night when Costa was admitted to Pomona Valley Community Hospital after suffering a collaped lung in last week's 20-7 win over Cal State Northridge.

Costa was hurt two plays before the halftime but he still came on to direct the Broncos throughout the second half. The seriously of his injury wasn't known until Sunday when his lung filled with blood. He is scheduled to be released from the hospital on Saturday.

Costa's loss is quite a blow to Poly's football team on the week of the annual SLO battle. The senior from Visalia has improved each week and probably enjoyed his best game in two years at Northridge.

But coach Andy Vinci has confidence Ross can do the job.

"He's been here long enough so he should know what to do," Vinci said.

A sophomore, Ross served as the back-up quarterback to Jim Zorn, the folk hero of the Seattle Seahawks, in 1974. Ross was held out last year as a red-shirt and has served behind Costa this season.

But his only game action came in the fourth quarter of the 38-0 loss to Mississippi State when he completed five of nine passes for 55 yards.

"It's something to get to start against SLO in our biggest game," an obviously excited Ross said before practice the other day. "It's unfortunate Costa had to go out the way he did. Leo is the kind of guy it's hard to keep out of action. He is such a fierce competitor."

Ross is considered a better pure passer than Costa but he isn't nearly as good a scrambler.

"I've always favored passing," he said. "Leo can do both real well and he is stronger. I do feel I am a better quarterback from my three years here. I have matured a lot and my knowledge of the game has improved."

Ross, who hails from the rich Western Pennslyvania prep area in Sharpsville, is one of the few non-Californians on the Bronco roster.

A big reason for Ross coming here was his uncle, Joe Bassett, the former owner of radio station KKAR.

"The best answer I can give about why I came to Pomona is the Lord led me here," Ross said. "My uncle lived in Claremont and I flew here to look it over. I liked it and here I am."

Saints' Pleasant Athlete of Week

Bob Pleasant of San Dimas High, who rushed for 149 yards as the Saints clinched a share of the Hacienda League title by downing Alta Loma last Friday, has been named the Progress Bulletin's Athlete of the Week.

Pleasant, a senior fullback, carried 22 times against the Braves and scored three touchdowns. His yardage figure — 149 — is especially impressive in the light of Alta Loma's defensive abilities. The Braves have allowed their opponents an average of just 120 total yards per game, including the San Dimas contest.

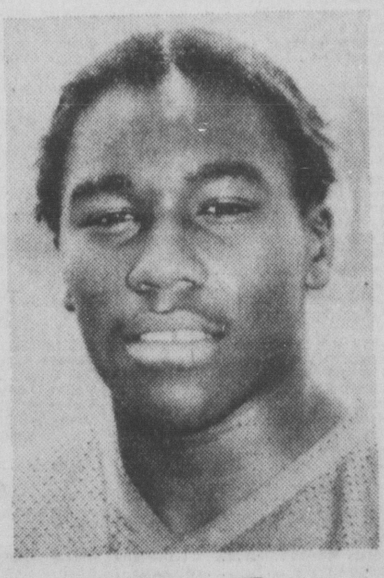
Pleasant is the valley's No. 2 rusher on the year with 866 yards and also ranks second in scoring with 78 points. His rushing average, however, is by far the best in the valley. Pleasant has amassed his 866 yards on just 95 carries for an average of 9.1 yards per run.

The San Dimas fullback is the prime mover in San Dimas' awesome rushing attack, which is tops in the valley in both yards rushing (267.6 per game) and touchdowns by the run (28).

Pleasant will be presented a plaque by Pomona Elks Lodge 789, sponsor of the Athlete of the Week program, at a dinner at the lodge on Dec. 8. The winners of the three most recent awards previous to Pleasant's — Walnut's Kevin Morgan, Chaffey's John Gable and Webb's John Richards — were feted Wednesday night at the lodge.

Three other football players were nominated for this week's award. Garey's Chris Davis, Bonita's Bobby Vidaure and Chaffey's Bob Sebro all had outstanding performances last week.

Davis, a split end, caught nine passes for 150 yards Friday against Ganesha. The 160-pound senior won the game with a 27-yard touchdown reception from Al Clay with 47 seconds left in the contest, giving Garey a 12-6 victory in the important game.



BOB PLEASANT . . .
Athlete of the Week

Vidaure, a 155-pound junior, rushed for 173 yards and two touchdowns on just eight carries in the Bearcats' 26-0 romp over Gladstone. Vidaure, who also played defensive back, broke runs of 80 and 53 yards.

Sebro, a 240-pound senior tackle who plays both ways, made an amazing 13 unassisted tackles Thursday night as Chaffey blasted Pacific, 56-0. He also led a determined pass rush and his blocking was largely responsible for Chaffey's 364 yards on the ground.

Big plays needed by Rams

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Major problems for the Los Angeles Rams, as they approach the time for decision in the playoff race, are hanging onto the football and coming up with the big play which has been missing.

Coach Chuck Knox noted with chargin that his club has fumbled way the ball 17 times so far in nine games and hasn't been scoring touchdowns from inside the opponents' 20.

Another problem for Knox is at quarterback, where he says James Harris remains No. 1. But he wouldn't say Wednesday, when meeting with sports writers, that Harris was definitely his starter against St. Louis on Sunday at the Coliseum.

"We've moved the football and we're third in the National Football Conference in total offense," Knox pointed out. "But we're not coming up with the big plays and we're not scoring when we get close. We've got to have better execution when we get inside the 20."

The Rams lost at Cincinnati on Monday night 20-12 to go to a 6-2-1, with the invading Cardinals, leading the AFC Central at 7-2. San Francisco at 6-3 stands only one-half game behind the Rams in the NFL West.

"This game is crucial," Knox declared. And while he admitted it was also crucial to the Cardinals, he pointed out that the visitors would have a solid chance to take a wild card spot in the playoffs even if they lost in Los Angeles.

The Cardinals and Rams met in the 1975 playoffs with Los Angeles winning 35-23 to reach the NFC championship game.

There have been many who claim rookie Pat Haden, the former University of Southern California star, should take over from Harris as the Rams No. 1 quarterback. Others recall it was Ron Jaworski who engineered the playoff victory over the Cardinals.

Knox declared, "As of this particular moment, Harris would start."

He left himself an out by saying, "I haven't yet made any plans. We might want to keep St. Louis guessing."

Morgan enjoys big lead

Walnut High's Kevin Morgan has taken an almost insurmountable lead in the individual standings and Chaffey High has moved into the offensive lead in this week's Progress Bulletin's Prep Scoring Derby.

Morgan, with four touchdowns Friday against Ontario, increased his point total to 106, while runnerup Bob Pleasant of San Dimas has 78 and Bonita's Sanford Coggins has 66.

The Walnut fullback, who passed 1,000 yards rushing and 100 points scored in the same game, has 17 touchdowns and a pair of two-point conversions.

Chaffey used a 56-0 romp over Pacific to move into the team scoring lead for the first time this year, dropping San Dimas to second place. The Tigers have 221 points in eight games to the Saints' 212.

San Dimas, however, retains the defensive edge with a 6.1 points-against average. Garey is second (7.3) and Ontario Christian (8.1) is third.

Pool titles are settled

Water polo titles in the San Antonio and Citrus Belt leagues were decided Wednesday afternoon.

Upland High won the SAL title by downing Claremont 12-8. The Upland swimmers finish SAL play with a 4-0 mark, while Claremont was 3-1 in league matches.

Chaffey High easily won the CBL championship with a 34-1 bombing of Pacific. The Tiger swimmers went 6-0 in CBL outings.

Chaffey, Upland and Claremont will now await the start of the CIF water polo playoffs, set for Nov. 24.

Owls set for title tilt

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Citrus College's 1976 football campaign has boiled down to one game, this Saturday's clash with Mission Conference leader Saddleback at Owl Stadium in Azusa.

The Owls go into the contest with a 4-0-1 conference mark, one-half game behind the Gauchos' 5-0 league ledger.

It seems like every time these two schools have met in the past it's been a real war, and Saturday's game will be another in a long line of thrillers between the two Mission foes.

The schools have played six times since Saddleback joined the M.C. in 1970. Citrus holds a two-to-one edge in games won in the series, but remarkably three of the tilts have finished in ties, including last year's 14-14 standoff which left the two as co-conference champs.

The closeness of the series is also reflected in the scores. Saddleback's 17-0 victory in 1973 was the only "rout" in the series, with the Owls squeezing out a 29-28 victory in 1974 and a 24-14 decision in 1971. The Gauchos have scored 103 points in the six games, compared to the Owls' 97 points.

Adding to the excitement when the two JC powers collide this year is the fact that the game Saturday at Citrus will undoubtedly decide the Mission title.

Most felt that Citrus and Saddleback would battle it out for the conference title again this year, and exactly that has happened.

The Gauchos, under first-year coach Ken Swearingen have rebounded from two non-league losses to rattle off five straight conference wins.

Even more remarkably, Saddleback has surrendered only six points in those five outings, in a 14-6 win over Southwestern, the team which tied Citrus last week.

Since that game, the Gauchos have assembled a string of 18 straight scoreless quarters. They have one of the top defensive units in the state, allowing only 50 yards a game to opponents' rushing attacks.

Since rushing is the strong point of the Owls' offense, it shapes up as quite a battle come Saturday.

"Saddleback's new coach has changed their offense but it's the same defense with a lot of the same players from last year, so we are in for a tough game," Owl coach John Strycula claims. "We've seen them play this year, and I think they are easily the most physical opponent we will play. They've got a lot of big, strong kids and it's no wonder they've done well this year.

Strycula is also worried about the Gauchos' attack.

"Their offense sputtered earlier in the year but since then they have put in a freshman quarterback (Billy Yancy) and he has moved the team real well," the veteran Owl mentor noted. "They can control the ball on the ground, and can pass if they have to."

The Gaucho running backs behind Yancy will be halfback Greg Speicher and fullback Chuck Van Liew. Speicher has 400 yards rushing on the year, while Van Liew has rebounded from an injury to total 275 yards on the ground.

Of course, the Owls have the top rushing game in the conference, with halfback Obie Graves, quarterback Dale Bunn and fullback Raymond Butler.

Graves leads all Mission rushers with 861 yards on 156 carries, a 5.5 average. He got off an 80-yard scoring dash vs. Southwestern last week.

QB Bunn has added 535 yards on 113 carries (a 4.7 average), while fullback Butler has 396 yards on 107 carries.

Bunn has also been effective throwing the football most of the year. He has clicked on 52 of 115 passes for 783 yards and six touchdowns, his favorite receiver being small but speedy flanker Charlie Brown.

Brown has caught 13 passes good for 249 yards and a touchdown. Wide receiver Scott LaValley has 10 receptions good for 234 yards and three scores, while fullback Butler has snagged 11 of Bunn's aerials, two for TDs.

Safeties "Thumper" White and Marty pace the Owls with four interceptions each, as the Citrus front line of ends Gene Esslin and Ezra Daniels, tackles Jim Escobedo and Henry Camarena and nose guard Paul Clay have pressured opposing passers all season long.

Murphy irate about refs' call

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles right winger Mike Murphy was irate at an official's call and his coach, Bob Pulford, was also upset. And the Kings didn't even lose the game.

The comments came after Darryl Sittler's power play goal midway through the third period Wednesday night gave Toronto a 2-2 tie with the Kings in a virtually penalty-free National Hockey League game.

"I am totally disgusted with the call," said Murphy of the call by official Dave Newell. "He blew it and he knows it."

The Kings already had Gene Carr in the penalty box when the controversial third-period call came. Borje Salming went crashing to the ice and Murphy was called for holding.

The two-man advantage helped Toronto tie the game.

"Salming definitely took a dive on the play," said Murphy. "I was leaning on him, but I did not trip him."

Pulford said, "It was the best defensive game we've played all year. Unfortunately there was a questionable call on Mike Murphy that put us two men short.

"I don't know whether Salming took a dive or not, but it was a tough call to come at that time of the game. I thought the way we were playing, we would win the game."

"We were hoping things would even out," said Murphy, "but they didn't."

The first two periods were without penalties. After the call sending Murphy to the penalty box, putting the Kings two men short, Sittler took a pass from winger Lanny McDonald and fired a 25-footer over goalie Rogie Vachon's left shoulder.

Tommie Williams' goal midway in the first period put Los Angeles ahead, but Stan Weir pulled the Maple Leafs even early in the second period with a 20-footer.

On the play, Weir reinjured an ankle and could not play the rest of the night.

Bob Berry put the Kings on top near the end of the second period with a 20-foot slap shot that eluded rookie Toronto goalie Mike Palmateer.

The tie left the Kings with a 8-5-5 record. They have 21 points, second in the Norris Division behind Montreal. Toronto is 5-7-4, 14 points and third in the Adams Division, behind Boston and Buffalo.

Ross to start for Broncos

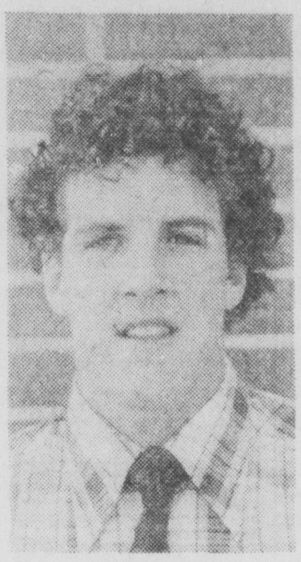
At Poly, Ross is majoring in park administration. "I've always liked forestry and the outdoors," he explained. "The field has opened up because of the population growth and the pollution problems."



SAMMY ROSS

Ross credits Zorn with a lot of support.

"I went to see him when he played against the Rams," Poly's new starting quarterback said. "I roomed with him when I was a freshman and Zorn has been a big inspiration for me. He is doing a great job in Seattle. The Lord opened the door for him."

Ross didn't mind sitting out last year.

"Vinci brought it up and I am now glad that he did," Ross said. "I regret it at all because it gave me a chance to learn."

How about this week's battle?

"SLO is a good team, there's no doubt about it," Ross said. "We are really going to be up for this one. It's a game you look forward to all season. Coach doesn't have to say much to us this week."

Angels nab Sunset win

The Upland Angels clubbed the Fontana Stars 14-4 Sunday in a Sunset League winter baseball contest.

Bill Teague led the way with two home runs and a double, good for four RBIs, and four runs scored. Rudy Mendoza chipped in with two singles and a double and two-RBIs.

Joe Hermosillo hurled six and two-thirds innings of scoreless relief ball, fanning eight, to post the mound victory.

Upland is now 2-5 in league outings. Next game for the Angels will be Sunday at Colton.

Marathon set at Rose Bowl

PASADENA — A Rose Bowl marathon has been scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 20 at 7 a.m. The event will be co-sponsored by the Pasadena Rose Bowl and the YMCA and will be run at the Rose Bowl.

Pre-registration for the race is by mail only. Write to Race Director, Rose Bowl Marathon, 301 S. Bandini, San Pedro, Cal. 90731.

The race will be open to participants of all ages. For further information, call the Pasadena YMCA at (213) 793-3131.

Baja race will be uphill battle

ENSENADA, Mexico (AP) — The annual SCORE Baja offroad race will be more of an uphill battle this year, with mountains in front of the 300 or so competitors in the grueling event that in the past has been a desert affair.

The course of the 550-mile race, which begins Friday at daybreak, winds through mountains east of here. The mountains aren't particularly high, but rain-ravaged stretches of roadway through the pines up to the 4,000-foot level pose new problems for the drivers.

The route covers long stretches of countryside that was ravaged by late summer and early autumn rainfall.

SCORE president Sal Fish reported that 30 per cent of the roadway had to be rebuilt after rains that preceded Hurricane Liza. While Liza did not do as much damage in the northern sector of the peninsula as it did at La Paz, those earlier rains left behind death and destruction.

Much attention during the race will be focused on the continuing duel between former Indy 500 winner Parnelli Jones and hot-rodder Mickey Thompson.

Jones' car, built in his Torrance, Calif., shops, looks like a Chevrolet Blazer. Thompson, who has asked for a starting position at the back of the 32-car field of single-seat buggies, will be racing his V8-powered experimental buggy.

Dune buggies traditionally are powered by Volkswagen engines, with a sprinkling of Porches and Corvairs. Jones and Thompson drive the only American-built engine powered cars in the class.

But chances are slim for either Jones or Thompson to win the race over-all on elapsed time, even if they are able to finish ahead of dune buggy stars Bobby Ferro of Sherman Oaks, Calif., Ivan Stewart of Lakeside, Calif., Johnny Johnson of Lemon Grove, Calif., and Malcolm Smith of Riverside, Calif.

The reason, said Fish, is that motorcycle racers starting up to 90 minutes ahead of them have a chance to drive the entire 550 miles before nightfall.

Carey can go home

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — University of Southern California football player Mike Carey, with indications for his recovery good following surgery for Hodgkins Disease, is expected to be out of the hospital in about a week, doctors said.

Dr. Peter Rosen said Wednesday that biopsy tests on tissue taken from Carey during surgery Monday had proved negative, and that the disease had not spread.

MOBILE HOME SELLERS & BUYERS
DO YOU KNOW?
What a net listing is?
What an EXCLUSIVE listing is?
SELLERS why list your mobile home on a net or exclusive listing that stops you from selling it yourself, but let's The Mobile Home Broker add 2 to 4,000 on your price for his own profit!
Buyers can you afford to pay 2,000 to 4,000 extra for a home over what the owner is asking?
THE MOBILE HOME LOCATOR introduces buyers to sellers by appointment, then you agree on your own price. Then does the necessary paper work and financing to complete the sale.

$5 billion

Staggering loss of U.S. weapons to Hanoi bared

WASHINGTON (AP) — An estimated $5 billion in American-supplied weapons, including hundreds of planes, helicopters, tanks, artillery pieces and naval craft, were lost to the Communists in the collapse of South Vietnam, the Pentagon says.

The newly declassified report provides the first publicly detailed breakdown of the captured hardware since Hanoi's forces took over South Vietnam in spring of 1975. By itself, the list constitutes an entire army, air force and navy.

The gear includes 430 utility helicopters, 36 larger Ch47 Chinook helicopters, 73 F5 fighter planes, 113 A37 light bombers, 36 A1 bombers, 90 transport planes and 212 miscellaneous aircraft.

The Pentagon put the number of naval craft lost at 940, most of them patrol and river-warfare vessels.

The inventory also included 550 tanks, 1,200 armored personnel carriers, 1,330 howitzers and self-propelled guns, 63,000 antitank weapons, 47,000 grenade launchers and 12,000 mortars.

A total of 1.6 million rifles, including 791,000 M16s, were listed, along with 15,000 machine guns and 90,000 pistols.

The North Vietnamese also inherited a mountain of 130,000 tons of ammunition, 42,000 trucks and 48,000 radios.

The Pentagon said the captured equipment may have deteriorated from climate and weather conditions in South Vietnam. Nor does the list "take into account the degree of damage inflicted upon portions of the equipment left behind by retreating Republic of Vietnam forces during the final days," the report said.

Defense spokesmen told Congress some time ago they thought about $2 billion worth of the equipment was in serviceable shape when the North Vietnamese took over.

CMC conference takes dim view of Carter's economic policies

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Economists at Claremont Men's College Wednesday took a rather dim view of President-elect Jimmy Carter's projected economic policies.

At a special conference on the campus entitled "Economic Implications of the Election," John Rutledge, associate director of the center for Applied Financial Economics Center of CMC, predicted a bleak economic picture beyond 1979.

The economist said the next two years will bring lower unemployment, reduced inflation and a moderate rate of expansion to the U.S. economy.

But after that, Rutledge predicts higher government spending, rapid inflation, and possibly wage and price controls.

In discussing Carter, Rutledge said "If I had a major worry, it would be that Mr. Carter's economic advisers tend to be scientists, people who think experimentally about things.

"I think they could do a lot of harm."

The prediction of moderate growth during the next two years is based on what the center economists see as forces now at work in the economy, including a tight money supply that has inhibited inflation and the current expansion of the economy.

Rutledge added that the Federal Reserve has kept a close watch on money-supply growth.

"This has set the stage for a 3 to 4 per cent inflation rate for 1978 and 1979," he said. "In effect, inflation has already been cooled for Carter."

A. James Meigs, AFEC's director, told conference members that the nation's current economic expansion was firmly established despite the current slowdown, and that this would tend to reduce unemployment.

The economists are predicting a drop of unemployment from its current 7.9 per cent to about 6.5 per cent in 1978.

While the nation's gross national product declined by 1.7 per cent after inflation adjustment in 1975, the AFEC forecast predicts a rise by about 6.2 per cent this year.

The economists predict a further growth of the national product in both 1977 and 1978 of 4.4 per cent and 4.3 per cent respectively.

Rutledge said inflation, as it is measured by the consumer price index, will probably rise to 7 per cent or more in 1979 when the impact of Carter's expansionary policies begin to be felt.

Screaming children flee; husband held

DETROIT (AP) — Seven-year-old Laura Denomie and 35 other children had just started their English lesson in Betty McCaster's first-grade class. A man entered, exchanged a few words with the teacher, then pulled a gun.

"Miss McCaster was screaming," Laura recalled later. "(She) reached her hand out and tried to push the gun away but bullets hit her and she fell back against the table."

Miss McCaster, 46, was fatally shot in the head Wednesday in her classroom at Burt Elementary School on Detroit's northwest side.

"We were screaming, and we all ran out of the room," Laura told police. "He shot her three or four times from this far away," she said, indicating a distance of about five feet.

Hours later, police arrested Miss McCaster's estranged husband, Al J. Lewis, 46, on open charges. They said they would seek a first-degree murder warrant against him today.

Police said Lewis had a history of psychiatric problems.

Most classes were canceled for the rest of the day at the school, where Miss McCaster had transfered only three weeks ago because, police said, she was afraid of Lewis.

Her sobbing pupils fled the scene and clustered in a first-floor classroom. Their parents waited anxiously in the corridor while police tried to piece together the youngsters' confused stories of what happened.

As the youngsters were released one by one, their parents hurried them home.

Police and school officials said a man had come to the school, inquired where Miss McCaster's classroom was, and entered it just as she began an English lesson.

Pupils said the two exchanged a few words before the man pulled a gun. When Miss McCaster told one child to go to the principal's office for help, the children said, the gunman became infuriated.

The Detroit Free Press reported in today's editions that Lewis had for the past two months been trying to get public school officials to fire his ex-wife. Lewis called the newspaper several times, claiming he could prove Miss McCaster had stolen school equipment.

The newspaper said Lewis called a reporter Monday and said he had signed himself into Doctors Hospital and expected to be there three weeks. A hospital spokesman refused to say what kind of treatment Lewis had. He signed himself out Tuesday night.

School principal Wilbur Klein said Miss McCaster's husband, whom he knew slightly, had come to the school a few days ago and demanded to see his wife. The principal said he told Miss McCaster, but she refused to see Lewis.

A fellow teacher, Mrs. Ollie Trotter, said Miss McCaster told her a week ago she was going to the courts to seek protection from her husband.

Carter ends his vacation

ST. SIMONS ISLAND, GA. (AP) — Jimmy Carter, after naming the staff that will help plan his transition to the presidency, is ending his five-day vacation at a secluded wooded retreat here.

Carter and his entourage planned to return to Plains, Ga., today aboard a chartered commercial jetliner, not the presidential jet that brought the Carter family here last Saturday. Carter felt that it would be a waste to use two planes when one would do, press secretary Jody Powell said.

Carter told reporters Wednesday the vacation gave him a chance to rest and do his homework for the four-year job that lies ahead. He said it also afforded him an opportunity to "get reacquainted with my family" after the long campaign.

Powell announced the names of the top members of the transition staff, most of whom worked on Carter's campaign.

Still heading the staff is Jack Watson Jr., an Atlanta lawyer who has been laying the groundwork for the transition since last summer.

The staff director under Watson will be Barbara Blum, an Atlanta businesswoman who was Carter's deputy campaign director.

Starting Wednesday, the staff will work out of a fifth floor suite of offices in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare at the foot of Capitol Hill.

Powell also announced that President Ford has offered Carter pre-inauguration office and living space in a restored brownstone home on Lafayette Square across from the White House. The house has been designated by Congress for the use of former presidents. Ford himself is expected to use it when he leaves office Jan. 20.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Signal Corps is installing a sophisticated global communications center in Plains for Carter's use as President.

Postal service urging earlier Yule mailing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fearing that a United Parcel Service strike may eventually cause a letter jam, the Postal Service is asking the public to mail Christmas packages and cards earlier than usual this year.

The Postal Service on Wednesday moved up by one week the mailing deadlines it previously had suggested for Christmas mail. The new recommended mailings are Dec. 3 for domestic parcels and Dec. 10 for Christmas letters and cards.

The Postal Service said it "is compelled to ask the public to mail even earlier than normal" because its mail volume has been increased vastly by the UPS strike in 15 eastern and southern states.

The mail agency said in a statement that its parcel volume has more than doubled in the area from Maine to South Carolina during the eight-week-old strike. If the strike continues into the normally heavy Christmas mailing season, which begins after Thanksgiving, the Postal Service would face an unprecedented burden.

Parcels now take several more days than usual to be delivered in the strike area, Kenneth Lynn, Postal Service director of distribution systems, said in an interview. First class letters are experiencing very slight delays, he said.

The Postal Service has added 6,200 temporary workers.

Ford may reside in Palm Springs

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — President Ford has not decided where he will reside after leaving office on Jan. 20, a White House spokesman says.

With Ford spending the entire week here in the warm desert sun on a post-election vacation, reporters speculated that the President might be considering Palm Springs as a future residence.

But White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Wednesday, "He's not going to make any decision" on his future for now.

Rising illegitimacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time since records have been kept, more children were born out of wedlock last year in the nation's capital than were born to married women, the city's human resources department reported Wednesday.

The National Center for Health Statistics here said Washington is the first major American city where that has occurred.

City officials reported that 4,988 children were born to unmarried women in the District of Columbia in 1975, compared with 4,758 born to married women.

Officials said 57 per cent of all children born to blacks in Washington last year were born out of wedlock, while 12.9 per cent of white babies were illegitimate.

Panel cites other side of pay issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — "In many small towns, $44,600 (the current congressional salary) sounds like a good deal of money," Peter G. Peterson said.

That provincial perspective on the value of a year's work in Washington is the big reason why Peterson thinks it is unlikely that congressmen, judges and federal executives are going to get hefty pay raises next year.

Peterson, chairman of the Commission on Executive, Legislative and Judicial Salaries, said Wednesday that "we should not underestimate the fallout effects" in the last two years of the Wayne Hays and other congressional scandals, Watergate and reports of illegal contributions from corporations.

"There is no doubt that the anti-Washington attitude the Carter campaign ran on is very powerful," Peterson said during the final day of the panel's two-day hearing on pay raises for the top executive, judicial and legislative personnel.

Wednesday's testimony presented the other side of the pay-raise question. Tuesday, the commssion heard several witnesses recommend hefty raises of about 50 per cent for top government executives, congressmen and federal judges.

The top personnel levels have had just one 5 per cent raise since 1969, they noted, and it is becoming difficult to attract able people because private sector salaries are much higher.

Peterson's commission will recommend pay raises to President Ford. He will include the amounts he deems appropriate in the fiscal 1978 budget he will submit to Congress in January.

Mom gets hostile calls after turning son in

NEW IBERIA, La. (AP) — "I did what I had to do," says a mother whose son was sentenced to 99 years in prison for armed bank robbery after she helped authorities catch him.

"(I did) what I thought was best, and it's nobody else's business," Rosemary Francis said Wednesday.

Her son, Jerry Paul Francis, 18, and an accomplice, Preston George Demouchet, 24, were sentenced in District Court on Wednesday for a bank robbery last May in which a teller was shot.

The teller, Beverly Shauffe, was alone when the bandits arrived at the St. Martin Bank & Trust Bank in rural Parks. They forced her to lie on the floor, police said, and before leaving, one of the men shot her in the head with a .38-caliber pistol. She lies now in a nursing home, unable to move or speak.

"If he did that, I had to turn him in," Mrs. Francis said. "If he did that, he was liable to do something else worse, and I'd rather turn him in than have him lying dead in the streets."

Police got on the trail of the bandits quickly. A photograph of them, taken by an automatic camera at the bank, was published in the newspaper here and Mrs. Francis recognized one as her son and went to police.

Since then, she said she has gotten hostile telephone calls from people in this town near the Gulf Coast west of New Orleans.

"People have been calling me all hours of the night, sometimes 2 o'clock in the morning, and calling me dirty for turning him in," said Mrs. Francis. "I'm the one that's got to live with what I did, and I don't see why it's bothering them."

More funds for experimental child care program approved by Brown

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has approved $3 million more in federal funds for a state experimental child care program next year, a state health official says.

Deputy director Gary Macomber of the state Department of Health revealed the decision Wednesday at a joint state Senate-Assembly legislative hearing on the state's child care program.

Brown okayed the additional expenditure at a weekend meeting in a move "to prevent a cutback" in a $30 million experimental child care program approved in the 1975-76 session, Macomber said.

The funds will funnel into the existing experimental program which emphasizes "smaller home-type care as an alternative to children's center-based programs, hopefully at a lower cost," Macomber said.

The Democratic governor has said he won't consider big new amounts of money for child care without first gaining a better grasp on what makes the program so expensive and what kind of care would be best.

Asked whether women's rights and child care enthusiasts' pressure sparked Brown to agree to the extra money, Macomber said:

"He didn't state that outright. But obviously he is aware of that as we all are."

The source of the funds is a federal social service bill approved by Congress this year, releasing $23.7 million in funds for California.

To skirt federal staffing requirements, the $3 million in federal dollars will be "put into one pot," freeing $3 million in state money for child care, Macomber said.

Had Brown failed to okay the extra $3 million, state officials would have needed to spread $10 million over a 12-month period in fiscal year 1977-78, which begins next July 1.

The law authorizing the experimental program provided $10 million a year for three years. But child care backers contended more than $10 million was needed in 1977-78 to avoid program cutbacks.

Child care programs in California now cost $74 million a year in federal, state and local money, not counting the $10-million-a-year experimental program, state officials say.

Department of Education officials say there are 60,000 children in child care programs in California and about another half million children who need state-subsidized child care.

Patty Siegal, director of a San Francisco child care facility, hailed the news of the $3 million as a "positive move."

Brown's adviser on child care issues, J. Anthony Kline, said he realized some wouldn't think the additional funds were sufficient but said at least "it's something."

Word of the $3 million in funding came after testimony at the hearing from John Mockler, spokesman for the Department of Education.

Mockler said there appeared to be some feeling in the governor's office that child care possibly could be provided at less cost.

"Our view is that it is not possible unless you're willing to exploit the children or workers in the child care centers," Mockler testified.

A SQUARE EGG?

Man has devised the square egg. It works this way: a warm, peeled, hard-boiled egg is placed in a small, square, plastic compression box. After a few minutes in the refrigerator, it has been pressed square. It won't roll off a plate, and it goes well with contemporary furniture. Its inventor, Stan Pargman, points out it's a square meal.

Pomonan's trial date set: Dec. 3

A Pomona woman charged with manslaughter in the slaying of a man described as her boyfriend the night of Aug. 13 faces trial Dec. 3 in Pomona Superior Court.

She is Letitia Jones, 26, of 419 E. Fourth St., who is charged with voluntary manslaughter. She is free on $3,500 bail.

The victim, Leroy Powell, 29, was found stabbed five times in the back, lying in the backseat of a car parked in the middle of 11th Street between Main and Thomas streets in Pomona that Friday night. Powell was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital, but was dead.

The suspect was found standing beside the car when police arrived. They quoted her as saying she and Powell had been arguing over money. The weapon was believed to have been the 4-inch steak knife officers said they found inside the car.

Continental's flights resume

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Continental Airlines jetliners, grounded since a pilots' strike began Oct. 23, are expected to be flying again Monday now that the strike has been settled.

Two more hospital deaths are probed

VENTURA (AP) — The nighttime deaths of two patients at Camarillo State Hospital came under strange circumstances that testimony before a grand jury has failed to explain, and a third patient starved to death under the eyes of the doctors.

Indications in testimony Wednesday were that failure to follow hospital policies about checking patients at night and banning smoking materials in sleeping areas may have contributed to at least two deaths.

The grand jury looking at least a dozen questionable deaths at the hospital over the past four years was in recess today after three days of public hearings because of the Veterans Day holiday.

In one case, in the death of Steven Miller, 33, from starvation, dehydration, and pulmonary edema, testimony indicated that patients were assumed to be free of medical problems when they came to Camarillo — an assumption that proved fatally wrong.

Another victim whose case was discussed Wednesday was Artemy Cross, who died during a fire in an isolation room under circumstances that Deputy Dist. Atty. William Maxwell called "just weird."

L.P. man to face murder charge

A La Puente man accused of forcing his son-in-law off a Rapid Transit District bus and shooting him to death the morning of June 28 is scheduled for trial on a murder charge Nov. 17 in Pomona Superior Court.

He is Paul Martinez Rodriguez, 52, who pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity when he was arraigned. He was not admitted to bail.

The victim, Sam J. Bellina, 26, of West Covina, was shot five times after being forced to lie on the sidewalk at Valley Boulevard and Azusa Avenue. Rodriguez was arrested by sheriff's deputies arriving at the scene.

Deputies said Rodriguez boarded the bus, strode to the seat where the victim sat and shouted, "I told you I was going to get you." Several passengers tried to intervene but shrank back when Rodriguez allegedly fired a shot into the ceiling of the bus. The victim then was taken outside and killed.

Investigators blamed the incident on a family dispute.

Anti-truancy program now in operation

"Operation Increased Attendance" was launched for the second year in the Pomona School District Wednesday by the Pomona Valley Juvenile Diversion Project.

A total of 16 youths was picked up during the first day of the anti-truancy program by Pomona police and returned to their schools.

The program, in which personnel from the school district, police and diversion project participate, will be in operation daily this year whenever schools are in session.

Major goal of the program is to halt daylight juvenile crime and protect youngsters from getting into trouble.

Youngsters without proper authorization will be picked up on the streets by police and returned to their school for counseling and classes. After a third truancy incident, the youth's parents will be called in for a special conference.

The coordinator of the program for juvenile diversion is Robert Little.

Walnut council discusses city's site of utilities

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Correspondent

The future of undergrounding utilities in the city occupied the Walnut City Council at its regular meeting Wednesday at City Hall.

At present the city maintains a policy of undergrounding utility lines whenever and wherever it is feasible, said City Manager Vern Lawson. Lawson reported to the council on the possibilities of undergrounding lines adjacent to subdivisions. Discussions with representatives of the Edison Co. and other cities where undergrounding has taken place, said Lawson, has shown some possible troubles an undergrounding program could encounter.

While undergrounding lines within tracts presents no major problem, the city manager said problems could be encountered with utility users on the same line, but not in the tract. Lawson said that a line underground next to the high school, for example, would have to be paid for by the high school

"Right now our recommendation on undergrounding adjacent lines is yes, whenever possible. I realize that's nebulous, but in this case it has to be," said Lawson. He told the council undergrounding adjacent lines could be a policy of the city only if enforced on a reasonable basis.

Councilman Richard Laughter asked Lawson for cost estimates on undergrounding lines and was told that costs vary greatly depending upon the type of line, the number of junction boxes and other variables. Laughter said he felt the establishment of assessment districts to underground adjacent lines might be one answer to the situation because costs could be spread out over a long period.

Lawson told the councilman that assessment districts were feasible but that the city then encountered the problem of having the line placed underground, assessments made on adjacent property owners, and then another party coming along to hook up on the already underground line without bearing any of the costs.

"It's certainly as important as our maintenance districts," said Laughter. "The lines are certainly unsightly."

Councilman Joe Hahn said that undergrounding adjacent lines could only be done case by case. "We're talking about the peripheral lines at the edge of a tract. Will residents in a tract want to underground peripheral lines when all the lines in the tract are already underground?"

Mayor William Cotten noted that further undergrounding will also result in problems of right of way that could be very costly to developers.

The last execution

LUIS JOSE MONGE

CANON CITY, Colo. (AP) — Luis Jose Monge, the last man executed in the United States, died in a gas chamber at the Colorado State Penitentiary on June 2, 1967, after telling a Benedictine priest he was ready for death.

Like Gary Mark Gilmore, a convicted murderer who convinced the Utah Supreme Court on Wednesday to let him face a firing squad next Monday, Monge wanted his sentence carried out quickly.

"The crime I committed I know I am guilty of," he told a judge in 1963. "That is all there is to it. I want to get it over with as soon as I can."

After Monge's death, further executions were held up while the U.S. Supreme Court reviewed the constitutionality of the death penalty. The court ruled that it constituted cruel and unusual punishment as it was being applied, but last summer it declared that new state laws requiring death for specific crimes could be constitutional.

Monge, a 48-year-old insurance salesman, confessed to bludgeoning his wife and three of their 10 children to death on June 28, 1963. He said he would have killed the other children, but was stopped when his last victim, a 6-year-old son, startled him by crying out, "Daddy, daddy."

Monge first voiced his wish for quick execution in the Denver courtroom where he was tried. When mention was made of his repeated assaults on one of his daughters, Monge jumped to his feet demanding immediate execution.

But four years passed between the trial and his death.

Gets wish from court— death by firing squad

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gary Mark Gilmore, a convicted murderer who asked the Utah Supreme Court to let him "die like a man," will face a firing squad Monday barring appeals for a second stay of execution.

The execution, scheduled for 8 a.m. on the Utah State Prison grounds 20 miles south of here, would be the first in the United States since Luis Jose Monge died in a Colorado gas chamber on June 2, 1967. There are more than 400 men and women awaiting possible execution on Death Rows across the nation.

Retiring Gov. Calvin L. Rampton, a supporter of capital punishment, said he would study Gilmore's case and issue a statement today.

The governor can stay an execution until the next meeting of the State Board of Pardons. That would not be until two days after Gilmore is scheduled to die.

Gilmore, wearing handcuffs, white prison garb and red-white-and-blue tennis shoes, told the five Supreme Court justices Wednesday:

"I believe I was given a fair trial, and I think the sentence was proper, and I'm willing to accept it like a man and wish it to be carried out without delay."

The justices, in a 4-1 ruling, then vacated a stay they had granted Monday by a 3-2 vote and agreed to let Gilmore be shot on schedule.

"The stay of execution heretofore granted is withdrawn and vacated and any appeal filed on behalf of Gary Gilmore is dismissed forthwith," the court said.

Gilmore's role in the case left groups opposed to capital punishment in an awkward position. But Shirley Pedler, director of the Utah chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, said her group was considering at least two possible lines of last-minute appeal.

She said one was to appeal the constitutionality of the Utah law to the U.S. Supreme Court, which ruled earlier this year that capital punishment was not inherently unconstitutional.

The other possibility, she said, was to ask the courts to forbid use of tax money to pay for an unconstitutional execution.

Each of five volunteer members of the firing squad would earn $175.

Michael Esplin, a court-appointed lawyer who filed an earlier appeal with the Supreme Court and was fired by Gilmore, warned that the justices may not accept a new appeal against Gilmore's wishes.

But he said that lawyers for other Death Row inmates might still seek a stay in federal courts if the justices decline to accept the Gilmore case in its present state.

The possibility of still other litigation leading to a stay was raised by David Kendall, an expert on capital punishment for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Kendall said there were reports that Denis Boaz, Gilmore's new California lawyer, was a writer as well as a lawyer and might have a contract to write about the case. This, he said, might represent a conflict of interest.

If the courts refuse to reconsider the case, a stay would then be up to the Board of Pardons.

Wednesday's hearing was on a motion by Deputy Atty. Gen. Robert B. Hansen, who had asked for a reversal of the stay of execution order.

Hansen said the issue was "whether the law with respect to this appeal is to be made by the legislature or this court" since Utah law does not provide an automatic appeal for capital crimes.

"My client understands his absolute right to an appeal, but he does not wish to take it," replied Boaz. "This is not a suicide pact or perverse death wish.

"Mr. Gilmore has been adjudged responsible for his act and has made peace with himself. He wishes to die like a man."

But Esplin in a telephone interview after Wednesday's decision said he thinks a suicide motive "is a very real possibility" for Gilmore's recent behavior.

Esplin said the convict once told him, "If they don't do it, I'm going to do it myself. I'm not going to spend the rest of my life in prison."

Gilmore, who would be 36 on Dec. 4, was convicted of first degree murder for fatally shooting Bennie Bushnell, 25, last summer during the robbery of a Provo motel. Gilmore said he ordered Bushnell to lie on the floor, put a pistol to his head and pulled the trigger.

Gilmore, who had been on parole since April 9 from an Illinois prison, has spent 18 years in prisons for robbery, car theft and assault.

He also is charged with the fatal shooting the night before Bushnell's death of a Brigham Young University law student who worked as a part-time gas station attendant.

Utah State Prison Warden Samuel W. Smith said he has had no shortage of volunteers for the firing squad, which was last used in 1960 to execute James W. Rodgers for the murder of a fellow miner.

Utah gives condemned prisoners a choice between hanging and the firing squad, the latter a survival from territorial days and Mormon adherence to the biblical tenet of blood atonement. Gilmore has said he prefers to be shot.

Gilmore's execution would be the 39th in Utah by firing squad.

At one point during Wednesday's hearing, Gilmore's lawyer asked his client if he was prepared to die.

"Not at this very moment, but I'm ready to accept it next Monday morning at 8 a.m.," Gilmore replied.

Ontario woman shot; estranged husband jailed

A 47-year-old Ontario woman was shot and seriously wounded Wednesday, and her husband has been booked for attempted murder at West End Jail, police reported today.

Johnnie Lois Baker, of 301 E. Nevada St., Ontario, was listed in fair condition at San Bernardino County Hospital with shotgun wounds in the right hand and upper left leg.

Her husband, Glen Jordan, 40, of 331 E. Acacia St., Ontario, was arrested shortly after the 10 a.m. incident at the Nevada Street address.

Mrs Baker said that she is legally married to Jordan, but did not take his last name. The pair have been separated for some time, police said.

Officers said that Jordan went to his estranged wife's home and took with him a 12-guage shotgun about 10 a.m.

He knocked on her door, and was admitted. The pair began arguing and a struggle for the shotgun ensued, said police.

Police said the woman went into the bedroom and was followed by her husband. Jordan is accused of leveling the shotgun at Mrs. Baker who was sitting on the bed, and firing one shot.

On the officers' arrival at the house, they were met by Jordan who said the shooting was an "accident."

Mrs. Baker was rushed to Ontario Community Hospital for treatment, and transferred to San Bernardino County Hospital.

Jordan was booked into West End Jail on the attempted murder charge in lieu of $25,000 bail.

Court escapee arrested

A 22-year-old man who escaped from the Pomona Municipal Court Building late Wednesday afternoon was arrested later hiding in the attic of his home, police reported.

The man, Henry L. Hernandez, fled from the courthouse at 350 W. Mission Blvd. where he had been awaiting arraignment on charges of burglary and the illegal use of drugs, police reported.

An extensive search of the area failed to turn up the suspect but shortly after 8:30 p.m. he was found in the attic of the residence at 2031 Munhall St. He wswas booked on suspicion of escape.

Driver kidnaped, robbed

A 21-year-old Ontario man flagged down by two men near the Pomona Freeway in Chino was kidnaped, robbed, and forced out of his truck Wednesday night, Chino police reported.

David Holland told police that he stopped for two men who flagged him down on Ramona Avenue near the freeway about 7:20 p.m.

He said that the men walked over to his truck and opened the doors.

He said that one of the men pulled a revolver, and told him to drive onto the freeway.

While enroute, the men threatened to kill him if he didn't hand over his wallet. Holland complied and the men told him to drive off the freeway and stop near Walker Street in east Chino.

Holland was then pushed out of the pickup and the two attackers drove off towards Riverside.

Holland ran to the home of a Los Angeles County sheriff's deputy.

A woman, holding a shotgun, told him at the home to wait in the garage while she called the police. When police arrived, Holland told them of his kidnaping.

The two attackers were described as white, 17 to 19, 5 feet 9 inches tall, 120 to 135 pounds.

One of the men was wearing a red shirt, while the other wore a baseball cap, blue jacket, and blue jeans.

Chino police said today that two men matching the descriptions of Holland's assailants and riding in a pickup truck raped a woman in the Riverside area later Wednesday night.

Two teenagers shot

Two teenagers were shot and slightly wounded by two other youths riding a motorcycle on State Street near Lemon Avenue in Ontario about 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, police reported.

The two victims, Reynaldo Serrato, 15, and Rickey Vasquez, 14, of Ontario, told officers that they were walking home when two other youths on a motorcycle passed them several times.

The victims said that the motorcycle was stopped and the motorcycle passenger got off and fired five shots at them for no apparent reason.

One of the bullets struck Serrato in the right thigh and another ricocheted off the sidewalk, and grazed Vasquez, police said.

The two boys were taken to Ontario Community Hospital for treatment of their wounds.

Vasquez was released and Serrato was admitted and listed in satisfactory condition this morning.

Police are seeking two Latin juveniles, 16 to 18 years of age, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, in connection with the incident. One of the youths was wearing a white T-shirt and brown pants, while the other was wearing a blue Pendleton shirt, a blue beanie, and grey khaki pants.

Nixon's interviews with Frost delayed

NEW YORK (AP) — The broadcast of David Frost's impending interview with former President Richard M. Nixon has been postponed from February to May, a spokesman for Frost says.

No reason was given Wednesday for the postponements.

Kissinger job hunting; has offers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Situation wanted: well-travelled professor seeks challenging work outside of government. Available after Jan. 20.

Don't look for that message in the want ads, but Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has acknowledged that he is job hunting.

Recently State Department spokesman Robert L. Funseth said Kissinger felt it would be "improper" to discuss any job offers while he was still in government.

But on Wednesday Funseth told reporters that Kissinger plans to meet with "a few people" in the coming weeks to discuss his future as a private citizen. He did not identify them.

Associates say Kissinger faces no shortage of job offers.

The offers are coming to him and to his lawyer, Carlyle Maw, who also serves as a consultant to the State Department.

One friend said Kissinger may join corporate boards of directors, but has ruled out any government post.

Kissinger is expected to write his memoirs, and Maw has acknowledged that Kissinger already has received several book offers.

It is commonly felt in publishing circles that the inside story of Kissinger's diplomatic exploits would be a runaway best seller.

According to some accounts, a friend working on Kissinger's behalf has been investigating such journalistic prospects as writing a daily newspaper column or a monthly magazine column or being a foreign policy expert for a television network.

The former Harvard professor of international relations also could return to academic life.

But whatever Kissinger decides, he intends to keep it to himself until he leaves the government.

"He has indicated to me that he doesn't intend to comment on various reports which might speculate about his future," Funseth said Wednesday.

Funseth said Kissinger "plans to meet with a few people concerning his future in this interim period." But the spokesman added, "He is going to make no decisions until he has left office."

Kissinger and his wife, Nancy, recently moved into a rented house in Georgetown that has a one-year lease. That would indicate that he intends to remain here for a while.

CBS is one of Kissinger's rumored future employers. Richard Salant, president of CBS News, said Wednesday he did not think Kissinger would be hired to do documentaries. "Not so far as I understand," Salant said.

Billy Halop, Dead End Kid, dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Funeral serves were pending today for Billy Halop, one of the leaders of the Dead End Kids in 1930s movies.

Halop was 16 when he gained fame in 1936 playing Tommy in the motion picture, "Dead End." But in a 50-year entertainment career he performed on Broadway, on radio, in movies and on television.

Halop, who died Tuesday in his sleep at age 56, played the leader of the Hell's Kitchen youth gang in the 1934 Broadway production of "Dead End" when he was 14. Two years later, when the film version of the play came to the screen, he was teamed with such notable Dead End kids as Huntz Hall and Leo Gorcey.

Halop began his acting career at age 6 on a radio series called "Bobby Benson and his H Bar O Rangers."

After "Dead End" there followed movies including "Angels with Dirty Faces," "They Made Me a Criminal," "Little Tough Guy" and "You're Not So Tough." Halop's most recent role was in the television series "All In the Family."

He leaves his sister, actress Florence Halop, his mother, and a brother, Joel.

Among the original Dead End Kids still alive are actor Gabriel Dell, who portrayed T.B., and Bernard Punsley, who played Milty. He now is a doctor. Gorcey, who played Spit, and Bobby Jordan, who was Angel, died recently.

ELLEN CORBY

Granny Walton has stroke

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Ellen Corby, who plays "Granny" on "The Waltons" television series, was hospitalized Wednesday in critical condition after suffering a stroke, hospital officials said.

Cedars-Sinai Medical Center spokesman Tess Griffin said, "I can tell you she's had a stroke and is in critical condition."

She said the 63-year-old actress was admitted at 11:25 a.m.

Linda Fumia, production secretary of "The Waltons" show, said the producer, Andy White, went to Miss Corby's home in Hollywood after she failed to report for work.

When there was no answer at the door, an ambulance was called and paramedics broke down the door to the house.

"They found her unconscious on the second floor landing," said Miss Fumia.

Despite the critical status of her condition, Miss Fumia said, "The doctors told us that her vital signs are good. She was alert when she got to the hospital and she recognized everyone around her. We're hoping that she'll be all right."

Murder victims found

SAN BERNARDINO (AP)— The bodies of two men, victims of apparently unrelated murders, have been discovered in San Bernardino County.

Hunters in Cajon Pass discovered the body of an unidentified man in his 20s who had been shot and buried in a three-foot deep grave. Officials said his nude body had been wrapped in a sheet and buried in the grave.

The body of S. Sgt. Dennis Adams, 28, was found by high school students near California highway 58, about 15 miles west of Barstow.

Adams, stationed at the Twentynine Palms Marine base, was shot to death. His wallet and car were missing.

His wife said he left home Sunday and never appeared at the base.

Sniffing spray proves fatal

NORWALK (AP)—Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies say a 17-year-old Norwalk girl died because she sniffed a plastic bag full of a nonstick frying pan spray.

Ford's budget chief pursues '79 balance

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's budget director says Ford is pushing ahead with his program to achieve a balanced budget by 1979, even though that goal apparently is imperiled by Jimmy Carter's election victory.

"That was the plan given me by the President which he considers sound and which I believe is sound, so I'm operating under that guidance," Director James T. Lynn of the Office of Management and Budget said in an interview Wednesday.

Lynn said Ford also would propose to Congress his plan to cut income taxes by $10 billion next year. There would be a companion proposal for an increase in Social Security taxes, so the net tax reduction would be about $7 billion, Lynn said.

Lynn said these are the same tax-cuts Ford first proposed in October 1975 and which Congress rejected. "We believed them to be in the public interest over a year ago," Lynn said.

Ford's budget and tax proposals will be sent to Congress on Jan. 17, three days before Carter takes office. These will be the proposed budget for fiscal 1978, which begins next Oct. 1, and Ford's plan for achieving a balanced budget the following fiscal year.

Carter's aides have said the new president will urge changes in Ford's proposals, including the 1977 budget, after he takes office. Carter is expected to propose somewhat higher spending for job programs in 1977 and probably slightly less for defense than what Ford will urge.

Carter has pledged a balanced budget by 1981, two years later than Ford. The Democratic-led congressional budget committees have also set 1981 as their target for a balanced budget.

The recession led Ford and Congress to wrack up the largest deficit in the nation's history in fiscal 1976 — $65.6 billion. It exceeded the wartime budget deficit of $54.9 billion in 1943.

Government spending exceeded revenues by $12.7 billion during a transitional quarter that ended Sept. 30, and congressional budget-makers expect a deficit of $50.6 billion in fiscal 1977, which ends next Sept. 30.

Ford has proposed a $47.4-billion deficit for fiscal 1977, but he hoped to end the deficits by 1979.

Carter argued during the campaign that a balanced budget before 1981 would hold down economic growth and keep unemployment high.

Death ends pregnancy debate

DENVER (AP) — A pregnant woman, the subject of an unusual medical debate concerning the 15-week-old fetus she carried, is dead.

Doctors at Colorado General Hospital used life support machinery for more than 48 hours after 29-year-old Linda Culbertson was critically injured in an automobile accident on Monday.

While the machinery kept Mrs. Culbertson technically alive, doctors pondered the ethical, legal and medical questions of trying to keep her alive in the hope they could some day deliver her baby.

When they decided their effort had no chance for success, they made plans to terminate the extraordinary life support. Before they could do so, Mrs. Culbertson's heartbeat, and that of the fetus, stopped.

"It was the judgment of our medical staff that nothing could be done to preserve a viable fetus," hospital spokesman Eric Munson said after a team of surgeons, obstetricians and pediatricians had reached their decision.

The decision to terminate the life-saving effort was reached with the consent of the woman's husband, Vaughn.

LARRY ABLER

New planning commissioner in Montclair is sworn in

Larry Abler, a 12-year resident of Montclair, was sworn in this week as a new member of the Montclair Planning Commission.

Abler succeeds Robert Monteith who recently resigned from the commission because he will be moving out of the city.

Abler, 43, served as a member of the Community Action Committee for 4½ years and was chairman during 1974-75. The committee projects during that time included a community survey identifying the needs of residents; reviewing financing for community service projects and programs; coordinating the annual Cleanup, Fixup, Paintup Campaign and the Student Government Day activities between the city and Montclair High School; and developing the political sign ordinance in the city.

He also was among the members of the 20th Anniversary Celebration Committee which staged a parade, carnival, entertainment and a host of other activities in April this year in commemoration of the city's birthday and the nation's Bicentennial.

Abler and his wife, Shirley, have five daughters, Cathy, 20; Karen, 19; Diana, 18; Teri, 15 and Sharon, 11; and one son, Larry Jr., 16. He owns Thermo-Steam Boiler Co. in South El Monte, a firm that builds boilers for laundries and dry clearners. Mrs. Abler is employed at Harris Pine Mills in Ontario.

Five hurt in two-car accident

Five persons were injured Tuesday when two cars collided on the San Bernardino Freeway near San Antonio Avenue, Ontario. The accident blocked westbound lanes for nearly two hours.

Injured were Tina Barkley, 22, and her passengers, Richard McDowell, 32, Joseph Lawrence, 37, Clinton McDowell, 34, and Carole McGowen, 20, all of Los Angeles.

The second driver, Richard Daniels, 59, Mira Loma, wasn't hurt.

The injured were transported to San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland where they were treated and later released.

Highway patrolmen said the Los Angeles woman's car had a tire blowout, causing her to slow and pull off the freeway offramp. The second vehicle then struck the back of the disabled automobile, said officers.

Westminster man injured

A 34-year-old Westminster man was injured when he lost control of his car and went over an embankment on Brea Canyon Road north of Tonner Canyon Road in Brea Tuesday.

Danny MacBrown, 34, was treated for injuries at Brea Olinda Community Hospital and later released.

California Highway patrolmen said MacBrown failed to negotiate a curve and the car went over the embankment and rolled over several times.

Shooting victim is transferred

A Pomona man who was shot three times outside a tavern Aug. 27 and who was in Pomona Valley Community Hospital's intensive care unit since then, has been transferred to a general care ward and is now said to be in good condition.

He is John Aaron Smith, 24, who was beaten and shot in the chest on the parking lot of the Palms tavern at 903 E. Mission Blvd.

Witnesses said Smith was pulled from his car and attacked by two men. Police later arrested two suspects, but they were not prosecuted and were released. Investigation of the case was hindered because of Smith's long period of unconsciousness, police said.

Smith was in critical condition until the latter period of October when he began to improve.

Pomona council slates hearing for M.M. project

Pomona City Council has accepted reports from the city's Planning and Redevelopment Commissions concerning the proposed Mountain Meadows Redevelopment Project area, and has set a public hearing for Nov. 22 to decide whether to move forward with the project.

The hearing will be held in the council chambers at 8 p.m.

Reports accepted Monday consisted of a finding by the Planning Commission that the tentative plans for the project conform to the city's General Plan, and a finding by the Redevelopment Commission that the proposal conforms to redevelopment law requirements.

Plans for the area, which is generally the undeveloped portions of the Ganesha Hills east of Ganesha Boulevard, call for construction of homes in the $70,000-and-up category.

The procedure for forming the redevelopment district is speeding up, as city officials attempt to outrun new state laws that will effect redevelopment districts formed after Jan. 1.

Those laws would require that 20 per cent of all monies generated in new redevelopment projects be used to provide low cost housing in the city.

City Council members are dead set against such a move, contending that the city already suffers from a surplus of low cost housing.

In other business, the council approved the priorities for expenditure of some $335,000 in federal grant funds for beautification in the city.

Projects set for funding include landscaping and entryway signs at such locations as Garey Avenue and the Pomona Freeway; Mission Boulevard at General Dynamics; Indian Hill Boulevard and American Avenue; Garey Avenue at the San Bernardino Freeway and other locations depending on how far the money can be stretched.

Other projects include beautification along Holt Avenue and decoration of the railroad underpasses at White, Garey and Towne avenues.

State gets some breathing room on logging problem

By RON ROACH
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO (AP) — An agreement to suspend some logging near Redwood National Park will give the state time to seek congressional action on a possible solution to the logging problem, officials say.

"It gives us some breathing room," Taylor Miller, assistant secretary of the state Resources Agency, said Tuesday of the decision last week by Arcata Redwood Co. to suspend Redwood Creek logging through the winter.

Miller said Resources Secretary Claire Dedrick will seek congressional hearings next year on a three-part proposal.

"All three parts have to go together if she is to continue to support action by Congress" on the 58,000-acre park in Del Norte and Humboldt counties, Miller said.

The three points are:

—Expansion of the park to make it a manageable park unit. "Quite apart from the issue of logging, it is completely incompatible land use to have a supposedly tranquil park area with ... reverberating chain saws and trucks nearby," Miler said.

He said "no amount of regulation on on-going logging can fully satisfy the concerns of all the people" who find logging along Redwood Creek "an insult to the senses."

Hearings should determine whether enlarging the park is a viable solution, Miller said. "We want arguments for and against and have a decision. There has to be a final determination. Maybe we're just whistling in the wind, but we will do all we can to get it resolved."

He said it is "clear we can't resolve it" through the Forest Practices Act of California, which he said is "inadequate because it is hard to address the gut issue: should redwood be cut at all?"

—Employment and the economy of the region. "If Congress decides to add to the park (and the result would be more unemployed loggers and timber processors) there should be some federally funded economic program for the county, which already has high unemployment," Miller said.

—Protection of the "Tall Trees Grove," including the world's tallest known tree, which is 367 feet high. Erosion upstream from the park has caused sediment to raise the creek bed as much as 15 feet in some areas, and five feet near the tall tree grove in the last 10 or 15 years.

Loggers say above average rainfall has caused the erosion, but the state feels "significant" factors include logging, road building and the clearing of land for grazing.

"We want to cope with the risk to the tall trees, not establish who is at fault," Miller said.

Only six per cent of the land in the creek basin is left outside the park and logging it would "add small, marginal risk to the tall grove," he said. "We're not proposing to add it to the park just for the purpose of protecting the redwoods. That would not be justified.

"But in making sense, it's justified. Because (if logging were to continue) 50 years from now we'd have the same incompatible situation."

He said the state isn't leaving it all up to the federal government. State regulations will be used to ensure further logging won't endanger the park.

A conclusion is expected soon, Miller said, on negotiations that began last winter between the National Park Service, the U.S. Justice Department, the state attorney general's office and three companies.

The goal is a procedure to have the logging plans of Arcata Redwood, Louisana Pacific and Simpson Timber companies evaluated at least two years into the future.

"The Park Service would have an early look at the plans" and relieve the strain on the state regulatory process, he said.

Claremont principal named chairman of accreditation team

John E. Mann, principal of Claremont High School, has been named chairman for the Western Association of Schools and Colleges' accreditation team for La Quinta High School at Garden Grove.

Mann recently served on a state committee which reviewed an evaluation tool used by schools having undergone three evaluations.

The new approach to self-evaluation will be used by La Quinta in an effort to foster excellence secondary education, encourage school improvement through a process of continuous self-study and evaluation, and assure that the school has clearly defined and appropriate educational goals and objectives.

Mann will lead a team of six professionals and a student in the final phase of the accreditation.

Korn dogs are a work of art

CHICAGO (AP) — Gustav Korn, who studied painting in his native Budapest, Hungary, and dreamed of perhaps becoming a great artist, now has hundreds of his paintings displayed — all of hot dogs.

Korn, 62, came to this country 20 years ago and went to work for a sausage company, curing corned beef. In his spare time he painted landscapes.

Two years ago one of his bosses noticed Korn's paintings at an art show.

"And the next day I had a new job with the company, a sign painter," said Korn. "I paint hot dogs with and without mustard; or with relish and mustard, or with onions, relish and mustard, most often in a bun.

"But sometimes I paint just the naked weiner or sausage. The colors can be just as exciting as those in a landscape."

He says no two hot dogs are alike. There are variations in their curve, shape and color. "Each one is a new challenge. I have as much fun painting hot dogs as I do painting landscapes," he said.

Korn said his weekly production may be as many as a dozen signs, 2-by-3 feet in size. "It's not a job I can rush or be pushed. For instance, Polish sausages are 20 inches long and are cut in half. My paintings show the cut and it takes time to get it right," he said.

The signs are distributed by the company in a seven-state area for use at hot dog stands, restaurants and delicatessens.

Korn said when he retires in another three years he will devote full time to his hobby of painting landscapes.

Udall proposes Carter push for Ford-veto bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Morris Udall says Jimmy Carter could get off to a quick start in the presidency by pushing for passage of some of the bills that were never enacted or fell victim to President Ford's vetoes.

"If I were he," Udall said, "I would take the half-dozen most outrageous Ford vetoes of bills that have been debated and finely honed and say let's do these in February and March. Pick something that has been pawed over and is finely tuned and is ready to roll and put it on the road and move it.

"People like a winner and people like a mover and shaker and this more than anything else would put him in charge in Washington if he can find a quick agenda for that 100 days," Udall said in an interview.

Udall, who was runner-up to Carter in the race for the Democratic nomination, said Carter's relationship with Congress is not yet clear.

"Carter was not all that specific on the issues," the Arizona Democrat said. doubt, a disposition to help washington.

"I suspect that by the middle of next year there are going to be some loud yells and some complaints."

The consumer groups believe he is on their side and many business people supported him because they believed he would back their side, Udall said.

"One or the other of these groups may be disappointed as he has to define himself by making up budgets and by making tough decisions and you're going to see a reaction in the Congress," Udall said.

There will be trouble if, for instance, Carter recommends continuing the B1 bomber or if he recommends "another whopping increase for the Defense Department" in his first budget a year from now, Udall said.

But Carter starts off with a big advantage, he said.

"We've got a president of our party in the White House. There's a strong disposition to work with him, a disposition to give him the benefit of the doubt, a diposition to help him out wherever we can and make his presidency a success."

IT'S A DAY FOR REMEMBERING

EDITOR'S NOTE: For those who survive our nation's wars, Veterans Day is a time of remembering.

As civilians pause in tribute to the men who did not come back, and the many maimed on foreign battlefields, the veterans are orbiting in a separate world of tense emotion.

There is gratitude for having survived. There is deep sadness over the tragic price paid by others. And there is an almost prayerful thanksgiving that the country now is at peace.

Four valley servicemen, veterans of World War I, World War II, the Korean Conflict and the Vietnam War, share their memories today.

Hospital work in WWI

As an Army medic at Letterman Army Hospital in San Francisco for two and a half years during World War I, Edgar Adamson, 82, Pomona, carried bedpans, filed papers in an office and clerked in the hospital morgue.

A native of Pomona, Adamson volunteered for the Army June 17, 1917. His was one of the first groups inducted for the duration of the war, others having been taken in for two and a half years.

"Most of our work started in 1918 with the end of the war when they started shipping all the wounded home," said Adamson who was also on hand at the hospital for the flu epidemic in 1919.

"After three months basic training at the Presidio in San Francisco," he said, "they rated us nurses and sent us over to the hospital. We were put in the surgery first thing. The old doctor there didn't like us until he found out we weren't really nurses after all."

As a four-stripe sergeant, Adamson made $76 a month. He was discharged from Letterman in September of 1919.

Adamson is a past commander of the Charles C. Rowe Post 30 of the American Legion.

NICK HENDRIKS

Watched harbor attack

Nick Hendriks saw the start of World War II in the Pacific and saw the end of the war in Europe. Hendriks, 58, an employe of the Progress Bulletin for 29 years, enlisted in the Army in April, 1941 and was sent to Hawaii for basic training at Ft. Shafter. As a member of a coast artillery outfit, he watched the attack on Pearl Harbor from his gun emplacement at Red Hill a mile above the harbor.

"It was a normal Sunday morning," said Hendriks. "We had our breakfast as usual and about five minutes before eight we heard the first shot." Following the attack, said Hendriks, fuel and ammunition supplies burned through the night.

"It was like a big fireworks show," he said.

In February, 1943, Hendriks returned to the states where his group was retrained in field artillery while also training another group in coastal artillery. He was sent to Europe in time for some combat toward the end of the Battle of the Bulge. At war's end, his group, the 808th Field Artillery attached to the Ninth Army, was on the North Elbe River in Germany. He left the service in July, 1945 at Ft. MacArthur in San Pedro, the same place he had enlisted.

Hendriks and his wife, Wilma, reside in Pomona. The couple has three grown children, Phyllis, Donald and Janet.

Tank combat in Korea

Assignment as a swing man to the 223rd Regimental Combat Tank Crew during the Korean conflict gave Miguel Padilla, 47, Upland a chance to learn all five positions in the tank.

"I was young and that big tank made me feel strong," said Padilla who, as part of the National Guard's 40th Infantry Division in El Monte was called to active duty Sept. 30, 1950.

Padilla said his tank could travel up to 45 miles an hour but usually went in slower with the gunners firing.

"We'd be assigned certain tanks to cover, and others would be assigned to cover us," he said.

Padilla, who said the worst part of the whole experience for him was the ship ride home, spent four months in combat, always assigned to a different crew.

"The back of the tank was the weakest part, so sometimes, if the enemy fire was heavy, you'd back out. It was slower, but safer," he said. "We'd stop the tank and pick up our wounded. The blood would be smeared all over."

Padilla is commander of Post 2018 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

CHARLES R. SWEETEN

Landed at Chu Lai in '67

Charles R. Sweeten, 33, Pomona went ashore in an amphibious landing with the Marines on May 7, 1967 at Chu Lai, Vietnam.

Sweeten, who had enlisted in the Navy in Ontario in 1961, spent 66 days in Vietnam as a Class A builder with a Seabees mobile battalion. He helped build an airstrip, several hospitals and for 36 days was required to help provide camp "security." This meant learning to fire all the weapons used on guard duty.

"That was about the only time I got shot at," said Sweeten, "and it was rough trying to make a home out of a foxhole and eating C and B1 rations.

"A lot of men got killed or wounded. We could hear Charlie's radio telling us 'Big C will be eating with you tonight.' They could lie on their stomachs in the grass for a week living on a little bag of rice.

"We were on constant alert. Machine gunners around the camp perimeter checked in hourly."

When the day came for Sweeten to go home, he was one of the first to be flown out of the airstrip he had helped build. He and his wife Karla have three children, Jeff 12, John 11, and Lelila, 10. Sweeten is a member of Post 2018 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

More women are joining the army

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The voluntary army of the United States is meeting its enlistment objectives and attracting more and more women into its ranks, reports Sgt. I.C. Lloyd Larmore, who heads the army recruiting office at Ontario, as the nation today observes its traditional Veterans Day.

Larmore, assigned to recruiting duty in September after putting in five years as a drill instructor at Ft. Bliss and Ft. Knox, said that he feels women coming into the army are its biggest asset.

"The old-timers are still cranky about the idea," he said, "but women getting out of high school and college are deciding that they want to see a bit of the world before they get married and settle down."

Larmore explained that as of June 30 the army had enlisted 910 persons over quota, or objective is the word officials like to use.

He thinks that persons enlisting in the army today have goals they have set for themselves.

"There are at least 28 jobs in the army to which you can find a counterpart in civilian life," he said. "Here you go through the same type of training as you would through vocational school."

'Old-timers still cranky, but . . .'

He suggested that a man or woman could be trained as a truck driver, mechanic, heavy equipment operator, electrician, plumber or carpenter, and receive a journeyman's certificate.

Larmore said that the army welcomes doctors and nurses who have completed their training or may enlist after finishing college with the army paying for the last two years of college.

He explained that when a person enlists for three or four years, he knows before he is sworn in whether he will have the station of his choice and whether openings are available for a particular type of training he wants.

Larmore stressed that when a person enlists, "we make sure they are mentally, physically and morally qualified.

"The army wants educated people, preferably with a high school education," he explained. "We tell high school counselors that we would rather have a student finish his schooling than to drop out to enlist."

He stressed that the army is not a dumping ground for persons on parole or drug offenders.

He said that the army wants married men because they are more dependable, and more married couples are sought. The latter may be able to serve their enlistment at the same base after they have completed basic and advanced training.

'We don't need smart alecks'

"We don't get as many couples as we would like," he said. Larmore emphasized that there are many benefits in an army which became completely volunteer in January 1973 when the draft was terminated.

"A person is entitled to 30 days of leave a year and three and four-day passes," he explained. "There is no longer any bed check. It's a five-day, 40-hour work week."

He said that when a man is sworn in and is given his first army haircut, he may choose the style he wants.

"As long as it doesn't stick out over your ears or over the collar," he cautioned.

Larmore said that the KP of wartime is still a chore facing those in basic training, but after that civilians are paid.

"There are no longer mountains of potatoes to peel, because the army is automated," he said.

Larmore emphasized that discipline is "getting rather strict after several years of laxity."

"We don't need smart alecks in the service," he said. "Each person must pull his part of the load."

An incentive the army uses to attract volunteers is the enlistment bonus.

A person who signs up for combat arms receives a $2,500 bonus at the end of his specialized training.

A person who re-enlists gets a check for $6,500, and if he re-ups for six years in combat arms, he receives a whopping bonus of $12,500.

A raw recruit's monthly pay is $374, and it is increased to $417 when he is promoted.

"All of the army man's expenses are taken care of for him, except his cigarettes," Larmore concluded. "And as for women coming into the service, they're a great morale booster. Just their joining an outfit induces men to want to look sharper."

Phillips Ranch:

City council OKs specific area proposal

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

Development of the old Phillips Ranch property, which may bring Pomona close to 2,000 new homes in the next six years, moved a step closer to reality Wednesday night as the Pomona Planning Commission unanimously approved a specific area plan for the property.

Al Lesser, representing Westmor Development Co., which owns the property, told commissioners that up to half of the single family homes will be built in 1977-78.

Base selling price is expected to be no lower than $55,000 each, with a three-year average of $68,000, said Lesser.

The prices quoted by Lesser are a significant increase over the original figures given by the developer, which was $43,000 minimum.

The lower price had met with some resistance by the Pomona City Council, which urged the developer to build homes of higher quality.

That goal has apparently been achieved.

"I think we and the staff have worked out an excellent plan. Now we would like permission to proceed with it," said Lesser.

In addition to the increased price, the area plan approved by the commission significantly changes the character of the basic design of the development.

Whereas the original plan showed the intersection of Dudley and Philadelphia Streets dividing the ranch into four quadrants, the new plan substitutes a half-mile wide circular drive around the central bowl of the 950-acre site.

Dudley Street from the Pomona Freeway and Philadelphia Street from the Corona Expressway are shown as the main access points, and Dudley Street from the Corona Expressway and new roads on the back of the property into Diamond Bar as the secondary accesses.

Commissioners were told that children in the new development will probably initially attend Diamond Point Elementary and Lorbeer Junior High schools, which are both in Diamond Bar, although at least one school site will be designated for the development.

Rationale for use of Diamond Bar facilities is that small children would not be required to cross the Corona Expressway or Pomona Freeway.

About 800 children can be expected in the new development within about two years.

Statistics prepared by the city indicate the typical family income for families in the development will be $20,000 to $35,000 per year.

The next step in the process will be consideration of specific street and lot plans.

Claremont woman's neck is reinjured

A woman recovering from an earlier neck injury suffered reinjury of her neck Wednesday night when her car was hit from behind in a traffic accident in Claremont, police reported.

The victim, Geraldine J. Harmon, 45, of Mira Loma, was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where she was released after treatment.

The accident occurred shortly after 11 o'clock in Indian Hill Boulevard north of First Street. Police reported that Robert Villanueva, 16, of Claremont, was southbound when his car struck the rear of the woman's auto after she stopped for a traffic signal.

The victim was wearing a neckbrace when the accident occurred.

Rowland Heights to get master plan of growth

The community of Rowland Heights is about to get a new master plan of growth from the Los Angeles County Regional Planning Commission.

County Supervisor Peter F. Schabarum issued a call for residents to serve on an advisory committee that would guide planners in drawing up the proposal.

The general plan will guide the future development of the area by establishing goals and objectives relating to the use of land, housing, traffic circulation, and community design and appearance he explained.

Other factors the volunteer group would consider include seismic and geologic safety, recreation and noise levels.

Regional Planner John Huttinger has been named to guide the plan through completion. He said persons interested in having a voice in the future profile of the community should contact him by telephone at (213) 974-6420.

He said he particularly needs guidance from the advisory committee about local problems and attributes, about goals and objectives that will determine how the area should grow, and about alternate proposals for achieving those objectives.

Rowland Heights already has a general plan drawn 10 years ago, but Huttinger says the community has grown so much that the plan is now obsolete.

He said the commission recently completed new general plans for La Habra Heights and Hacienda Heights.

Schabarum said he hoped to get a wide response from community leaders to the call to be on the committee.

"I'd like to see the advisory committee include homeowners, renters, and businessmen as well as educators who can reflect the social, economic and ethnic makeup of Rowland Heights," he explained.

The general plans are being devised under the Communities Studies Division of the planning commission.

All persons over 45 urged to get flu shots

State health officials now recommend that all persons over age 45 get shots to protect them against the A Victoria strain of influenza virus as well as the swine flu strain.

Persons between 45 and 60 who have already received the swine flu vaccine but not the A Victoria may go back to a clinic and get the second shot. Health officials recommend that they wait one week between shots, however.

This is a change in the program in which the bivalent vaccine was available only to those 60 and over or suffering from a chronic illness.

According to Dr. Martin Finn, deputy director of the Los Angeles Department of Health Services, all free clinics in the county will begin making the bivalent vaccine available to persons 45 years old and older starting today.

Aside from the possibility of an A Victoria outbreak this winter, another reason for recommending that more people get the bivalent vaccine is that the state has received more of this type of vaccine than earlier expected.

While only 2 million doses of the vaccine had been expected, California will receive 3.5 million doses of the bivalent vaccine this year.

The 3.5 million doses is enough to immunize slightly more than half the 6 million Californians who are either 45 and older or who have chronic illnesses.

To date, about 1 million Californians have been vaccinated and the figure in Los Angeles County is 132,826, Dr. Finn said.

La Verne buys maintenance yard

The current headquarters of Chinook International, Inc. will become the new maintenance yard of the City of La Verne shortly.

The La Verne City Council has authorized the purchase of the three-acre parcel of land and the buildings on it for a total of $250,000.

City Manager George Caswell says the new yard will give city crews three times as much yard space and 10 times the roofed area it now has at Sixth Street and White Avenue.

The Chinook land is located near the intersection of First Street and White Avenue. Caswell told the council Monday night that the property has 26,000 square feet of covered floor space which will enable the city to store equipment, maintain offices and set up an indoor shop.

He said the city could pay for the property out of revenue sharing funds, then could establish a one-acre park on the site of the present corporation yard.

Only public doesn't win

Both General Motors and Chrysler Corp. have announced record high profits for the third quarter of this year. The only reason Ford Motor Co. did not join the happy group is that it was the target of a 28-day strike by the United Auto Workers.

What it means to the first two companies, to use the words of their own spokesmen, is that there is "no reason" for a strike against them. Their record profits indicate they should be able to meet the same workers' demands as Ford did.

Plain common sense would seem to dictate that there was no reason for a strike against Ford in the first place. Its profits were also good, up to the strike. But that's water over the dam, and no doubt Ford will begin recouping its lost sales.

Now all this is fine and dandy for the auto companies and their workers. But the car-buying public will foot the bill for this new boost in the incomes of both.

Even though the public is already paying an average of $326 more for a 1977 model, Chrysler chairman John A. Riccardo, whose company has been selected by the UAW as its next target, does not rule out another price increase later in the model year.

One can't help wondering, though, what would have happened if the UAW and the companies had gotten together and announced that in view of the industry's healthy profit picture, the union had decided to renew the old contract and the companies in turn were voting a dividend to the public in the form of lower prices. Or almost as welcome, the same prices.

This would have immediately lowered everybody's cost of living, have spurred sales even more and eventually maybe have generated enough new profits to enable the companies to reward their workers with a bonus later on.

Back in the world of reality. of course, we know that workers and management, in the auto industry or any other, do not consider themselves to be members of the same team. They are antagonists. Nor are they exactly overwhelmed by any sense of responsibility toward the larger public.

As we said, this is fine, so long as the public is willing and able to pay ever higher prices for the product produced.

One can't help wondering, however, whether the automobile industry, and those who are employed by it, are not setting themselves up for a fall someday even worse than the one they experienced during the oil embargo and energy crisis.

System can be beat

The Social Security tax goes up again January 1. That is, the taxable wage base will be increased from the present $15,300 to $16,500.

Even though the tax rate itself will not change, everyone earning more than $15,300 will pay more in Social Security. The maximum tax for those whose earnings will be equal to or greater than the $16.500 base will be $926.25, or $70.20 more than in 1976.

But it's still possible to beat the system, so to speak, according to Washington Report, a publication of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The Chamber notes that as of the end of 1974, some 8,300 of the more than 30 million Americans collecting Social Security benefits were 100 years old or older. Presumably, most of these centenarians have been collecting benefits for 35 years or longer, far and above what they contributed to the system while they worked.

Thus the moral is that no matter how high the Social Security tax goes, you'll come out ahead if you live long enough.

We intend to try, anyway.

Think on these things

Sometimes life seems to be one continual alarm clock. Never a gentle gait'— but always at a dog-trot to meet those deadlines. It seems that dawdling along or staring into space is a waste of time — but many great men have known the wisdom of taking time to allow their minds to amble, to drift from thought to thought. This is sitting idly on the sidelines and fishing quietly in the mind for solutions to problems.

Silence and deep thought have great creativity. The mind has time to lay aside the brittle aggressiveness that makes up the usual routine. Even physical weariness passes and the goal ahead isn't so far in the distance. William Mathews said: "Knowledge is acquired by study and observation, but wisdom comes by opportunity of leisure."

The issue of money

Dear Editor:

"It is true" that the Pomona Unified School District teachers have been offered a 7.2 per cent salary increase for the current school year. Since early this year when that offer was made, the per cent increase, the amount of the increase — in other words, money — has not been an issue in any part of the delay in negotiations, the parents boycott, or the teachers walkout.

Since that salary increase is the largest of any school district in the area, don't you wonder why the teachers found it necessary to overwhelmingly (90 per cent to 10 per cent) reject the contract offered by the school board?

Call any teacher, school board member, superintendent, or principal and you can verify that "it is true" that money has not been a factor in the long delay in arriving at a new contract for this school year. Yes, teachers believe there are other issues more important than the per cent salary increase and many, many parents are in full agreement with the teachers on these other issues.

"It is true" that the exorbitant salaries and the huge per cent salary increase of the administrators should be an issue with the community. Why do the administrators merit a larger dollar increase than teachers? The school board increased the superintendents' salaries by a larger percentage than the offer made to the teachers.

Why should the superintendents have an expense allowance in addition to their exorbitant salaries? After all, they are getting paid almost as much as the governor of California. Why has the board been spending extravagant sums of money on remodeling offices when students and teachers have insufficient books and materials and safe conditions are not maintained in the school buildings? "It is true" that it would be more accurate to direct indignation over the issue of money at the administrators.

Scales tipping against 'Tip'

WASHINGTON — Some awkward questions have been raised about the huge campaign chest that House Democratic leader Thomas "Tip" O'Neill has accumulated to fuel his drive to become the next Speaker.

In past columns, we have reported that the big-boned Bostonian has raised over a quarter of a million dollars ostensibly to help his Democratic colleagues with their election campaigns. But his real objective has been to boost his own campaign for the Speaker's chair.

He has spread the boodle around to key Democrats, whose support he sought. Some had no serious opposition and, therefore, no real need for campaign cash.

Now we have learned that generous sums were lavished on his associates not to help them win elections but to wine and dine them, repair their cars and buy them gifts.

What this amounts to is an old-fashioned, jackleg political campaign, one that might not go over so well with the newcomers to Congress who have been elected in this new age of political morality. The voters returned all but three of the 98 freshmen from the last Congress who sought reelection. They will be joined in January by 60 new House members.

They aren't likely to be as tolerant as the old-timers of O'Neill's loose use of cash to curry political support. Thus the money he has distributed to gain the Speakership may backfire and cause him to lose it.

O'Neill's own vouchers reveal that he has raised $267,870 since 1972. He has spent over $23,000 of that amount on car repairs, expensive meals, parties, gifts and unitemized air fares.

At least $11,549 was shelled out to wine and dine O'Neill's friends and associates in such fashionable eateries as the "1789," an exclusive French restaurant in Washington's Georgetown section; the Wayside Inn, a posh place in Chatham, Mass., and Duke Ziebert's, a Washington restaurant patronized by the capital's social elite.

One entry, for example, reads: "Duke Zeibert's, working dinner with U.S. Representatives, $264.70." A "party for Democratic Congressmen, delegates and friends at the Democratic National Convention" cost $3,543.36.

Over $6,400 was spent on unitemized air fares. Another $5,140 went for gasoline and repairs to automobiles owned by O'Neill's staff employees, payments to members of his staff, Christmas cards, Christmas greeting ads in newspapers, donations to Cardinal Cushing memorial dinners and party favors for friends, including 50 silver champagne buckets.

Footnote: A spokesman for O'Neill said only that "all expenses are perfectly in order. The money was spent for meetings of the (campaign) committee. Reciprocal gifts and greeting cards went to contributors."

EMBARRASSING BLUNDER — The embarrassed bosses of the Internal Revenue Service mistakenly gave confidential information on a major tax investigation earlier this year to the people who were under investigation.

The blunder may imperil a delicate investigation, the biggest of its kind in history, of tax evaders who conceal their money in secret Bahamian bank accounts. Here's how it happened:

A defendant in the case, Chicago attorney Burton Kanter, asked to see the files the IRS had on him. Under the Freedom of Information Act, American citizens are entitled to see their own federal files. But information about current investigations, of course, cannot be released.

Yet Kantor received 90 pages of secret documents, which set forth the strategy and progress the tax agents were making on the tax haven investigation. It was a dreadful mistake, a spokesman told us.

At least two House subcommittees got wind of the missent papers and demanded an explanation. IRS officials stewed for more than a month over how to answer the subcommittees. They decided to stonewall.

"We do not believe that our internal notes and memoranda should be furnished to the (subcommittees)" wrote assistant commisssoner S.B. Wolfe to commissioner Donald Alexander's right-hand man, Thomas Glynn.

Then the Los Angeles Times learned that the IRS was stalling the subcommittees. The newspaper's inquiries spurred the IRS into sudden action. Nervous IRS offficials rushed their delayed responses up to Capitol Hill.

Glynn acknowledged to us that the Los Angeles Times' inquiries caused the IRS to "scurry around" and gather the explanations that the subcommittees had requested. The intent was to deliver it to Congress, he admitted, before the story appeared.

But the IRS messenger found no one in the offices of the House Ways and Means Oversight Subcommittee. The staff was meeting in another room upstairs. So the messenger left the material next door in the office of Rep. James Haley, D.-Fla., who was unauthorized to receive it. The same material was delivered, however, to the House Commerce, Consumer and Monetary Affairs subcommittee.

Among all the explanations prepared for Congress was a confidential memo, which declared that the tax haven probe could be endangered by the IRS's blunder. This embarrassing memo was never supposed to have been sent to Capitol Hill. It was, the IRS concluded, another dreadful mistake.

What's next for GOP?

To those Southerners who protested that Jimmy Carter is "too liberal" — now he can point to the numbers and prove that he had to be.

Jimmy Carter owes his election to black Americans.

In the big cities and in the almost — solid South it was the blacks who elected Carter.

Gerald Ford got the most white votes in Dixie — but Carter got most all of the black ones.

Seventy percent of eligible blacks turned out. Ninty percent of them voted for Carter. In black precincts in Alabama, Carter won 20-to-one!

And Carter owes his political life to George Meany who mobilized the big city vote. Of course he has to consider Meany's wishes in making appointments and in the establishment of Administration policy.

But again, to those Southerners who have protested ever since Carter was governor of Georgia that he's "too liberal" — he now can point to the closeness of the numbers and prove that any less liberal and he'd never have made it.

And winning is the name of the game.

Now what about the loyal opposition? What about the future of the GOP? Must it become more liberal — or less?

Carter believed that he could not be any further to the right and win — and he won.

Mr. Ford believed that he could not be any further to the right and win — and he lost.

So the conservatives in the GOP are now insisting that President Ford was wrong; that Reagan would have made the difference between victory or defeat — in either the No. 1 or No. 2 position on the ticket.

Now if Carter — as President — is pulled further to the philosophical left by his ties to labor and to minorities, it would seem inevitable that the GOP must pull further to the right in order to justify the next congressional election two years from now.

But Carter could fool everybody. He has tried to reassure conservative friends that he is one of them — that his deference to liberalism was required by the realities of politics.

Presumably, once the highest office was his he could revert to being himself.

How he conducts his office — and the degree of success with which he administers our foreign and domestic affairs — will dictate the Republican response.

If Carter proves to be the moderate he has privately described himself to be — then the GOP in 1980 will react less vigorously — will be less likely to "go to extremes." And that would seem to favor the candidacy of a John Connally or a James Thompson.

But there is another distinct GOP possibility.

In 1980 — should the country by then want a tested and proved alternative to Carter — the country's best bet and the party's most likely might well be the man who served the Presidency with such dignity for the past two years.

Just in jest

A visitor, recently returned from Russia, reports: "At first I thought that the Russians had weaker kidneys than any other nationality in the world. But finally it dawned on me that since in Russia diners in restaurants are not allowed to smoke while eating, those who feel they just can't survive without a whiff of nicotine make a bee line for the rest room."

Threats to a free press

By EARL G. WATERS

Those who think that the cries of danger to freedom of the press are overstatements by alarmists would do well to note the increasing attention given the subject of regulation of the media by legal scholars. Only last week this column reported on a lengthy article in the Santa Clara Law Review dealing with the doctrine of "Right of Access to Newspapers."

Written by Civil Liberties Union lawyer Michael Gary Chatzky and William Eric Robinson, it held that government policy to foster commerce "must be reaffirmed as swiftly and promptly and decisively as possible if our society is to be as contemporary in its exchange of thoughts as it is in the exchange of products."

That article pointed to the growth of "one-newspaper cities" in the U.S. and discussed the "monopolistic influence" of "newspaper corporations."

In an earlier article by an editor of the Stanford Law Review, Abbott B. Lipsky Jr. compares the regulations of radio and TV by government with the lack of interference with the printed media.

He notes that the publishing business "is the only organized private business that is given explicit constitutional protection." He seems to infer that either the same protection should be extended to the electronic media or the regulations exercised over that should apply to the printed media. For he says "It is a short step from this view to the proposition that any organized business whose principal function is to convey expression, information and opinion, ought also to be accorded the same constitutionally protected status as the publishing industry."

Both Chatzky and Lipsky discuss the few cases which have come before the U.S. Supreme Court. The earliest was the 1943 challenge of FCC regulations by NBC in which the court upheld the licensing regulations on the grounds of limited access to broadcast channels. The next challenge, 25 years later, was that of Red Lion Broadcasting Co. In that case the court again upheld FCC regulations holding that the right to reply was not an unconstitutional interference with editorial discretion.

But in the Miami Herald case the Supreme Court struck down a Florida statute which required newspapers to afford the right of reply to individuals. Lipsky notes the conflict between the two decisions.

". . . it is disturbing that the court was willing to ignore the consequences of editorial regulation — the increase in cost and corresponding reductions in incentives to include material triggering the access or fairness obligation — in the broadcast field, while making these consequences one of the explicit grounds for decision in the print field," he writes.

While observing that the evolution of newspaper technology has led to one of the most important sources of news, the local newspaper, being distributed quite sparingly, he scotches somewhat the view that this creates a monopoly. "Newspapers face significant competition from radio and television, national-distribution weeklies and monthlies, and a wide variety of neighborhood newspapers, trade journals, and pamphlets and flyers addressing particular events and issues."

"Given current uncertainty over the degree of control which a local monopoly newspaper possesses in determining the views reaching its readership, the court is justified in preventing direct government interference in the editorial process," he states.

Nevertheless, Lipsky concludes that "the broader purposes of free expression have come into conflict with the express policy embodied in the first amendment . . ." He adds that "Since the goals of free expression would be as thoroughly frustrated by complete avoidance of government regulation of the media as they would be by complete government control, a sensible way of balancing the benefits and dangers must be found."

Ann Landers

Two front teeth her hang-up

Dear Ann Landers: I saw it again today and said to myself, "This is it! I've got to write to Ann Landers."

The problem is not mine but it has me baffled and I simply must find out from someone WHY they do it. I refer to aging males whose hair has thinned or largely departed. They let the few remaining strands grow long, then they drape them all over the head to create the illusion of hair.

Almost always the draped strands fall out of place, hang down over an ear or down the back of the neck and it looks ridiculous.

These men are not blind. Why don't they realize what they look like? — Pet Peeve From Puerto Rico

Dear Pet: Robert Burns said it best: "O wad some Pow'r the giftie gie us To see ousels as others see us!"

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to comment on the letter from the unhappy "liberated" woman whose 50-year-old husband encouraged her to "do her thing." Later she learned he was "libbing it up" with girls less than half his age. She went on to say he bragged about having sex in automobiles, on the beach and even in a haystack. You called him "a case of arrested development." Why?

My husband and I have been married for 30 years and our sex life is more exciting now than it was on our honeymoon. He taught me not to be a prude — to be willing to experiment and let myself go. We've made love in the car, in the woods, on the beach and in every room in the house. A change of scenery can do wonders!

Fours years ago we put in a swimming pool. We'd heard about skinny-dipping followed up by sex and decided to try it on a very dark night. It was so terrific we've made it a regular thing. Honestly, Ann, that pool has done more for our love-life than any vacation we ever took.

So please don't be so quick to call the guy bonkers. His problem is his wife. She needs to get with it. — All Woman And Glad Of It

Dear Woman: I'm for married people doing anything that pleases them — anyplace, anytime — so long as it's private.

The man you refer to was bragging to his wife about his sex-capades with girls half his age. You call that mature? I don't.

Dear Ann Landers: I may be only 11 years old but I have a problem that is just as horrible as some of the things older people write about.

I have a big space between my two front teeth. People are always asking me if I lost a tooth. It is easier to lie and say "Yes" than to explain things.

I hate this space. I wish I didn't have it. I'm sending my picture so you can see how ugly it is. Will I have the space forever? Please answer my letter even if it isn't about sex. — Just Me

Dear You: I'm glad you sent the picture so I could see your problem.

Don't lie. Tell people it's "just a space." But — you don't have to go through life with it. If your mom will take you to a dentist he (or she) will fix it so you will have a beautiful smile when you're older. No one should go through life with a defect he hates if something can be done to fix it. Good luck, Sweetie.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

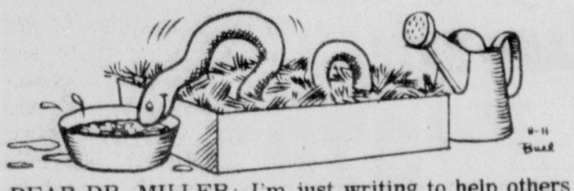
Pet earthworm likes his pablum



DEAR DR. MILLER: I'm just writing to help others who might have pet earthworms, too. I keep Wiggles in some of my Dad's straw and peat moss and don't let it get too dry. I feed him my baby brother's pablum, and he's crazy about it. He's a nice, clean pet and doesn't even like dirty old dirt any more. Thank you. — T.A.

DEAR T.A.: If Wiggles Worm is a Leumbricus terristris, the common earthworm, and were he on a standard diet of dead and decaying leaves, he would (like a robin) digest his food better with a certain amount of grit in his diet. Still, on his more highly refined baby food he's obviously doing well without it. Congratulations on doing so well with Wiggles, and thanks for the suggestions.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I was just wondering if mountain lions have territories anything like our old Tom Cat here does. — G.C.

DEAR G.C.: Male mountain lions make up territorial boundaries of sorts, if they're given the time to accomplish this. Where the males are subjected to heavy hunting pressure, specific territorial boundaries aren't established and/or maintained.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I understand this heartworm thing is really spreading and getting out of hand in dogs. I know mosquitoes carry it, but we don't have many of those around our place. What about fleas? We sure had plenty of those this year. — T.L.

DEAR T.L.: While they cause numerous canine and feline problems, fleas fortunately are an unlikely carrier of heartworms. Mosquitoes, over 60 different species of them, are the culprits who carry and transmit heartworms.

DEAR DR. MILLER: When a kitten has a big stomach, does that mean she's pregnant? — C.N.

DEAR C.N.: Depends on her condition (otherwise), age and opportunity. A kitten of three months of age who's actually a little thin in most parts of the body but more than ample around the abdomen is, more than likely attempting to cope with a gastro-intestinal problem. Parasites are often the basic culprit. A kitten twice that age could, in rare cases, have a pregnancy problem instead. A female cat of nine months who has access to the great outdoors — and all contained therein — and who assumes an ever-greater girth over a week or two but feels great otherwise, is more likely to be packing a pregnancy rather than a parasitic problem.

The day the roof fell in

Sonja Sellars came in breathless at a party the other night and made the most incredible announcement. It seems her husband, Russell, was walking around in the crawl space over their house when he fell through the ceiling.

Naturally, we were shocked.

"Was your ceiling damaged?" asked Bob.

She nodded. "Came all the way through it. There's a hole in it big enough to sling a camel. We're just sick about it."

"Don't I know," commiserated Lois. "One of the kids rammed into the wall with a tricycle and it took four weeks to get it fixed. You just can't get people to work anymore. Especially on small jobs."

"Someone get Sonja a drink," said Les. "She looks pretty shaken."

"You'd be shaken too if you were sitting there watching Alistair Cooke and all of a sudden your husband knocked the glass out of your hand with his body."

"I hope you can get the same paint," interrupted Lois. "We had a special mixed paint and you know when the lights are on, you can see the exact spot we had to patch. That just makes me ill."

"What was he doing up there in the first place?" asked Sally. "Your crawl space doesn't have a floor."

"I know," said Sonja, "but he's always been agile on the rafters before. He was after that cardboard turkey that we always use for a centerpiece for Thanksgiving."

"It takes one to know one," sniffed Sylvia, popping a canape in her mouth.

"So, were the kids upset?" asked Sally.

"They were at first, but then I explained to them that Daddy was just being silly and calling attention to himself. I gave them a cookie and they settled down."

"Hey, something I've always wanted to know," asked Ward. "Is the ceiling a composition? I've always suspected the builder got away with something cute. Another drink?"

"I don't think so," said Sonja. "Oh, I know I'm being hysterical, but do you know what I'm really worried about? It's sleeping in that house tonight and knowing that the mice have a freeway through to my bedroom. Oh well, I've got to go."

"Incidentally," yelled Les, "how's Russell?"

"He's in the car. He thinks he's broken a leg and a couple of ribs. We'll know as soon as I get him to the hospital."

"Tell him we asked about him," they yelled in unison.

Dr. Lamb

Diabetes' effect on pregnancy

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a female, 23 years old, 5 feet 2 and weigh 110 pounds. I have diabetes which is now being controlled by diet.

I have been reading about diabetes and trying to learn all I can but I can't find anything concerning a diabetic pregnancy. I have two children and would like to have more. They were all right as they were born before this disease developed.

I am worried that the fetus might not recieve proper nourishment and am apprehensive about any complications that might occur during delivery. I don't know if it would be safe to nurse the new baby or not. Please give me some information on this subject.

DEAR READER — Your diabetes is mild or you would not be able to manage it with diet alone. That decreases the likelihood that you will have any problems with another pregnancy. In any case anyone with diabetes who is pregnant should have very careful monitoring during the pregnancy. The need for insulin is usually decreased during the first tri-mester of the pregnancy, and returns to about the same requirement during the last two tri-mesters. In your case that should mean that you can sail through the pregnancy without the problems that more severe diabetics have.

Your baby may be larger than usual as often happens in diabetic mothers. Sometimes that causes some difficulties in delivery.

The baby will not be malnourished if you do not develop complications during pregnancy. Remember that the baby will have its own insulin-forming glands. In fact these are sometimes enlarged at birth, producing an excess amount of insulin, if the mother is diabetic. This sometimes requires giving the newborn baby extra glucose by vein for a time until the insulin-forming glands regress to normal. The glucose prevents the newborn baby from having low blood sugar problems.

The complications from diabetes are increased in the mother as a result of pregnancy. It depends a lot on whether the diabetes is the "juvenile type" beginning in childhood or the "adult onset type." And it depends upon how severe it is.

Many diabetic women, particularly if the disease is of long standing, are especially prone to toxemia of pregnancy, with fluid retention, high blood pressure and other harmful consequences. That is one reason a diabetic mother needs to be monitored carefully throughout her pregnancy.

Obviously diabetic women can and do have normal children. You already had the underlying cause of your diabetes during your first two pregnancies even though the disease was not advanced to the point it could be diagnosed.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-10, Diabetes: The Sweet Sickness, the first of two issues on diabetes since you want information about the disease. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I must add that you are fortunate to have two uneventful pregnancies and in more advanced diabetics the advisability of having more pregnancies is often questioned by diabetic specialists, not just for the baby's sake but because of the risks the mother takes.

President hanged murderers twice

Can you identify which of the U.S. presidents earlier had served as a hangman? Grover Cleveland was the fellow. As the onetime sheriff of Erie County, N.Y., he not once but twice officially executed murderers.

If you're still trying to make a dollar, why don't you patent your idea about how to keep deer off roads? Oddly, despite considerable research nobody yet has figured out a way to do that thing.

Q. "Did Lewis and Clark leave any physical evidence of their famous expedition out west?"

Those big overhead fans of the sort used in years past to cool hotel lobbies and library rooms and old southern mansions in the summer make pretty good heaters, too. The power of great ideas

The greatest power in the world is the power of a creative idea. All success begins with a dream.

One of America's great teachers was Thomas S. Kelly. The secret of his effective life, according to Rufus Jones, began in Kelly's freshman year at college when in a moment of high inspiration he vowed: "I'm going to make my life a miracle!"

Someone said, "There are no great people only great ideas." Indeed, you can often measure the size of a person by the size of the dream that drives him.

Success begins with an act of imagining. "If you don't have a dream, how can dreams come true?" Begin now by using this God power within yourself to paint a picture of what you would like to accomplish.

Reject all impossibility thoughts, all "handicapped concepts," and all "disadvantage complexes." Imagine yourself as a friend of the mighty, a partner of the wealthy, and a co-worker of God.

Not a few people fail because they have neglected to visualize in detail what they were trying to achieve. If you have a confused and muddled picture of what you are going after, do not be surprised if you fail. Therefore, you must form a detailed mental picture of your dream.

After you know what you want, you must censor these desires. The moral questions must be raised at this point:

"Is this right?"

"Would it help people who are hurting?"

"Can I ask God to be my partner in this venture?"

When you get a "Yes" answer to these all-important questions, then you are on your way.

So, you can succeed if you begin with a dream, think positively, visualize a detailed picture of your dream, and ask the right questions. Success that brings fulfillment and happiness can become a reality for you.

Community keeping mouth shut about Caril Ann Fugate

ST. JOHNS, Mich. (AP) — This town of 7,000, located in fertile farmland about 20 miles north of Lansing, is very protective of its own — and it considers Caril Ann Fugate one of its own.

Miss Fugate spent 18 of her 32 years in a Nebraska prison for her part in a murderous rampage across Nebraska and Wyoming in 1958 that left 11 persons dead. Her companion, Charles Starkweather, was executed.

"She's paid her dues," said Vern, a bartender at Bruno's on the town's main street. "So we all hope she makes good. We keep this thing real closed around here.

"Why don't you boys just leave her alone?" Vern asked icily during an interview.

Miss Fugate always maintained her innocence, contending Starkweather forced her to accompany him on the eight-day killing spree when she was just 14 years old.

After her parole last spring, Miss Fugate came to live in St. Johns mainly because of Robert Mann and his wife, a couple from the nearby community of Bath, who took an intense interest in her after seeing "Growing Up in Prison," a 1972 television documentary about her.

Mann said he does not now, or ever, want to talk about Miss Fugate or his role in bringing her here.

"It just isn't anybody's business. Okay?" Man said.

Mann's attitude seemed to speak for this whole community.

"As long as she keeps her nose clean, it's okay with us," said a woman working in Lambert's Fabric Shop, across Clinton Avenue from Bruno's. The woman would not give her name. "Frankly, we're bored to death by all this fuss."

Last month, when a reporter from a national tabloid came asking about her, his presence was reported to police by citizens in every town he visted — towns like Eureka, Dewitt and Fowler.

Miss Fugate has been besieged by requests for interviews from many reporters and organizations, according to Robert Steinman, her parole officer.

"All I can say is that she's living with some people in Clinton County and doing clerical work in an office," Steinman said, noting that Miss Fugate is forbidden to give interviews without written permission from the Nebraska Parole Board.

"Any information other than that would be doing her an injustice," Steinman said. "I'm helping her make it in society and helping to make things go as smoothly as possible. So far, it's been fine. Real fine."

Miss Fugate is no recluse, but she does guard her privacy.

MILLION DOLLAR COIN — The old U.S. Mint in San Francisco, which has been restored after four years and $4.5 million of work, has arranged a special treat for numismatic nuts and neophytes alike. It's the display of this one-of-a-kind gold coin, valued at $1 million, perched atop the mint's display of gold bars and nuggets. More than $3.5 million of the gold bars and nuggets are on exhibit at the mint, along with memorabilia of the California gold rush days.

NEEDED LIKE A HOLE IN THE HEAD — Woman shows a copy of the so-called Tumi, left, an instrument of skull operations used about 1,200 years ago in Peru, and the skull at right which is said to be from an Inca who survived his skull operation. The items are part of an exhibition at Duesseldorf, West Germany, where remedies and doctors' instruments of the past 4,000 years are on display under the title, "Medicine Developments."

Man who killed eight with car spared prison

CELINA, Ohio (AP) — "We had nothing to gain because all our kids are dead," Irene Sommer said. "The poor guy has to live with it for the rest of his life."

Mrs. Sommer was responding to the punishment handed down Tuesday to John Kremer, driver of a car that plowed into a group of teen-agers last spring, killing eight of them. Her son, Kenneth, was one of the victims.

Kremer, a 21-year-old meat cutter, was spared a prison term by a judge who felt Kremer would be punished enough by having to "live with" the accident. He had pleaded no contest to one count of vehicular homicide during a half-hour trial in Municipal Court.

Judge James Myers suspended Kremer's driver's license for one year and fined him $300 for court costs. He'll be able to drive to and from work after 30 days

"I don't think anything can be gained from time in jail," Myers said. "You have created your own jail, one you will have to live with the rest of your life. I think that is an adequate penalty."

Mrs. Sommer said she agreed with the judge. "I felt sorry for the boy — that he had to be the victim of something like that," she said. "He made one mistake and he's paid dearly for it."

Kremer first pleaded innocent to eight counts of vehicular homicide, one count of failure to obey a stop sign and failure to stop at an assured clear distance ahead. But when all but one count of vehicular homicide were dismissed, he pleaded guilty.

Maximum penalty for the single charge — a first-degree misdemeanor — was a jail term of six months and fine of up to $1,000 or both.

The eight teen-agers were standing along the road at an intersection March 7 after getting out of their automobiles to decide where they would head next in their celebration of a basketball victory.

The highway patrol said Kremer's car came over a hill from the opposite direction and went through the intersection.

"There's no question left that Kremer failed to stop at the stop sign and failed to maintain clear distance," Judge Myers said.

"Very particularly I feel that the cars on the east side of the road and these teen-agers should not have been there. Nevertheless, he did do something he should not have done."

Amphetamines ban urged by doctors' panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amphetamines should be totally banned because their dangers far outstrip their ability to promote weight loss, several doctors told a federal panel.

The drugs, known by nicknames like "speed," and "uppers," were prescribed 25 million times in 1975 for weight loss, the doctors told a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.

Nelson has already let it be known that he favors banning the drugs.

"There is no question that there is far more harmfulness from the use of amphetamines than benefits," said Dr. Lester Grinspoon of the Harvard Medical School in testimony Tuesday.

Dr. James J. Nora said some potentially dangerous drugs like birth control pills filled a pressing social need and justified their use. There is no pressing need for amphetamines, he said.

Grinspoon said most studies showed that patients who take prescribed amphetamines generally show a quick initial weight loss. But he said that is usually the case with any weight loss program because the patient is enthusiastic and dedicated at the beginning.

He said amphetamine users, when they stop taking their pills, often feel depressed. They eat to make themselves feel better and often gain back more weight than they originally lost.

Prolonged use of the drugs can result in psychosis, panic and confusion, the doctors said. Some inconclusive studies have linked amphetamines to birth defects.

The doctors testifying said there was little likelihood that a legal ban on amphetamines would eliminate them from the scene. Underground chemists can easily produce them for sales to students and truckers and other users who want the pills to help stay awake.

IN BETTER DAYS — The Edmund Fitzgerald, shown as it sailed through Detroit, was known for its ore cargo record for the Great Lakes, carrying 30,000 tons of taconite pellets in 1968. The ship sank in a storm on Lake Superior on Nov. 10, 1975 taking its crew of 29 to a watery grave 530 feet below the surface.

Report on '75 ship's sinking near completion

DETROIT (AP) — A sudden storm with 90 mile per hour winds and 30 foot waves swept Lake Superior one year ago tonight, sending the ore carrier Edmund Fitzgerald and its 29 crew members to underwater graves. The precise cause is still unknown.

"I've never seen anything like it in my life..." were among the last words radioed by the Fitzgerald's master, Capt. E. M. McSorley.

A U.S. Coast Guard Marine Board of Inquiry was convened to investigate the cause of the sinking. Capt. James Wilson of the Coast Guard's Cleveland Station, a member of that board, said its report is near completion, but he would not say whether the report discounts rumors of unsafe overloading, faulty inspections or other unofficial explanations.

The Arthur M. Anderson was following the Fitzgerald during the storm. Its captain, Jesse Cooper, recalled that McSorley radioed he was taking on water and beginning to list to one side, but that the ship's pumps were working.

Soon after Cooper received that message, the Fitzgerald, carrying 26,000 tons of taconite ore pellets, sank. Pictures show its silent remnants: a bow section mired in mud, the stern resting upside down and segments of the midsection strewn about the lake's floor 530 feet below the surface.

The mystic fury of the Great Lakes is known to the Rev. Richard Ingalls of Mariner's church in Detroit. In the early hours following the Fitzgerald's loss, Father Ingalls did "what we always do" — opened the church's doors, read prayers and, later in the day, tolled his bell 29 times for the dead crewmen.

Peter Pulcer, a retired captain of the Fitzgerald, says: "I damn near fell over when I heard it went down. I knew quite a few of them (the crew). But there's nothing stronger than wind and water."

Pulcer served 45 years in eight boats but says the Fitzgerald was his favorite. "I liked the 'Fitz' — she was a good ship."

'Let me die,' is convicted killer's high court plea

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Convicted killer Gary Mark Gilmore urged the Utah Supreme Court in person Wednesday to let him die before a firing squad as scheduled at 8 a.m. Monday.

"I believe I was given a fair trial, and I think the sentence was proper, and I'm willing to accept it like a man and wish it to be carried out without delay," said Gilmore, who appeared before the high court in a white prison clothes and handcuffs.

The court made no immediate decision on Gilmore's request to reverse its stay of execution but accepted California attorney Dennis Boaz as counsel for the Gilmore, who says he doesn't want to spend the rest of his life in jail. That relieved the two court-appointed attorneys who had filed Gilmore's appeal over his protests, resulting him him seeking a new attorney.

Boaz joined Deputy Atty. Gen. Robert Hansen in a plea that the execution be conducted on schedule, even though the court had issued an indefinite stay Monday after receiving the appeal.

"It is unique and ironic that the attorney general's office and my client take the same position on this matter," Boaz said.

He said it is "not a case where my client has some kind of suicide pact with the state, or perverse death wish, or is in an irrational state of mind." He described Gilmore as a man ready to accept responsibility for his act.

One of the two attorneys who filed the appeal, Craig Snyder, told the court it should not rule on such substantial questions without first looking at the record. He said the decision Gilmore made "has placed tremendous emotional stress on him," adding anyone might act irrationally in such a case.

"What Mr. Gilmore is doing in this case is tantamount to suicide," Snyder said.

Justice Albert H. Ellett interrupted Snyder at one point, saying, "You're no longer in it. You've been relieved, supplanted. We've got to decide whether to set aside your appeal.

"Why don't you accept in good graces his firing you like he's accepted in good graces the responsibility of the court?" Ellett asked.

Boaz acknowledged to reporters after the hearing he came to Utah as a freelance writer and was only able to see Gilmore at the prison when he said he wanted to act as his attorney. Boaz, described to the court as a former county prosecutor in California, declined to say where he lived.

Kool-Aid school program hit by consumer groups

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Kool-Aid makers are exploiting children and encouraging them to consume too much sugar by offering money to schools for empty packages of the powdered beverage mix, two nonprofit groups say.

Consumers Union and the Committee on Children's Television asked the state Board of Education and the state schools superintendent Tuesday to ban the Kool-Aid campaign sponsored by General Foods Corp. from California classrooms.

The request was a supplement to a petition from the two groups last month criticizing Post Cereals, a subsidiary of General Foods, for an offer to trade sports equipment for cereal boxtops. The groups asked the board of education to keep the program out of public schools.

After receiving the Post Cereals petition, state schools Supt. Wilson Riles issued nonbinding guidelines including considerations such as benefits to a school, comparative expense, school objectives and school influence in favor of one company to the exclusion of others. The state school board is scheduled to consider the matter Thursday.

General Foods in a statement Tuesday called the criticism of Kool-Aid "nonsensical and distorted."

In its statement, General Foods asked rhetorically whether the groups' next target would be sales of cookies by Scouts — "Or possibly they will seek FCC (Federal Communication Commission) action to prevent the producers of 'Sesame Street' from using the Cookie Monster character."

The Kool-Aid program will be tested in Washington, D.C., Kansas City and St. Louis for six months beginning this Thursday, General Foods said. For each label or empty package turned in, a child's school will get five cents with the money to be used for class trips or other school programs.

The maximum reimbursement is $8 per child, representing the return on 160 envelopes or canister labels.

"They might as well send in four rotten teeth, too," said Sally Williams of the Committee on Children's Television, a nonprofit corporation that gives advice on television for children which filed the petition with Consumers Union, the nonprofit publisher of Consumer Reports.

The groups complained that the program lacks educational value, turns children into sales agents through peer pressure and encourages them to consume too much sugar. They said a child who drank enough Kool-Aid to get $8 for a school could ingest as much as 65 pounds of sugar in six months.

General Foods said Kool-Aid was fortified with Vitamin C and added that the two groups "should devote themselves to constructive actions rather than misguided accusations and media events which, if successful, would only penalize the very students and schools they supposedly want to help."

IRS to release rulings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service will soon be making public all the thousands of tax rulings it issues each year, although the IRS will not identify the corporations or individuals involved.

In the past, the IRS revealed most rulings only to its agents or to corporations and taxpayers who sought guidance on a specific tax issue.

The House Ways and Means Committee, which wrote the disclosure requirement into the new tax law, expressed concern that "the private ruling system has developed into a body of secret law known only to a few members of the tax profession."

"Additionally, the secrecy surrounding letter rulings has generated suspicion that the tax laws may be used by the 'influential' to their advantage, and that the tax laws are not being applied on an even-handed basis," the committee said.

The new disclosure policy is expected to begin by March.

The IRS handles about 30,000 rulings a year. Half involve routine changes in accounting periods and methods. The rest are substantive interpretations of tax laws made in response to queries from taxpayers and from IRS auditors or agents working on complicated cases.

Traditionally, where the IRS felt a ruling or piece of technical advice was of general interest, it made its position public in a formal ruling without identifying the parties involved. It did that 626 times in 1974. The rest of the rulings it kept secret.

One controversial letter ruling came in International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.'s 1969 merger with the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. The IRS ruled that Hartford's stockholders did not have to pay taxes on the appreciated value of their stock in exchanging it for shares of IT&T.

In 1974, following attention focused on the merger by opponents, the IRS changed its mind and ruled that the shareholders would have to pay taxes that IT&T estimated would cost them $30 million. The issue is still being disputed by the company.

Congress was also prodded into action by a suit brought by Tax Analysts and Advocates, a nonprofit research institution.

A federal court in Washington, D.C., ruled last year that the letter rulings were public information and ordered the IRS to make public all letter rulings, including the names of the parties involved, issued since passage of the Freedom of Information Act in 1967.

But the court ruling never took effect. The new law makes it moot.

The new law generally requires deletion of the names, but James S. Byrne of Tax Analysts said he feels that will not be a problem.

"On the big cases we figured we could piece together the names of the parties involved," said Byrne. "And in many ways we got more than the courts gave us."

Changing tastes put crimp in France's beret industry

PARIS (AP) — The beret, once worn by millions of Frenchmen, has gone out of style in France. A contemporary of accordion music, the Can Can, Inky-Dinky-Parlez-Voo and bicycle-riding gendarmes, the flat felt cap is the victim of changing tastes and, perhaps, umbrella wounds.

French production has dwindled to half in 18 years, and two-thirds of the nation's beret manufacturers have disappeared since the end of World War II, or have gone into ski hats and ear muffs.

The Prince of Wales once wore a beret and so did Marc Chagall, the painter. When modern jazz was called bebop every hipster had to have one to look like Dizzy Gillespie. And in this country they were everywhere: the recent French passion for documentary films about the forties shows a world peopled by beret wearers, from schoolchildren cheering Marshal Petain to the Resistance fighters pictured in Nazi wanted posters.

Now, even in the misery of daily November rains, a beret hunter could spend a day in the Paris Metro without finding more than a handful of them. Maybe a provincial in town for an agricultural show. Maybe a tourist, looking as if somebody should charcoal in a moustache to complete the Lucky Pierre picture.

The five remaining French beret manufacturers now make about 1.8 million berets a year, 60 per cent of them for men and about half the total for export. Exports to the United States have increased marginally.

J.V. de Boisseson, director of Laulhere, a manufacturer which accounts for half of the French production, said in an interview that without military orders the business would be in vastly worse shape. The U.S. Army's Special Forces units wear green berets and this part of their uniform has become their nickname.

"It's no secret that about half the market has disappeared in the last two decades. Things are stabilized now, but the people who wear berets are not exactly trend-setters — farmers, retired people. We've thought of ways of promoting sales; you know, weekends in the woods, making them in different colors. But the old, dark one is finished."

Cadets reject officer board, vote for own

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — West Point cadets have voted to abolish a review board of officers and instead try alleged violators of the honor code themselves.

The chairman of the cadet honor committee Wednesday called the change "a kind of new beginning" and said it puts the "real essence of the honor system into cadet hands."

The revised trial procedure — an outgrowth of the biggest cheating scandal in the academy's 174-year history — was approved in a referendum Tuesday night by 85 per cent of the 4,044-cadet corps, according to Michael Iv, chairman of the cadet honor committee.

The referendum, which the honor committee had been drafting since late August, takes effect immediately. It was presented to the corps for voting after the office of the Army's Judge Advocate General in Washington, D.C., approved its legality.

Being judged by the review board of officers had been a right of cadets accused by 12-cadet honor committees, which have had the power only to make formal allegations on a unanimous vote. The new system requires 10 votes to return an allegation.

FPC ruling blocks utility rate hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer group estimates that the typical American family will save $42 per year as the result of a Federal Power Commission ruling.

The FPC refused this week to make electric and gas customers pay the construction costs of new power plants and pipelines before those facilities start delivering service.

The FPC action does not reduce utility rates. Instead, it blocks an increase that would have resulted if the FPC had followed the industry's urging to let power companies include in their rates the cost of power plants still under construction.

The commission permitted electric utilities to charge consumers for the costs of facilities that are being built to reduce environmental pollution or to convert oil or natural gas-burning power plants to other fuels, primarily coal.

The commission estimated that this allowance would increase wholesale electric rates about 1 or 2 per cent in the next few years.

Consumers eventually pay for new facilities in their electric rates but only after the facilities are completed and in service.

A citizens group called Environmental Action Foundation estimated last March that the utilities' proposal would increase electric utility rates almost 15 per cent, at a cost of some $8 billion per year to consumers, or about $42 a year increase in the average residential electric bill through the 1970s.

The FPC did not estimate the potential costs of the utilities' proposal.

The Edison Electric Institute, an industry group, expressed disappointment at the FPC's decision.

The institute's president, Don Crawford, issued a statement noting that despite improvement in the finances of electric utilities, "much more progress is needed to restore their full financial health."

The FPC decision opened the door for individual utilities to secure permission to charge customers for major construction still in progress, but only if the company could prove that it is "in severe financial stress."

The FPC said it would consider such hardship situations on a case-by-case basis.

Social Register changes style

NEW YORK (AP) — So much for tradition, my dear. They've changed the Social Register, that compendium of high society in 13 of the nation's cities.

Time was each of the cities had its own volume, Town & Country magazine notes in its November issue. Next month, there'll be just one.

That's another blow for New Yorkers, whose members of high society long have classed themselves apart.

"We want to try something new," a woman at the Register explained. She declined to give her name, explaining, "We're not allowed to do that."

The volume, she continued, will cost $28.50, far cheaper than the $290 "subscribers" used to spend for all the Social Registers.

"We don't know how popular it'll be," the woman said, acknowledging for the first time that Malcolm Forbes, the successful publisher, was now the chief stockholder of the black-and-orange social book.

$6 billion welfare cut urged by group

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than $6 billion could be saved each year by simplifying and cutting down the forms used by welfare recipients, the Commission on Federal Paperwork estimated Friday.

The commission said much of the savings would occur through the reduction of fraud and by reducing overpayments. Reduced administrative costs also would account for a large chunk of the projected savings.

The commission made the projection as it announced it had reached an agreement with the New York State Department of Social Services to pursue such an approach. The agreement does not mean that New York will immediately adopt the proposed approach but only that it will work with the commission to reduce factors limiting implementation.

The commission proposal calls for the use of a simplified form that would be used by all state and federal agencies to determine whether an applicant is qualified for assistance. Currently, each agency uses a different form. Few will accept the form used by another agency for determining if an applicant is eligible for the benefits administered by the agency.

In fact, many agencies are precluded by regulations from accepting the form of another agency, a commission spokesman said.

Women agents

NEW YORK (AP) — The chances your life insurance agent will be a woman are growing, the Institute of Life Insurance reports.

The proportion of women agents had risen to nine per cent by the end of 1975, up from two per cent six years earlier.

Joyce Brothers

Women in the Army

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: We're an Army family and my son's girl friend is trying to get into West Point. My husband always liked this girl but now when she comes to dinner, the dining room becomes a battlefield. My husband feels women belong in the home and should stay out of the Armed Forces. He says they'll wreak havoc with the military and it's a waste of money since women couldn't possibly fight a war. Should I agree with him, take my son's and his girl friend's side, or just apply first aid and be a Florence Nightingale? — W.K.

Dear W.K.: Of course, you have to decide on your own position, but even after you do, you could apply bandages to both sides if the fighting gets that rough. Women serving in armies is nothing new. They've been doing an excellent job in Israel for some time and women have fought under various flags. If a woman can carry a baby, or a heavy bag of groceries, she probably can carry a rifle in combat, or toss a hand grenade.

I suspect, however, that women are somewhat more apt than men to resist killing and violence, if they can find another solution to a problem.

According to Dr. Leon Salzman, clinical professor of psychiatry at the Albert Einstein Medical School in N.Y., women by nature are not softer or more sentimental than men. If taught, they would be just as effective as men on the battlefield.

Seriously, it's healthy for each member of the dinner table squadron to be able to express his or her views. If armies could do this, if they could talk it out, there probably would be no need for damaging blows. Violence usually results from a breakdown in communications.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Our second eldest child has always been a problem about going to bed and will never obey the rules. It's a constant hassle with him so that each night my wife and I go to bed angry. We've always tried to treat our four children exactly the same, without favoritism. What can we do with one who simply won't comply? — H.R.

Dear H.R.: I believe parents make a big mistake in trying to treat their children "exactly the same." Each child is a separate individual. What is right and important for one child may be very wrong or unimportant for another. This doesn't mean that a parent is showing favoritism. He treats his children fairly and explains that just as they all wouldn't necessarily want exactly the same toy, or to attend the same college, neither would they all have the same needs all through life.

Each child needs different amounts of sleep, which may vary at different periods in his life. One sleep study revealed that those who need longer periods of sleep are usually more introverted and creative, but may be found wanting when it comes to sustained work. Short sleepers are more likely to be active, outgoing, flexible and sociable.

This son simply may not need as much sleep as the other. I'd suggest that, if possible, he have a separate place to sleep so that he can go to bed, or go to his room, at the set time but leave his light on longer. Eventually, he'll regulate his own sleep time. As long as he retires and is quiet during the "sleep hours" then he should be given a certain amount of freedom to meet his own physical requirements.

Truth told about researchers

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The State of Iowa paid an American Indian group $31,911 for alcoholism research that was available elsewhere for a 13-cent stamp, says the state auditor.

"The state has not benefited from this research project," said Jeff Voskans, head of the Iowa Health Department's Divison on Alcholism.

Auditor Lloyd Smith said his staff, in an attempt to evaluate the project, asked for information from the National Clearinghouse on Alcoholism.

"For the total investment of 13 cents for postage, we obtained more complete and detailed information than was provided by this grant," Smith said.

Voskans said he was "greatly concerned" about the situation and would work with the attorney general's office to get the money returned.

The group, Social Science Research Consultants, was set up by the Association of American Indian Social Workers, Inc., of Sioux City in September, 1975.

Officials of the association could not be reached for commnt.

The consultants were to compile and publish a summary of research and experiments on alcoholism in Iowa between 1970 and 1975.

An audit showed the state granted $31,911 and the Association of American Indian Social Workers, Inc. — for which the state has no record of incorporation — contributed $202.

The project was $566 in the red — for federal and state payroll taxes — when the state alcoholism division refused further funding last June.

The audit showed that $15,699 was paid out in salaries, including $4,290 to the project's financial officer. Postage and supplies amount to $5,348.

Rent of $1,350 was paid to the association, which said it was based at Morningside College in Sioux City. The college, however, listed its tenant as National American Indian Planning Project.

The project's director, Katie Danner, received $1,043 for travel "and it appears it was not related or necessary for the completion of materials as set forth in the grant," the audit said.

Auditors said consultant fees were paid to professional staff members of Morningside College — including $1,211 to persons listed as student analysts — but that there were "no contracts, time records or documentation" to support the payments.

The Iowa secretary of state said his office had no record of incoporation for the association and the audit said "it would appear this is a nonexisting corporation, operating illegally within the State of Iowa."

ANASTASIA'S REACTION — Mrs. John E. Manahan of Charlottesville, Va. calls a new book supporting her claim that she is Anastasia, Grand Duchess of Russia, a "mess." The book, "The File on the Tzar," by two BBC journalists, says that all the female members of the royal family survived the July 16, 1918 execution of the Czar's family.

High turkey production will cut holiday costs

CHICAGO (AP) — Main courses for Bicentennial Thanksgiving dinners will be the most plentiful ever and will cost less than in recent years, turkey and meat industry spokesmen say.

Turkey production is at an all-time high — 138 million gobblers raised for consumption in 1976. "We'll see a lot of 49 cents-a-pound features for Thanksgiving," says Roy Munson, executive secretary of the Minnesota Turkey Growers Association.

That price, he said, is down a dime a pound from last year and nearly 25 cents lower than in 1973.

If holiday chefs prefer a roast, the 1976 record cattle slaughter of an estimated 42.5 million head also has resulted in relatively low beef prices.

"The consumer's the one who benefits all the way around," Howard Madsen, director of economics and statistics for the American Meat Institute, said in an interview Monday.

He said the red meat industry normally loses some business during the holiday season, since more than 60 per cent of all turkeys are sold during that period.

But this fall, he said, "turkeys will be an exceptionally good buy because of their overproduction. That means they may hurt beef sales even more than usual."

"There won't be another vear like this for low prices because we've got both poultry and beef setting records in production," Madsen said, adding that beef prices should begin edging up at the end of the year.

$138 million fire ravages Japan city

SAKATA, Japan (AP) — Damage from a weekend fire that destroyed 1,159 shops and houses, killed one person and injured 169 was estimated by the city government today at $138 million.

The blaze began in a movie theater in a shopping arcade in this northern coastal city. Whipped by 40-mile-an-hour winds, it spread over a 55-acre area before being brought under control 11 hours after it began.

Officials said 3,157 persons were left homeless.

The Japan Non-life Insurance Association said $22 million of the loss was covered by fire insurance. It said that will be the largest sum ever paid in Japan for a single fire.

The blaze was fought by 2,000 firemen, 50 fire engines and 400 military troops.

Police said they were investigating the cause.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Rev. John Witherspoon, the only active clergyman among the signers of the Declaration of Independence, achieved a greater reputation as a religious leader and educator than as a politician. Emigrating from Scotland to America in the midst of the controversy between the Colonies and the Crown, Witherspoon took part in the Revolution, and signed the Articles of Confederation as well as the Declaration.

He is better known, The World Almanac notes, for his distinguished presidency of the College of New Jersey (later Princeton University).

JOLLY JUMPERS — Acrobatics are a vital part of the Cal Poly multimedia presentation of "In and Out," to be staged in the Studio Theater at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and the following weekend. From left are Jeff Harrison, Diana Hamblen, Kathy Burns, Jane Kellogg and Scott Hawkins. The play was conceived by Robert Gilbert and Robert Ernst.

'Gone' tops TV ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — Twice as many television sets in New York and Los Angeles were tuned to "Gone with the Wind" Sunday night than to all other programs combined, the A.C. Nielsen Co. says.

Nielsen said Tuesday NBC got 65 per cent of Sunday night's TV audience in New York and 64 per cent in Los Angeles. National figures had not been compiled, the company said.

NBC scored a 48.6 rating for the three hours it showed the epic film in New York and a 46.7 rating in Los Angeles.

These compared with 16.5 for ABC and 8.6 for CBS in New York and 15.3 for ABC and 8.8 for CBS in Los Angeles, Nielsen said.

Figures for the second part shown Monday night were not available.

NBC estimated its audience at 90 million viewers Sunday, 110 million Monday night.

NBC said the previous record for a movie was 85,820,000 for "Ben Hur" in 1971.

Japan troupe at ICCC

Japan's Izumo Yo Dance Company, exponents of the jiuta-mai school, will perform at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the Inner City Cultural Center, Los Angeles.

On its first tour of the United States, the ensemble of dancers and musicians will offer a varied program of traditional and modern works.

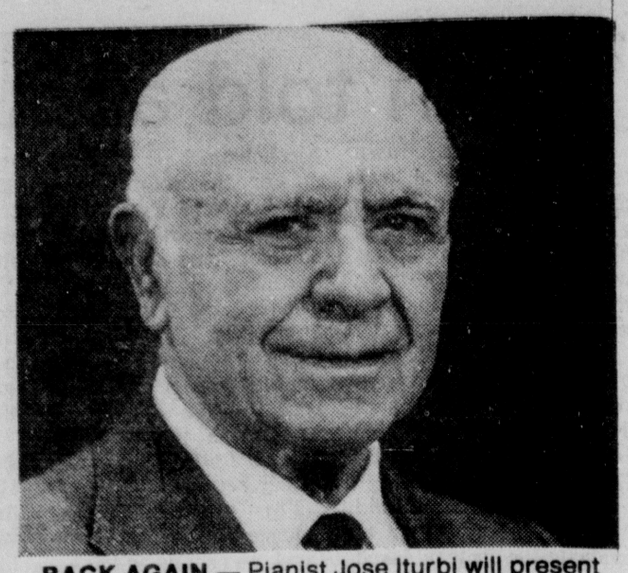
, Jiuta-mai originated in 17th and 18th century Japan as an after-dinner entertainment. Like kabuki, it was ultimately refined into an "art" form, losing much of its spontaneity and popular appeal.

A leading interpreter of the form, Izumo Yo has reintroduced elements of the original entertainment form, achieving popular and critical acclaim in Japan.

The performances will include an introductory demonstration and explanation of juita-mai. Also on the program are "En," an experimental work about woman's unhappiness after divorce, and "Salome," an adaptation of the Wilde story.

Helen Keller

Helen Keller, 87, the blind and deaf writer, died in Westport, Conn., June 1, 1968.



BACK AGAIN — Pianist Jose Iturbi will present a recital at the Ambassador Auditorium, Pasadena, at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday. This will be his first Southern California appearance in nearly a decade. The 80-year-old artist will play works by Beethoven, Mozart, Chopin, Granados, Poulenc and other composers.

Record reviews: Some cuts a cut above the rest

By STAN MIESES

Fall is the most active season for the recording industry, so we'll try to keep up with several capsule record reviews:

Rod Stewart (A Night on the Town): This is Rod Stewart's finest album, even though there may seem to be a number or two borrowed (listen to "The Killing of Georgie" and then Lou Reed's "Walk on the Wild Side"). Nevertheless, there is a cohesiveness of lyric and mood rarely achieved on a pop record, and Stewart's singular voice is an expressive vehicle. Standout cuts: "Tonight's The Night," and Cat Stevens' "The First Cut Is The Deepest."

Roxy Music (Viva): A final effort? Roxy's apparently broken up, at least temporarily, so this live set will have to do for now, and it does quite nicely. Though you might want to check out the original versions of a number of selections represented here, "Do The Strand" really rocks out, and "In Every Dream Home A Heartache" really spaces out. What more could you want?

Harold Melvin and the Bluenotes (Greatest Hits): You can't go wrong with this collection. Though their "To Be True" album is still the best, "Greatest Hits" is just that — everything you've heard on radio from this group during the last two years. Now that supershouter Teddy Pendergrass is off on his own, this might be the last chance to catch the original line-up on vinyl. It's a bargain.

Dr. Buzzard's Original Savannah Band: This is the best deco-disco record we've heard, light years funkier than Manhattan Transfer, and plenty smarter than most disco groups lumped together. Well produced, well arranged, well well.

George Gershwin Plays Rhapsody in Blue, Michael Tilson-Thomas and the Columbia Jazz Band: Gershwin plays with young Tilson-Thomas? You see, they ingeniously edited Gershwin's playing on an original 1925 piano roll with Tilson-Thomas' snappy modern arrangement of this American Classic-jazz piece. The result is a delight. Flip side; "An American in Paris." If you haven't discovered the great treasure that was George Gershwin, this is a good place to start.

Fania All Stars (Delicate and Jumpy): This too is a good place to start if you're not acquainted with the Salsa sound so popular now in many cities with a Hispanic population. But Salsa music is great listening for everybody, and terrific dance music too. Standout juts: "Desafio," and a hot "You've Lost That Lovin' Feeling."

29 fifth graders send Carter congratulations

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — "You are going to be the best president since Lincoln," Lynn James wrote to Jimmy Carter. "I would vote for you but I am only 10 years old."

Lynn's was one of 29 letters of congratulations to the president-elect from Janice Robichaud's fifth grade class at Central Riverside School here.

"My daddy bet $30 dollars that you would lose," wrote Kathleen Haire. "I told him not to vote on Ford because he would lose."

She promised to do her share to help Carter by telling people "not to litter because it is not a good thing to do."

Cheryl Range told Carter how she celebrated his victory: "I jumped all up and around. I said I knew that you was going to win."

Added Patricia Walker: "We had peanuts on Monday. I am glad you won on Tuesday."

Charlie Poindexter had a request: "I sure hope you lower the prices on candy and drinks. If you do, you will be the best president I ever had that I know of."

William Kosnow told Carter about a straw vote the class took.

Bridge by Jacobys

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

The bidding at table one in an IMP team match is that shown in the box.

West decided that South was prepared for a spade lead so he decided to lead some other suit. His choice was between clubs and hearts. When he finally settled for a heart, South gratefully ran off 10 tricks. This looked like a really good score, since a club lead would have set him four tricks.

It wasn't a good score. At the other table West elected to keep quiet about his spades and again South played in three notrump. This West opened a spade and somehow or other during the course of the play let go of a small heart so this declarer wound up by taking all 13 tricks.

For the benefit of those readers who are about to ask "What sort of second raters were playing here?", the match happened to be between the United States and Great Britain in a world's championship match.

Reid idea

NEW YORK (AP) — Chester Reid, a navy captain, suggested an American flag with 13 stripes and a star for each state.

Congress accepted the idea and on April 4, 1818, according to "World Book Encyclopedia," it set the number of stripes at 13 and ordered a new star be added on the 4th of July after a state joined the Union.

Ask the Jacobys

A Wisconsin reader belongs to a group that plays six hands at a time rather than rubbers. She wants to know if there is a new cut deal if one side wins a rubber before the six hands are over.

The answer is that when you are to play a specified number of hands there is a cut for deal before the first hand is played, but then the deal passes in rotation until the specified number of hands are completed.

Homemaker program hit

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Lawmakers looking into the state's beleaguered homemaker chore program have heard witnesses tell of county officials being wined and dined and low-paid workers being gouged.

They also heard Tuesday of state-paid housekeeping in a room of a $150,000 house and of a woman's suicide over loss of her worker.

Each account served to illustrate a speaker's point that better state management is needed for the rapidly growing, $116-million-a-year program, now in its third year.

The program puts a government-paid housekeeper into the homes of about 70,000 aged, blind or disabled Californians, most of whom would otherwise have to enter a nursing home or other institution.

The Assembly Human Resources Committee heard the program attacked from all sides — as too generous, too stingy, too centralized and too fragmented.

All sides, including the state Health Department itself, agreed that the department hadn't provided guidelines to counties for program costs, contracts, or quality of care.

The alleged generosity was described by Henri Habenicht, director of Homehelpers, a nonprofit homemaker firm in San Jose. He said some officials in the program exhibit "the feeling of Jehovah — the ability to distribute largesse."

His company found that 25 per cent of all the cases turned over to it didn't need any homemaker-chore help, and virtually all of them were getting more than they needed, he said.

In one case, Habenicht said, a disabled woman on Social Security was moved into a room in her daughter's $150,000 house, and was eligible for a homemaker to clean her room.

On the other side, Dorothy Lang of the Western Center on Law and Poverty said, "I've never seen a client who had that problem" of too many services.

Because the program was underfunded, she said, some employes of homemaker firms in Merced County were working for 60 or 70 cents an hour before her office filed suit.

"A woman committed suicide in Los Angeles County a few months ago when her homemaker chore worker was taken away," Ms. Lang said. "She left a note that said, 'I cannot bear the thought of going to an institution.' "

Deputy state Health Director Gary Macomber, in charge of the program, says about two-thirds of its clients would otherwise have to be institutionalized, at a price of $40 million more than the program costs.

Some of the day's most striking testimony came from Fred Keeley, former assistant to the president of Visiting Home Services, the San Francisco firm whose recent bankruptcy led to the hearings.

Keeley said at least five county welfare officials and about a dozen county supervisors were wined and dined by company president Peter Gottheiner this year while they were considering a contract with the company.

And he said the policy of the company, and many others under state-encouraged competitive bidding procedures, was to cut the wages and benefits of their employes — most of them minorities and women — to rock bottom in order to reduce their costs.

"This system, which provides riches to corporate owners, is at the same time gouging relatively helpless workers," Keeley said.

Committee members pressed Keeley for details of the wining and dining, which he said went on while he was with Gottheiner from February to September of this year.

In one case, he said, a county welfare director visiting Gottheiner's San Francisco operation was taken to dinner by Gottheiner and showed him bids of his competitors to ask his opinion of them.

Keeley wouldn't name the county, but said he'd told "authorities" about the case.

"I'm going to get sued anyway," he told committee members in asking not to be forced to name names.

The Health Department has called for a state and federal investigation of allegations that Gottheiner and others were profiteering off the company while it was going bankrupt.

The department also has called public hearings for early next year on proposed regulations it says will reform the program.

The regulations, announced Monday, include standards of cost and care and requirements of financial disclosure by firms applying for county contracts.

They drew a skeptical response from Gerald Hawes, manager of a critical state Auditor General's report on the program.

Macomber defended the competitive bidding policy, saying it had saved $5 million in excessive profits. He also said counties were encouraged only to favor "the lowest responsible bidder."

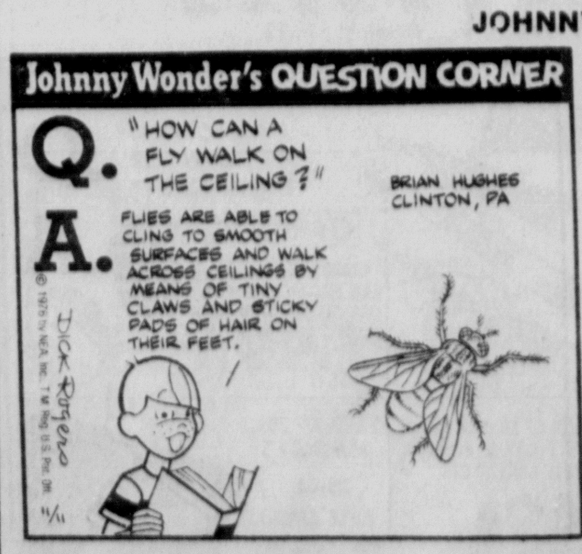
JOHNNY WONDER



The common housefly seems to defy gravity as it buzzes through the air and lands in almost any position.

It walks upside down across the ceiling as easily as it crosses the floor right side up.

If you were to look at the feet of a fly through a magnifying glass, you would see that each of its six feet are equipped with two tiny claws and sticky pads of hair.

These enable it to walk upside down on the ceiling, cling to the smooth surface of a windowpane, or walk anywhere else with equal ease.

When walking upside down, the fly picks up three of its feet at a time. It moves the front and rear leg on one side of its body at the same time it moves the middle leg on the other side.

The other feet hold the fly firmly to the ceiling until it is their turn to step forward.

Spiders, bees and many other insects are also able to cling to smooth surfaces by means of tiny claws and sticky pads on their feet.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

PUBLIC NOTICE

ORDINANCE NO. 2002

AN ORDINANCE OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF POMONA, CALIFORNIA, AMENDING ORDINANCE NO. 1466, ALSO KNOWN AS THE COMPREHENSIVE ZONING ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF POMONA, BY AMENDING SECTION .5809-2 (DRIVE-IN, DRIVE-THROUGH AND FOOD-TO-GO BUSINESSES) THEREOF ESTABLISHING STANDARDS AND PROCEDURES PERMITTING THE INCLUSION OF GASOLINE SALES FROM A PUMP ISLAND AS AN ACCESSORY USE WITH A DRIVE-IN OR DRIVE-THROUGH BUSINESS, EXCEPT DRIVE-IN/DRIVE-THROUGH RESTAURANTS, UNDER SPECIFIC CONDITIONS AND RESTRICTIONS.

WHEREAS, all hearings before the Planning Commission and the Council of the City of Pomona, California, have been duly noticed and held;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED by the Council of the City of Pomona, California, as follows:

SECTION 1. That Section .5809-2 of Ordinance No. 1466, also known as the Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance of the City of Pomona, California, is hereby repealed.

SECTION 2. That Ordinance No. 1466, also known as the Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance of the City of Pomona, California, is hereby amended by adding a new Section .5809-2, to read as follows:

2. Drive-in, drive-through and food-to-go businesses.

a. Drive-in, drive-through and food-to-go businesses shall be allowed subject to a conditional use permit pursuant to the procedure set forth in Section .580 and that set forth in this article.

Requirements:

All applicants for a conditional use permit for a drive-in, drive-through, food-to-go business shall submit a complete detailed dimensioned plot plan, floor plan and elevations of the exterior of the building. Plans of all exterior signing shall be included.

When considering such conditional use permit, the commission and city council shall use the following standards and criteria on judging these permits:

1. The city city traffic engineer shall review and make recommendations regarding proper and safe circulation for the patrons and the traveling public which may include, but not be limited to: Number of automobile storage spaces in waiting line; limiting on street parking; visibility for safe sight distances for ingress and egress; design of parking lot, etc.

2. The amount of off-street parking on the site shall be adequate and well located so as not to cause problems on the site or to adjacent properties.

3. The division of the site from other uses shall be accomplished by wall, setback and planting areas as deemed necessary.

4. Fencing off or securing of on-site parking areas during business hours or when establishment is not open for business shall be provided by the applicant as deemed necessary.

5. Size, shape, dimensions and area of the site and the buildings shall be found to be conducive to accommodate the proposed business in a way that is harmonious with the surrounding development and traffic movement in the surrounding stores.

6. Architectural treatment of the "Precise Plan of Development" shall be approved by the planning commission subject to appeal to the city council. Building design shall be compatible with the neighborhood or surrounding area of the site and shall not be of such a nature to be detrimental to property values in the area. The design and site layout of the buildings shall be so as to discourage on-premise loitering. When the site is adjacent to a residential area, a building of residential character (such as a low-profile, ranch-type) shall be required. In a planned industrial or commercial area, the service station building shall conform to the exterior architectural design of other structures in the planned development. The "precise plan of development" to be submitted for review shall include the following:

(a) Plot plan and floor plan.

(b) Landscape and parking plan.

(c) Elevation plans of buildings, signs, walls, lighting and all other structures on the site.

7. Signing shall be designed so as to be compatible with adjacent residential and other developments. Signing for both uses on the site where a gasoline pump island is permitted as an accessory use (Sec. .5809-2a-10, and 2c-4) shall be integrated and incorporated into one signing system.

8. Curb Cuts and Driveways. No curb cut shall be closer than two feet from an interior property line or be closer than thirty-five feet from the projected intersection of the two curb lines along the street frontages, providing however no drive approach shall encroach in the curb return area. The curb distance around the corner between the two corner driveways shall be painted red by the City to prevent on-street parking in this area. Two-way driveways shall have a width of thirty feet at the sidewalk plus four foot transitions on each side.

9. Paving and Drainage. The entire ground area of the site, except for building and planting areas, shall be paved with asphaltic concrete and/or concrete to standards set by the engineering and building departments. Drainage flow lines shall be shown on the plot plan and if drainage is to street, water must be carried under sidewalks in a manner approved by the city engineer.

10. Gasoline Pump Island. One self-service gasoline pump island containing a maximum of three pump devices for the dispensing of motor fuels may be permitted, subject to the issuance of a conditional use permit, as an accessory use to drive-in or drive-through businesses, with the exception of prepared, ready-to-eat, food-to-go businesses (i.e., drive-in/drive-through restaurants). Such accessory use shall be subject to the provisions of Sec. .5809-2b and the following findings which the planning commission and city council shall make before granting a conditional use permit allowing the inclusion or addition of a gasoline pump island:

(a) That the dispensing of motor fuels from a self-service pump island is compatible with the specific drive-in or drive-through business proposed or existing on the site;

(b) That the size, location and accessibility of the site are adequate to accommodate this proposed combination of uses;

(c) That the placement and separation of the facilities on the site and the design of the circulation pattern serving both facilities is such that a minimum of traffic conflict will occur between the two uses;

(d) That the Los Angeles County Health Department and the City Fire Department have reviewed the proposal and have determined that the specific proposal will not be detrimental to public health or safety.

11. Trash Areas. All outside trash areas shall have a minimum area of seven feet by ten feet (inside dimensions) and shall be surrounded by a six foot high solid wall which is constructed of noncombustible materials compatible with the main building. All trash, debris, old parts, junk and similar material shall be stored within this designated area. The enclosure may be designed to accommodate metal refuse containers (dumpsters) on wheels and shall have an opening with a minimum width of five foot clearance. A solid, double swinging gate, such as a chain-link gate with metal strips woven to form an opaque screen, is required for the opening for the trash enclosure, and the opening shall not be visible to the usual pedestrian and vehicular traffic. The gate shall be the height of the wall and shall have a maximum clearance of two inches from ground level.

12. Utilities. All utilities, including electric and telephone, shall be placed underground.

13. Lighting. For business adjacent to residential areas, all lighting exterior of a building shall be of an indirect nature. It shall be so arranged and shielded that there shall be no glare or reflection onto adjacent properties or public right-of-way. For all other locations (other than when adjacent to residential area) the lighting shall be reviewed and approved by the planning commission to insure that such lighting is compatible with the surrounding area and does not create a nuisance.

14. Landscaping. A minimum of five percent of the site area shall be provided with landscaping which shall include trees, shrubs and ground cover. Planters of not less than four foot net inside dimension width shall be located along street frontages, except for driveway areas. For corner sites, a planter of not less than one hundred fifty square feet shall be located at the corner of the intersection of the street property lines. The remainder of the landscaping shall be provided in planters of not less than four foot net inside dimension in width to be placed along interior property lines and around perimeter of building.

When the site in question abuts a residential zone, a planting screen of trees and shrubs and ground cover shall be planted to serve as a buffer between the site and the abutting residential development. Planters shall be protected by a masonry curb not less than six inches in height, shall be equipped with a permanent irrigation system as specified by the city parks department and shall be maintained by the operator of the business.

Plants achieving considerable height shall be required along interior property lines, but shall be reduced in height where access is permitted to an abutting alley or shopping center area twenty feet on each side of such entrance.

If the landscaping is not maintained to the standards of normal gardening techniques, this shall be grounds for voiding the conditional use permit.

b. Before granting a conditional use permit for a drive-in, drive-through or food-to-go business, the planning commission and city council shall make the following findings:

1. That the proposed business is compatible with existing commercial development in the area.

2. That the proposed location is sufficiently removed from any existing or proposed residential development or zoning so as not to be detrimental to the residential area.

3. That the proposed building and site are adequate to accommodate the proposed use and that the design of the facility is such that a minimum of conflict will occur with adjoining uses.

c. Existing Non-Conforming Drive-In, Drive-Through, Food-to-Go Businesses.

Drive-in, drive-through and food-to-go businesses existing at the time of adoption of Section .5809-2 (2/17/71) that do not meet all of the standards and criteria required of such new uses may be allowed to make additions or alterations as follows:

1. When the addition or alteration is or exceeds fifty percent of the value of the existing improvements as based on the actual assessed valuation based on the latest county assessor's records, a conditional use permit shall be required and the entire development shall conform to the requirements for such new uses.

2. When the addition or alteration exceeds ten percent but not exceeding fifty percent of the value of the existing improvements as based on the actual assessed valuation based on the latest county assessor's records, a conditional use permit shall be required, but only new buildings or structures shall comply with the requirements for such new uses.

3. When the addition or alteration is or is less than ten percent of the value of the existing improvements, as based on the actual assessed valuation based on the latest county assessor's records, a conditional use permit shall not be required, but new buildings or structures shall comply with the requirements of such new uses.

4. Notwithstanding the provisions stated above (Sec. .5809-c-1,2 & 3), the proposed addition of a self-service pump island as a second use on the same site with a drive-in or drive-through business shall require a conditional use permit (Sec. .5809-2a-10); and such addition to all such businesses existing at the time of adoption of Section .5809-2 (2/17/71) shall require a conditional use permit and the entire development shall conform to current conditional use permit standards for such uses."

SECTION 3. The City Clerk shall certify to the passage and adoption of this ordinance, causing it to be published as required by law, and it shall thereafter be in full force and effect thirty (30) days after the date of its final reading.

SAL season comes to head

Mike Brossart

Progress Bulletin Staff Writer

Wayne Fetters retires as coach

Wayne Fetters, personable varsity football coach of the Charter Oak High Lancers for the past 10 years, has decided to end his 20-year coaching career after the current grid season.

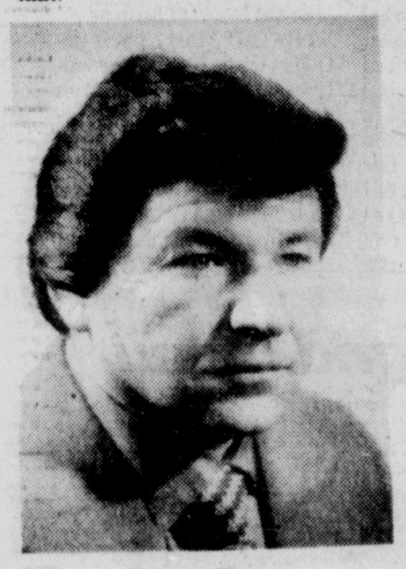
"I think 20 years of coaching is enough," said Fetters, who will devote full-time attention to teaching U.S. history.

Fetters' most successful year as coach of the Lancers came in 1971, when his squad won the Montview League title with a perfect 7-0 record and finished the year with a 9-2 mark.

His defense, ranked first in the valley that year, posted five shutouts. Fetters was named Coach of the Year by the Progress Bulletin that year and was selected to coach the East in the San Gabriel Valley All-Star game the following summer.

Fetters' 13 years as a head football coach netted a 65-63-4 record, with one game yet to play. His final game as a coach will be played tonight at Nogales High, when the Lancers visit the Nobles at 7:30 p.m.

He coached two years at Pomona Catholic, now Damien High, before moving to Charter Oak, and coached in Oklahoma for five years before that.



Wayne Fetters

Fetters has coached over 50 all-leaguers in his seasons at Charter Oak and six All-CIF first-teamers. In 1972, Andy Mason of the Lancers was chosen Player of the Year by the L.A. Times.

While at Pomona Catholic, Fetters coached track as well as football. Jeoff VanderStock, whom Fetters coached at that time, went on to compete in the intermediate hurdles in the 1968 Olympics.

"My relationships with my principal (L.T. Armstrong) and athletic director (Dallas Ensman) have been as good as they could be," said Fetters, who can look back on his high school coaching career with pride and satisfaction.

"I've coached long enough," he said. "Now I want to play golf and get my handicap back down where it should be."

Playoffs begin

Playoff time is upon us in full force in the CIF Southern Section. The eight-man football playoff tournament begins Friday (with no local teams involved) with 11-man football, water polo, boys' and girls' cross country and girls' volleyball and tennis all reaching the playoff stage within the next two or three weeks.

The regular football season will end Saturday and the CIF Football Playoff Committee will determine pairings for the 4A, 3A, 2A and 1A divisions Sunday.

The upper three divisions will have 32-team playoff fields and 16 1A teams will be selected. Dates for 1A playoffs are Nov. 19 and 26 and Dec. 3 and 10; for the other three classifications the dates are Nov. 19 and 26 and Dec. 3, 10 and 17.

In the top three divisions, each league is guaranteed two representatives in the playoffs but no league will receive more than three berths. Since there are 11 4A leagues, every league but one will send three teams to the playoffs and the remaining league will send two.

The 3A and 2A divisions have 12 leagues each, meaning that eight leagues will get three berths and the remaining four will get two.

In the 1A classification, each of the eight leagues will be guaranteed one entry but it is not necessarily true that each league will get two berths. The Olympic League, for example, traditionally a tough 1A football loop, may send three teams to the playoffs as it did last year.

The CIF Football Playoff Committee has an established procedure for deciding which of the 4A, 3A and 2A leagues get a third team and which don't.

First, any league with tri-champions is extended three berths; second, any league with a second-place tie is given three berths; and finally, any remaining berths are given to third-place teams that the committee judges the strongest.

The San Antonio League football season comes to a head tonight when six of the league's eight varsity teams square off at 7:30 p.m.

Tonight's action may or may not determine the league championship in a season complicated by an earlier postponement of the game between Damien and Garey, the SAL's co-leaders.

Damien will host Claremont and Garey will entertain Pomona at Bonita High in games that have bearing on the title chase. Tonight's third game will find Montclair at Chino.

The Spartans and Vikings both took 3-0 league records into their meeting at Damien three weeks ago. But that contest, which was supposed to give one of the teams sole possession of first place, was halted when the lights went out under a driving rain early in the fourth quarter.

When darkness hit, the Vikings had a 12-10 lead and possession of the ball on the Damien 48-yard line with 11:48 left to play.

It was agreed afterwards by officials of the two schools that the game would be made up from that point only if necessary.

"If necessary" means if the outcome of the game would have a bearing on the league championship or on the order of finish of the top three teams, those eligible for CIF playoff berths.

Damien and Garey also agreed that, if they were tied for the league lead at the conclusion of the regular season, they would reign as co-champions rather than complete their postponed game to determine a lone titlist.

It was thought that there was no sense risking injury and physical or emotional exhaustion in a climactic quarter of football, since as co-champions both teams would receive home games in the opening round of the playoffs, according to the CIF office.

So, since the Spartans and Vikings still share the lead with 5-0 records, they will share the title if both win tonight. If one or both of them lose, however, things are more complicated.

If one loses and the other wins, the final 11:48 of their postponed game will be completed at Damien Saturday at 10 a.m. Admission will be free, since no one took the time to distribute or ask for rain checks in that torrential downpour three weeks ago.

The game will be made up in that case because the team that loses (hypothetically) tonight would have a chance for a co-championship with a win in the shortened contest Saturday morning.

If both teams lose tonight, they will have to wait for the results of Friday's Ganesha-Upland game to see whether Saturday's game will be necessary. If Ganesha loses too, the leaders would not have to play Saturday, since they would be co-champs with 5-1 league records and Ganesha (and possibly Montclair) would be two losses back at 4-3.

But if Damien and Garey both lose tonight and Ganesha wins Friday, the Damien-Garey game should be made up for Ganesha's benefit. That's because the Giants would finish in a second-place tie with the loser of Saturday's shortened game — and a tie for second is a much better guarantee of a playoff bid than a third-place finish.

The principals in the league will decide Friday morning what to do in that case, but there seems to be no choice but to make up the game.

At any rate, the Spartans and Vikings will try to end all the confusion by winning their games tonight.

Damien will be led by Dan Marconi, the valley's leading passer with 930 yards through the air, and fullback Leo Burke, who has rushed for 414 yards and scored nine touchdowns (not counting one he made in the Garey game, which was considered no contest) and Jason Wight, with 328 yards rushing.

Claremont, currently tied for fifth, sixth and seventh with a 2-4 league record, will counter with quarterback Chris Pruitt (676 yards passing), fullback Grant Warhurst (405 yards rushing) and tailback Kevin Britton (368 yards rushing).

The contest could well be an aerial affair, since Marconi is tops in the league in touchdowns by passing with nine and Pruitt is second with eight. Claremont's Dave Bosson has caught 13 passes for 249 yards and four touchdowns, Warhurst has 14 receptions for 147 yards and one TD and Damien's Tom Lopez has 21 catches for 232 yards and three scores.

Garey will use its speedy defense to try to beat Pomona for the first time. The Vikes have allowed just 25 points in their five league wins and have given up more no more than one touchdown in any game since their season opener against Royal.

Quarterback Al Clay (871 yards passing and eight touchdowns) has two favorite targets: Chris Davis (18 catches for 249 yards and three TDs) and David Forte (17 catches for 272 yards and three TDs). Ralph Dixon (410 yards) and Elijah Turner (309) lead Garey's rushers.

Pomona, trying to avoid a winless year, will rely on the passing of Kevin Johnson (716 yards), the receiving of Lewis Cole (21 catches, 232 yards) and the running of tailback John Bullock (212 yards). Fullback Ricky Fairman (485 yards rushing), who missed last week's game, is a doubtful starter tonight.

Montclair, looking for its first winning season in 10 years, is 3-3 in league play and 4-4 on the year. A Cavalier win coupled with a Ganesha loss Friday would leave the two teams tied for third place.

The Cavalier-Cowboy varsity clash at Chino will be preceded by the sophomore game between the two schools at 5 p.m. The winner of that contest will be the SAL sophomore champ, since both teams are 6-0 in league play going into the game.

BULLDOZING BEN

La Verne running back Ben Morrow is under a full head of steam as he gallops for long yardage in Pomona-Pitzer game. Morrow gained over 100 yards including a 56-yard TD run.

Morrow's dream comes true

Progress Bulletin
Sports
Pomona, California ■ Thursday, November 11, 1976

PB Staff Writer

For Ben Morrow, playing football at La Verne College helped make a dream come true.

Morrow, the Leopards' 220-pound running back is doing just what he set his sights on in high school. At Verbum Dei Morrow earned recognition as a prep All-America as a defensive interior lineman.

"I came here as a freshman defensive lineman," the powerfully built Morrow explained. "But I always wanted to be a running back."

At La Verne, the football players are given a chance to play the position of their choice. So Morrow made the switch from defense to offense and from the line to the backfield.

"The coaches helped me a lot," he recalled, "and I put a lot of work and effort into it. Last year I was a reserve, but this year Brad (Frick) and I have had a real good chance to follow Curtis (Frick) and Roy VanderKallen who were great last year."

Following in the steps of Curtis Frick and VanderKallen, Morrow and Brad Frick have done a fine job.

Frick has carried the ball 141 times and gained 760 yards in seven games. Morrow has netted 510 on 114 rushes.

Ben had one of his best games ever last Saturday as the Leos beat Pomona-Pitzer. He gained 127 yards and had a 56-yard touchdown run in 16 carries.

"Brad and I both had a real good game," Morrow said. "Of course we work behind a great offensive line which helps a lot. That game was one of my best although I think I had a pretty good game against CalLu (Lutheran) too."

Being a starter is just one of the reasons why big Ben is enjoying this season so much.

"I think we're a closer team this year," he said. That's because a lot of us are sophomores and juniors and underclassmen just naturally tend to stick together."

The only disappointment was the Leopards' failure to defeat Redlands, the team La Verne tied with for the conference title last year.

"We thought we could win it outright this year," he said. "But since Redlands beat us (21-17), we don't think anyone else has a chance. Of course, we have to maintain our position in second place.

"We don't want to end up third, so we've got to win our last two games (against Occidental and Claremont-Mudd). Last year we beat Oxy pretty good (41-19), but they're improved this year and we're looking forward to a good game and I think we can beat 'em."

Morrow is majoring in behavorial science and plans to pursue a career in counciling or probation when he graduates.

"I'll probably start in Watts and then work in other ghettos and help the underpriveleged," he said. "I want to work mostly with minority groups because that's where I stem from."

Ben found his way to La Verne the same way and for the same reasons a lot of La Verne athletes do.

"I had a couple of opportunities to go to big schools," he said. "But they are too crowded. Besides, I wanted to prepare for my career . . . not make football my career. But we're looking forward to an even better year in football next year."

Celtics don't miss Cowens

By The Associated Press

Dave Cowens made an unexpected disappearance—and so did the Boston Celtics' losing streak.

The Celtics, who learned shortly before their game against Los Angeles Wednesday night that their All-Star center suddenly had left the club "for personal reasons," then went out and broke a four-game National Basketball Association losing skein, beating the Lakers 117-112.

"The show must go on," said Jo Jo White, the Celtics' leading scorer with 28 points.

It went on, with journeyman center Jim Ard and forwards Sidney Wicks and Tom Boswell taking Cowens' place in guarding the Lakers' 7-foot-3½ Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. Wicks scored 21 points, Boswell had his finest game as a pro with 14 points and eight rebounds, and Ard collected six points before fouling out with four minutes remaining.

"We can't get upset," added White.

The Celtics didn't.

They stayed virtually even throughout with the Lakers until about two minutes remained, before a basket by Boswell put them ahead to stay 108-106, then Scott hit a decisive threepoint play with 1:24 to go.

"We'll miss him," continued White.

They didn't against the Lakers.

Shaw signs with Giants

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Giants signed veteran National Football league quarterback Dennis Shaw of Claremont Wednesday and placed defensive lineman John Bushong on waivers.

Shaw, who spent six seasons in the NFL with Buffalo and St. Louis, was released by the Cardinals after last season and then cut by the Green Bay Packers during the pre-season.

Shaw, 29, was Buffalo's second round selection in the 1970 NFL draft and was traded by the Bills in 1974 for receiver Ahmad Rashad.

The Giants signed him as a backup to Norm Snead with regular quarterback Craig Morton probably sidelined for Sunday's game against Washington because of an injured elbow.

Saints' Pleasant Athlete of Week

Bob Pleasant of San Dimas High, who rushed for 149 yards as the Saints clinched a share of the Hacienda League title by downing Alta Loma last Friday, has been named the Progress Bulletin's Athlete of the Week.

Pleasant, a senior fullback, carried 22 times against the Braves and scored three touchdowns. His yardage figure — 149 — is especially impressive in the light of Alta Loma's defensive abilities. The Braves have allowed their opponents an average of just 120 total yards per game, including the San Dimas contest.

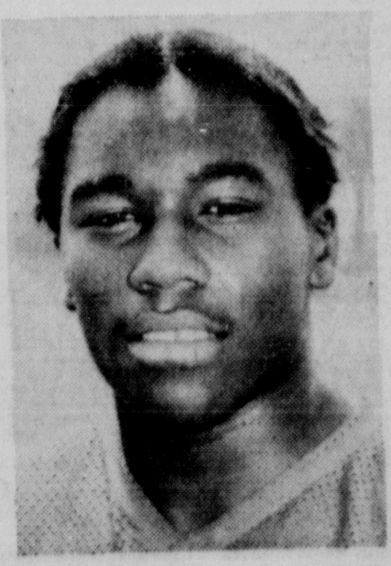
Pleasant is the valley's No. 2 rusher on the year with 866 yards and also ranks second in scoring with 78 points. His rushing average, however, is by far the best in the valley. Pleasant has amassed his 866 yards on just 95 carries for an average of 9.1 yards per run.

The San Dimas fullback is the prime mover in San Dimas' awesome rushing attack, which is tops in the valley in both yards rushing (267.6 per game) and touchdowns by the run (28).

Pleasant will be presented a plaque by Pomona Elks Lodge 789, sponsor of the Athlete of the Week program, at a dinner at the lodge on Dec. 8. The winners of the three most recent awards previous to Pleasant's — Walnut's Kevin Morgan, Chaffey's John Gable and Webb's John Richards — were feted Wednesday night at the lodge.

Three other football players were nominated for this week's award. Garey's Chris Davis, Bonita's Bobby Vidaure and Chaffey's Bob Sebro all had outstanding performances last week.

Davis, a split end, caught nine passes for 150 yards Friday against Ganesha. The 160-pound senior won the game with a 27-yard touchdown reception from Al Clay with 47 seconds left in the contest, giving Garey a 12-6 victory in the important game.



BOB PLEASANT . . .
Athlete of the Week

Vidaure, a 155-pound junior, rushed for 173 yards and two touchdowns on just eight carries in the Bearcats' 26-0 romp over Gladstone. Vidaure, who also played defensive back, broke runs of 80 and 53 yards.

Sebro, a 240-pound senior tackle who plays both ways, made an amazing 13 unassisted tackles Thursday night as Chaffey blasted Pacific, 56-0. He also led a determined pass rush and his blocking was largely responsible for Chaffey's 364 yards on the ground.

Ross gets his big chance

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Sammy Ross will finally get his big chance to quarterback the Cal Poly Pomona Broncos Saturday night and it comes in the biggest game of the football season.

Ross, who has appeared in only three games in his three seasons at Poly, will be replacing injured starter Leo Costa for Saturday night's showdown against archrival Cal Poly San Luis Obispo at Kellogg Field.

Everything is on the line in this one. Pomona is looking for its first victory over its rival campus in the eight-game series and it will be for the California Collegiate Athletic Association title after much confusion whether the three-member league still crowns a champ.

Ross got the word he is the No. 1 quarterback Sunday night when Costa was admitted to Pomona Valley Community Hospital after suffering a collaped lung in last week's 20-7 win over Cal State Northridge.

Costa was hurt two plays before the halftime but he still came on to direct the Broncos throughout the second half. The seriously of his injury wasn't known until Sunday when his lung filled with blood. He is scheduled to be released from the hospital on Saturday.

Costa's loss is quite a blow to Poly's football team on the week of the annual SLO battle. The senior from Visalia has improved each week and probably enjoyed his best game in two years at Northridge.

But coach Andy Vinci has confidence Ross can do the job.

"He's been here long enough so he should know what to do," Vinci said.

A sophomore, Ross served as the back-up quarterback to Jim Zorn, the folk hero of the Seattle Seahawks, in 1974. Ross was held out last year as a red-shirt and has served behind Costa this season.

But his only game action came in the fourth quarter of the 38-0 loss to Mississippi State when he completed five of nine passes for 55 yards.

"It's something to get to start against SLO in our biggest game," an obviously excited Ross said before practice the other day. "It's unfortunate Costa had to go out the way he did. Leo is the kind of guy it's hard to keep out of action. He is such a fierce competitor."

Ross is considered a better pure passer than Costa but he isn't nearly as good a scrambler.

"I've always favored passing," he said. "Leo can do both real well and he is stronger. I do feel I am a better quarterback from my three years here. I have matured a lot and my knowledge of the game has improved."

Ross, who hails from the rich Western Pennslyvania prep area in Sharpsville, is one of the few non-Californians on the Bronco roster.

A big reason for Ross coming here was his uncle, Joe Bassett, the former owner of radio station KKAR.

"The best answer I can give about why I came to Pomona is the Lord led me here," Ross said. "My uncle lived in Claremont and I flew here to look it over. I liked it and here I am."

Big plays needed by Rams

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Major problems for the Los Angeles Rams, as they approach the time for decision in the playoff race, are hanging onto the football and coming up with the big play which has been missing.

Coach Chuck Knox noted with chargin that his club has fumbled way the ball 17 times so far in nine games and hasn't been scoring touchdowns from inside the opponents' 20.

Another problem for Knox is at quarterback, where he says James Harris remains No. 1. But he wouldn't say Wednesday, when meeting with sports writers, that Harris was definitely his starter against St. Louis on Sunday at the Coliseum.

"We've moved the football and we're third in the National Football Conference in total offense," Knox pointed out. "But we're not coming up with the big plays and we're not scoring when we get close. We've got to have better execution when we get inside the 20."

The Rams lost at Cincinnati on Monday night 20-12 to go to a 6-2-1, with the invading Cardinals, leading the AFC Central at 7-2. San Francisco at 6-3 stands only one-half game behind the Rams in the NFL West.

"This game is crucial," Knox declared. And while he admitted it was also crucial to the Cardinals, he pointed out that the visitors would have a solid chance to take a wild card spot in the playoffs even if they lost in Los Angeles.

The Cardinals and Rams met in the 1975 playoffs with Los Angeles winning 35-23 to reach the NFC championship game.

There have been many who claim rookie Pat Haden, the former University of Southern California star, should take over from Harris as the Rams No. 1 quarterback. Others recall it was Ron Jaworski who engineered the playoff victory over the Cardinals.

Knox declared, "As of this particular moment, Harris would start."

He left himself an out by saying, "I haven't yet made any plans. We might want to keep St. Louis guessing."

Morgan enjoys big lead

Walnut High's Kevin Morgan has taken an almost insurmountable lead in the individual standings and Chaffey High has moved into the offensive lead in this week's Progress Bulletin's Prep Scoring Derby.

Morgan, with four touchdowns Friday against Ontario, increased his point total to 106, while runnerup Bob Pleasant of San Dimas has 78 and Bonita's Sanford Coggins has 66.

The Walnut fullback, who passed 1,000 yards rushing and 100 points scored in the same game, has 17 touchdowns and a pair of two-point conversions.

Chaffey used a 56-0 romp over Pacific to move into the team scoring lead for the first time this year, dropping San Dimas to second place. The Tigers have 221 points in eight games to the Saints' 212.

San Dimas, however, retains the defensive edge with a 6.1 points-against average. Garey is second (7.3) and Ontario Christian (8.1) is third.

Pool titles are settled

Water polo titles in the San Antonio and Citrus Belt leagues were decided Wednesday afternoon.

Upland High won the SAL title by downing Claremont 12-8. The Upland swimmers finish SAL play with a 4-0 mark, while Claremont was 3-1 in league matches.

Chaffey High easily won the CBL championship with a 34-1 bombing of Pacific. The Tiger swimmers went 6-0 in CBL outings.

Chaffey, Upland and Claremont will now await the start of the CIF water polo playoffs, set for Nov. 24.

Owls set for title tilt

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Citrus College's 1976 football campaign has boiled down to one game, this Saturday's clash with Mission Conference leader Saddleback at Owl Stadium in Azusa.

The Owls go into the contest with a 4-0-1 conference mark, one-half game behind the Gauchos' 5-0 league ledger.

It seems like every time these two schools have met in the past it's been a real war, and Saturday's game will be another in a long line of thrillers between the two Mission foes.

The schools have played six times since Saddleback joined the M.C. in 1970. Citrus holds a two-to-one edge in games won in the series, but remarkably three of the tilts have finished in ties, including last year's 14-14 standoff which left the two as co-conference champs.

The closeness of the series is also reflected in the scores. Saddleback's 17-0 victory in 1973 was the only "rout" in the series, with the Owls squeezing out a 29-28 victory in 1974 and a 24-14 decision in 1971. The Gauchos have scored 103 points in the six games, compared to the Owls' 97 points.

Adding to the excitement when the two JC powers collide this year is the fact that the game Saturday at Citrus will undoubtedly decide the Mission title.

Most felt that Citrus and Saddleback would battle it out for the conference title again this year, and exactly that has happened.

The Gauchos, under first-year coach Ken Swearingen have rebounded from two non-league losses to rattle off five straight conference wins.

Even more remarkably, Saddleback has surrendered only six points in those five outings, in a 14-6 win over Southwestern, the team which tied Citrus last week.

Since that game, the Gauchos have assembled a string of 18 straight scoreless quarters. They have one of the top defensive units in the state, allowing only 50 yards a game to opponents' rushing attacks.

Since rushing is the strong point of the Owls' offense, it shapes up as quite a battle come Saturday.

"Saddleback's new coach has changed their offense but it's the same defense with a lot of the same players from last year, so we are in for a tough game," Owl coach John Strycula claims. "We've seen them play this year, and I think they are easily the most physical opponent we will play. They've got a lot of big, strong kids and it's no wonder they've done well this year.

Strycula is also worried about the Gauchos' attack.

"Their offense sputtered earlier in the year but since then they have put in a freshman quarterback (Billy Yancy) and he has moved the team real well," the veteran Owl mentor noted. "They can control the ball on the ground, and can pass if they have to."

The Gaucho running backs behind Yancy will be halfback Greg Speicher and fullback Chuck Van Liew. Speicher has 400 yards rushing on the year, while Van Liew has rebounded from an injury to total 275 yards on the ground.

Of course, the Owls have the top rushing game in the conference, with halfback Obie Graves, quarterback Dale Bunn and fullback Raymond Butler.

Graves leads all Mission rushers with 861 yards on 156 carries, a 5.5 average. He got off an 80-yard scoring dash vs. Southwestern last week.

QB Bunn has added 535 yards on 113 carries (a 4.7 average), while fullback Butler has 396 yards on 107 carries.

Bunn has also been effective throwing the football most of the year. He has clicked on 52 of 115 passes for 783 yards and six touchdowns, his favorite receiver being small but speedy flanker Charlie Brown.

Brown has caught 13 passes good for 249 yards and a touchdown. Wide receiver Scott LaValley has 10 receptions good for 234 yards and three scores, while fullback Butler has snagged 11 of Bunn's aerials, two for TDs.

Safeties "Thumper" White and Marty pace the Owls with four interceptions each, as the Citrus front line of ends Gene Esslin and Ezra Daniels, tackles Jim Escobedo and Henry Camarena and nose guard Paul Clay have pressured opposing passers all season long.

Murphy irate about refs' call

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles right winger Mike Murphy was irate at an official's call and his coach, Bob Pulford, was also upset. And the Kings didn't even lose the game.

The comments came after Darryl Sittler's power play goal midway through the third period Wednesday night gave Toronto a 2-2 tie with the Kings in a virtually penalty-free National Hockey League game.

"I am totally disgusted with the call," said Murphy of the call by official Dave Newell. "He blew it and he knows it."

The Kings already had Gene Carr in the penalty box when the controversial third-period call came. Borje Salming went crashing to the ice and Murphy was called for holding.

The two-man advantage helped Toronto tie the game.

"Salming definitely took a dive on the play," said Murphy. "I was leaning on him, but I did not trip him."

Pulford said, "It was the best defensive game we've played all year. Unfortunately there was a questionable call on Mike Murphy that put us two men short.

"I don't know whether Salming took a dive or not, but it was a tough call to come at that time of the game. I thought the way we were playing, we would win the game."

"We were hoping things would even out," said Murphy, "but they didn't."

The first two periods were without penalties. After the call sending Murphy to the penalty box, putting the Kings two men short, Sittler took a pass from winger Lanny McDonald and fired a 25-footer over goalie Rogie Vachon's left shoulder.

Tommie Williams' goal midway in the first period put Los Angeles ahead, but Stan Weir pulled the Maple Leafs even early in the second period with a 20-footer.

On the play, Weir reinjured an ankle and could not play the rest of the night.

Bob Berry put the Kings on top near the end of the second period with a 20-foot slap shot that eluded rookie Toronto goalie Mike Palmateer.

The tie left the Kings with a 8-5-5 record. They have 21 points, second in the Norris Division behind Montreal. Toronto is 5-7-4, 14 points and third in the Adams Division, behind Boston and Buffalo.

Ross to start for Broncos

At Poly, Ross is majoring in park administration. "I've always liked forestry and the outdoors," he explained. "The field has opened up because of the population growth and the pollution problems."

SAMMY ROSS

Ross credits Zorn with a lot of support.

"I went to see him when he played against the Rams," Poly's new starting quarterback said. "I roomed with him when I was a freshman and Zorn has been a big inspiration for me. He is doing a great job in Seattle. The Lord opened the door for him."

Ross didn't mind sitting out last year.

"Vinci brought it up and I am now glad that he did," Ross said. "I regret it at all because it gave me a chance to learn."

How about this week's battle?

"SLO is a good team, there's no doubt about it," Ross said. "We are really going to be up for this one. It's a game you look forward to all season. Coach doesn't have to say much to us this week."

Angels nab Sunset win

The Upland Angels clubbed the Fontana Stars 14-4 Sunday in a Sunset League winter baseball contest.

Bill Teague led the way with two home runs and a double, good for four RBIs, and four runs scored. Rudy Mendoza chipped in with two singles and a double and two-RBIs.

Joe Hermosillo hurled six and two-thirds innings of scoreless relief ball, fanning eight, to post the mound victory.

Upland is now 2-5 in league outings. Next game for the Angels will be Sunday at Colton.

Marathon set at Rose Bowl

Baja race will be uphill battle

ENSENADA, Mexico (AP) — The annual SCORE Baja offroad race will be more of an uphill battle this year, with mountains in front of the 300 or so competitors in the grueling event that in the past has been a desert affair.

The course of the 550-mile race, which begins Friday at daybreak, winds through mountains east of here. The mountains aren't particularly high, but rain-ravaged stretches of roadway through the pines up to the 4,000-foot level pose new problems for the drivers.

The route covers long stretches of countryside that was ravaged by late summer and early autumn rainfall.

SCORE president Sal Fish reported that 30 per cent of the roadway had to be rebuilt after rains that preceded Hurricane Liza. While Liza did not do as much damage in the northern sector of the peninsula as it did at La Paz, those earlier rains left behind death and destruction.

Much attention during the race will be focused on the continuing duel between former Indy 500 winner Parnelli Jones and hot-rodder Mickey Thompson.

Jones' car, built in his Torrance, Calif., shops, looks like a Chevrolet Blazer. Thompson, who has asked for a starting position at the back of the 32-car field of single-seat buggies, will be racing his V8-powered experimental buggy.

Dune buggies traditionally are powered by Volkswagen engines, with a sprinkling of Porches and Corvairs. Jones and Thompson drive the only American-built engine powered cars in the class.

But chances are slim for either Jones or Thompson to win the race over-all on elapsed time, even if they are able to finish ahead of dune buggy stars Bobby Ferro of Sherman Oaks, Calif., Ivan Stewart of Lakeside, Calif., Johnny Johnson of Lemon Grove, Calif., and Malcolm Smith of Riverside, Calif.

The reason, said Fish, is that motorcycle racers starting up to 90 minutes ahead of them have a chance to drive the entire 550 miles before nightfall.
